FLYNN COMES TO THIS CITY

BOMB SQUAD REINFORCED

Police Make a Census of All Anarchists Here on Night of the Explosions.

William J. Flynn, the new head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, arrived in New York yesterday afternoon to direct, from this city, the Government's war on anarchy and kindred movements in this country. Chief Flynn is now concentrating his efforts on the conspiracy that was responsible for the attempted assassination last Monday night of Attorney General Palmer and other prominent citizens in various parts of the country. Chief Flynn realizes the difficulties ahead of him, and until something definite in the way of evidence is forthcoming as to the identity of the conspirators will give out no statements.

"All that I can say at this time," said Chief Flynn," is that we are making progress. We are not going to let up in this work, and I hope soon to be in a position to make a statement. In the meantime every power of the Government will be exerted to bring the criminals to justice, and all that we now ask is the co-operation, and also the patience, of all good citizens. I am entirely confident that in the end we will get to the bottom of the whole thing."

From an authoritative source it was learned yesterday that the man who placed the bomb in front of Attorney General Palmer's home in Washington and was killed by its premature explosion had been identified. There remains only one or two points to clear up, after which the name of the man probably will be made public by the Department of Justice in Washington.

The man is said to have been an Italian and a member of an anarchist group the activities of which are known to the Federal and local authorities. Every known member of this group is now under surveillance. The identity of the particular group, the number of persons included in it, and their abodes are matters which have not been disclosed. The anarchists, however, are known to be sympathetic with the ideals of the Bolsheviki and the chief American support of the Bolsheviki, the I. W. W.

All Agencies in Co-operation.

All of the various Government Secret Service agencies are co-operating in the present war on the outlaws. Never before has this co-operation been so complete as it is in the present instance. The police authorities of the various cities also are co-operating, and there is not an anarchist haunt in this country that is not under Federal or local surveillance.

It was not, as has been stated, the laundry mark on his collar that furnished the clue that has led to almost certain identification of the man who placed the bomb at Attorney General Palmer's house. Certain other clues, the nature of which has not been disclosed, came into the possession of the Washington authorities which, when followed, pointed to a certain Italian anarchist as the man who attempted the assassination of the Attorney General

A report was current yesterday that a round-up by the police of local anarchists might occur at any time. The police have access to the Government files in which these persons are listed. The files include the names and the record of the past activities of thousands of persons who make this city their home, as well as a great many others who live in other parts of the country.

It is known that the police have been looking for a certain Chicago anarchist and I. W. W. agitator who was in New York at about the time the bombs were sent by parcel post in the latter part of April. This man, who is an American citizen, has long been considered one of the most dangerous agitators in the West. The Chicago police are also reported to be looking for this man, whose name was mentioned in connection with a bomb explosion that occurred in a Western city several months ago. In that case he escaped arrest because of the inability of the police, who were morally certain of his guilt, to obtain evidence that would stand in court.

In the effort to round up the anarchists and other agitators in this city who may be implicated in plots against public officials, or even against the Government itself, the Bomb Squad de-

Bills Offered in Senate to Stop Immigration And to Put Up Bars Against All Anarchists

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Bills prohibiting immigration for five years and placing more rigid restrictions upon aliens entering this country were introduced today in the Senate.

One measure by Senator King, Democrat of Utah, would exclude alien anarchists and others who believe in the overthrow of Governments through force, and others by Senator Sterling, Republican of South Dakota, would amend the present citizenship laws so as to denaturalize aliens who obtain citizenship through fraud, or who assist others to do so.

2 HELD IN DETROIT AS BOMB SUSPECTS

Bulgarians Arrested on Word from Cleveland, Alleging Part in Outrage.

BOTH HAVE I. W. W. CARDS

Said to Have Plans of Homes Damaged and Letter Congratulating Them on "Success."

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., June 6.—Upon the request of the Cleveland police two men suspected of implication in the bombing of Mayor Davis's home in Cleveland were arrested here tonight. They are Steve Stoykoff, 40 years old, and Pano Trpoff, 27 years old, of 373 Ferry Avenue East, where they were arrested. The men are merely held, as no charges will be placed against them until the arrival of the Cleveland police tomorrow morning. Detectives at Police Headquarters said they knew nothing of the evidence on which the arrest of the men was requested.

Stoykoff and Trpoff, who are Bulgarians, according to the detectives, speak little English. They have lived in Detroit about four years, and prior to coming here lived for six years in Cleveland.

Detective Clark, who made the arrests, said he found letters in the suspects' room indicating they had been in Cleveland recently.

All the letters are written in a foreign language, and the police are speculating as to what facts the translations of them may reveal.

Both men carried I. W. W. cards and credentials from the Russian Federation of Union Workers. They stoutly disclaimed any implication in the Cleveland outrages.

Detective Clark said he found no firearms in the men's room, but an abundant supply of ammunition.

CLEVELAND, June 6.—Detectives left here tonight for detroit to question the two men arrested there and if circumstances justify to bring them back.

According to information received by the police here the men were in possession of plans of the homes of Mayor Harry L. Davis and other victims of the bomb outrages. One of the men is alleged to have a letter mailed from here congratulating him on his "brave work of June 2," the date of the dynamitings.

Other letters found on the suspects are said to substantiate information given to local police that the men were here recently.

A young woman employed as a maid in a Cleveland home was being held by the police today for further examination by Federal authorities as one of the terrorist leaders here. Police say the woman is Secretary of the local Finnish branch of the Socialist Party. A quantity of Bolshevist literature, it is said, was found in her possession, but she is not believed to be "Dynamite Louise."

The Federal authorities will investigate further the two suspects arrested in Detroit and being sent here. Of those previously arrested seven have been recommended for deportation.

Threats of further violence, including an armed parade on July 4, as a part of plans to overthrow law and order in Cleveland, were received today by Mayor Harry L. Davis in an unsigned letter.

NEW TRAIL IN PHILADELPHIA.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—Captain of Detectives Souder has received a photograph of an anarchist who was active in the recent Seattle strike and is believed to have had a part in the bomb outrages on Monday night. It is reported that he left Seattle recently for the East, and Captain Souder is making a strenuous effort to locate him. On the advice of Captain Souder the movements of anarchists in Paterson, N. J., and Lawrence, Mass., are being closely observed.

Chief Flynn, who heads the bureau organized to check the activities of the anarchists, was in this city until 2 o'clock this afternoon, having arrived late on Wednesday night from Washington. After conferences with Tood Daniel, Superintendent of the Philadelphia District of the Department of Justice, and operatives in the Secret Service he left for New York.

Mr. Flynn said he intended to make Philadelphia his headquarters for the

OFFER OF $25,000 ALLEGED

Federal Agent Asserts He Was Asked to Conceal $500,000 Shortage in Tax Return.

Jay A. Weber, Secretary and a Director of the Pictorial Review Company, was arrested yesterday, at the instance of Federal officials, and held in $50,000 bail for examination on a charge of having attempted to bribe an agent of the Internal Revenue Department to certify that the tax return made by the defendant on behalf of the company was correct. It is alleged that the return for the year 1917 was inaccurate to the extent of upward of $500,000; that Weber was cognizant of the matter, and that he offered a bribe of $25,000 to an agent of the Bureau of Internal Revenue for the purpose of keeping the alleged inaccurate return from reaching the knowledge of the heads of the bureau.

Mr. Weber, a short, slight man, with black hair and eyes and a subdued manner, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before the Commissioner. Later, while he was waiting for bail, he was asked by the reporters if he cared to make any statement. He replied:

"Not until I have seen a lawyer and have consulted with him. Then I shall do as he advises. I pleaded not guilty, and I have nothing further to say at the present time."

Expert Put on the Books.

The Pictorial Review Company is one of the most prosperous of the concerns publishing magazines. It occupies a big building in West Thirty-ninth Street, and has a large force of employes. Why the Internal Revenue officials decided to examine the company's books could not be learned. But about a month ago N. W. Gropper, an expert in tax matters, was sent to the office of the company with orders to overhaul the books. He was welcomed and every assistance accorded him by Weber, who, according to statements made yesterday by Federal officials, displayed the greatest friendliness to Gropper, and after a bit began inviting him to luncheon at the Hotel McAlpin.

It is alleged that one time when Gropper was Weber's guest the latter offered the agent $25,000 to report that the tax return filed for the company was accurate. Word of the alleged attempt to bribe Gropper reached the revenue officials and it was said yesterday that Gropper was instructed to appear complaisant, and willing to do the thing asked of him for the price offered.

Acting under the directions of Dean L. Porter, supervising inspector of the Internal Revenue Department, H. B. Stokes, the agent in charge of investigations, established a system of espionage which covered the movements of Weber and of several agents who had, it was said, got on friendly terms with him. This surveillance was continued for several weeks, and led to Weber's home at Leonia, N. J., and included all of his wanderings in this city.

When word came that a definite offer had been made to Gropper to make such a report as Weber is said to have desired, the matter was laid before Assistant United States District Attorney Benjamin P. De Witt, who entered into the plan to lead Weber into believing that the agents could be corrupted. It was said that part of the alleged bribe of $25,000 was to be paid to Gropper yesterday and a warrant was sworn out for his arrest. Agent Stokes arranged to be in the neighborhood of the Hotel McAlpin at the hour when Weber and his guest, Gropper, usually had luncheon.

Before Gropper went to the office of Weber's company in the morning Stokes ascertained that Gropper had sixteen dollars in his possession. Stokes saw Weber and Gropper enter the hotel, it was said, and waited until he was notified by Gropper that some money had been paid to him on account. Then Stokes arrested Weber and took him to the office of Mr. De Witt in the Federal Building. When Gropper appeared he displayed, it was said, $516, the inference being that the $500 had been given him by Weber.

The complaint, sworn to by Supervisor

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The House Military Affairs Committee today completed the Army bill, which will now provide for an army of 400,000 men. The appropriation for next year will be about $800,000,000 as compared with $1,117,000,000, carried by the bill at is passed the House at the last session.

The reduction is in accordance with a policy adopted by the House leaders, who today summoned the Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Naval and Military Affairs Committees, and advised them to reduce appropriations to the lowest possible amount. Representative Mondell, the Republican leader, said that economies were necessary so that obnoxious taxes might be repealed.

Representative Kahn, the Military Affairs Chairman, will report to the Army bill tomorrow and call it up for consideration Tuesday. It is understood that the Senate Military Affairs Committee will report it without change so that the bill can become a law by July 1. Said Mr. Kahn tonight:

"The bill provides for an average army of 400,000 men and 21,000 officers. This is a reduction of 109,000 men over the bill which failed and a reduction of 7,000 officers.

"The committee felt that at the rate the army was being brought back from France there was no necessity to provide for an army of 509,000, as carried in the bill that failed.

"The opinion of those who attended the sessions of the committee was that every soldier should be out of France by Sept. 1; that is the intimation we wished to suggest by our action. General March will have sufficient men to keep about 200,000 men in the Army of Occupation. With an army of 400,000 there will be 200,000 men for other purposes.

"This bill does not attempt to formulate a military policy or deal with any controversial matters. These will be dealt with in a bill which will be considered in the Fall."

The same policy of retrenchment will be followed by the Naval Affairs Committee, which on Tuesday will report the Naval bill carrying about $550,000,000, or about $200,000,000 less than the amount carried in the bill which failed as a result of the Senate filibuster.

It was also stated today that the Appropriations Committee would not grant the entire amount asked by Director General Hines as a revolving fund for the railroads. Mr. Hines asked for $1,200,000,000. It is likely that the bill will not carry more than $900,000,000. The Sundry Civil bill, which in the last session carried $850,000,000, may also be cut hard.

If economies are effected the Republican leaders say it will be possible to repeal the semi-luxury tax, the tax on mixed drinks, and other consumption taxes. It is necessary to save nearly $900,000,000, it is said, in order to do this.

Senate to Hurry Return of Wires; National Strike Order Pending

Burleson Admits He Had No Idea of Relinquishing Control.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today, in the face of Postmaster General Burleson's statement that the telephone and telegraph companies were still under his control despite his order of last night, took steps to expedite action by Congress restoring full control of the various systems to their private owners within ninety days.

Following a meeting of the committee, at which the Postmaster General's statement was read, Senator Cummings, Chairman of the committee, late in the day, obtained permission of the Senate to have the resolution offered by Senator Kellogg, providing for the return of the systems within ninety days, advanced on the calendar as unfinished business for Monday. This means that action probably will be taken on the resolution Monday afternoon. It also will provide an opportunity for a full discussion of the situation, including the strike, on the floor of the Senate.

When the committee met this morning to take up again the return of the telephone and telegraph wires to private ownership some members still had the impression that Mr. Burleson had actually turned back the wires through his order of last night. The committee meeting was conducted on this basis for a few minutes until N. C. Kingsbury, Vice President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, appeared and explained that actual control of operation had been relinquished but that the Post Office Department retained right to control rates, compensation, and labor conditions.

A letter to this effect from Postmaster General Burleson was also received. In this letter Mr. Burleson said that so far as turning back the property to private ownership was concerned, "no such action has been taken by me nor is contemplated."

After Mr. Kingsbury made his statement, Senator Kellogg, Chairman of the committee, said:

"Then, the order is merely a piece of flimflam—it does not amount to anything."

"Wasn't it the purpose to pass the buck on the strike?" asked Senator Watson of Indiana, intimating that Mr. Burleson issued his order so he could dodge responsibility in handling the strike situation in the Southeast.

In view of the fact that Mr. Burleson had not actually returned the wires to their owners, the committee decided to proceed with the Kellogg resolution, which had already been reported favorably, and was on the calendar. The provision in the resolution extending present telephone rates for sixty days after the act is passed was altered to read "ninety days."

While on the stand Mr. Kingsbury testified that last night an error crept into the official statement issued by the Post Office Department.

"The Publicity Bureau, in the heading written over the text of Mr. Burleson's order, stated that the telegraph and telephone wires were being returned to their respective owners by Burleson," he explained. "The Publicity Bureau tried to recall this heading, but apparently it was too late, as the statement already had been sent out."

"Then Burleson turned back the responsibility and kept the control," remarked Senator Kellogg.

"The order merely means," replied Mr. Kingsbury, "that the companies will now operate their own wires for the Postmaster General. It did away with the operating board, but we will still have to report to the Wire Control Board."

"The authority of the operating board is now transferred to the Postmaster General," suggested Senator Fernald of Maine.

"Exactly."

"Does Burleson still have the same powers over the companies that he had before?" asked Senator Kellogg.

"Yes," was the answer.

The letter which Mr. Burleson sent to Konenkamp Says He Will Issue Call from Chicago Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—President S. J. Konenkamp of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America announced tonight that he would call a nation-wide strike of members of the union upon reaching Chicago tomorrow. He said that neither the date of the proposed walkout nor whether it would affect both the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company and the Western Union Telegraph and Cable Company had been decided.

The strike, he said, would be called in support of union employes of the Western Union Company in ten Southeastern States, who were requested by him to leave their work last night following Postmaster General Burleson's order for operation by the companies.

There would be also, he asserted, a strike of no small proportions in every State in the Union by June 16, the day set for the electrical workers connected with the wire systems to go out.

The Post Office Department did not seem to be particularly worried about the strike in the Southeastern States, called yesterday immediately after Mr. Burleson returned the operation of their systems to the wire companies. It was reported that the department's information was that few operators had gone out, and that the systems were not seriously crippled.

Konenkamp said tonight, when told of the reports that the strike was not assuming proportions which alarmed officials, that he had a surprise in store for Mr. Burleson, President Carlton of the Western Union, and others who opposed him.

He issued the following statement:

"The result of the first day's walkout in the Southeastern district suggests that Mr. Burleson had advance information that he was holding a hot wire and this accounts for his hurry to let go. The strike will be extended to other cities without delay and the time of its taking effect will be made known from international headquarters in Chicago tomorrow night. The instructions should be in the hands of International Secretary Campbell now for general distribution.

"The South has won its strike already and by the time the entire country is involved there will be a complete tieup of the wire system. Despite reports to the contrary, our very lowest estimates show 2,500 men out, while Vice President Mann insists that the number has reached 2,000 with other points to be heard from. Many of the press reports today were gathered from cities before the strike instructions had been received. Since issuing the sterotyped statement 'never touched me' the Western Union has notified many points to accept messages for the Southeast subject to delay.

"Mr. Carlton has received one surprise today. He is due for the surprise of his life soon. He gives us credit for having 700 members in the Western Union system. Since Atlanta furnished 500, New Orleans 300, and Jacksonville 100 strikers out of the remarkable 700, what about his figures?

"It is because of Mr. Carlton's unfair methods that the strike has been started."

REPORT 300 OUT IN SOUTH.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, June 6.—Figures given out today by the officials of the Western Union Telegraph Company and those issued by the heads of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, the opposing forces in the Southeastern strike that was called Thursday afternoon in sympathy with the telephone operators of Atlanta, show a wide discrepancy, the company reporting not more than 300 out of the service, while the union leaders asserted 3,000 or more men had quit.

"Reports from all offices affected by the strike show an aggregate number of 276 operators who have left the service, including those at Atlanta who left Thursday and the day before," said a statement given out by President Newcomb Carlton of the Western Union from his New York office.

The strike leaders revised the figures

Peace Envoys Check Treaty Copies in Leak Hunt; Berlin Sending Text to Members of Congress

PARIS, June 6, (Associated Press.)—The members of the American peace delegation, disturbed by the report that copies of the German peace terms have reached New York, are undertaking to check up all the copies issued in order to ascertain if any are missing.

It is understood here that the Berlin Government is sending photographically reproduced copies of the peace terms to every United States Senator and Representative.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, June 6.—Some members of the American peace delegation are asking why the Government does not print the German peace treaty and put the document on sale throughout the United States, so every one can read it. The treaty is reported available in Paris at a reasonable price and the Germans are flooding Switzerland, Holland and the Scandinavian countries with copies, printed in English, French and German.

The Germans shipped copies of the treaty, addressed to every member of Congress by way of Holland, but it is understood that these have been held up. By whose orders this was done is not known.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Much comment was caused here today by the dispatch saying that it was understood in Paris that the Berlin Government was sending copies of the peace treaty to members of Congress. No such copies, however, have arrived here yet.

Senator Borah has announced his intention of making the treaty public as soon as he receives a copy, but he said tonight that he had been unable so far to obtain one.

PARIS, June 5.—At a meeting today of the allied peacemakers at Premier Lloyd George's residence a proposal was submitted not to change the treaty, but to attach addenda clarifying its terms to conform to the German objections and the British suggestions.

It is understood that the proposal came from President Wilson.

This appears to meet the French opposition to changing the treaty and the British insistence upon amending the text. One clause of the addenda makes it clear that the Reparations Commission will not control German financial legislation, as the treaty seems to provide.

Four-Day Ultimatum Probable.

PARIS, June 6, (Associated Press.)—There are still many loose ends to the determinations which must be made before the reply of the Allies to the German counterproposals can be submitted to Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German plenipotentiaries, and even the question of principle regarding changes in the treaty has not been definitely settled.

Tonight, however, positive instructions were issued by the Council of Four to all commissions working on the reply to the German counterproposals to complete their reports by Monday.

Members of the Council themselves seem sure that they will be able to present the allied reply on Thursday or Friday.

There are many evidences of impatience among the prominent members of the Peace Conference. Premier Lloyd George, because of a division of opinion and differences among the British experts working on reparations, is acting as his own expert and is attending the meetings of the Reparations Commission.

A general drive all along the line for a speedy completion of the reply to Germany has been noticeable, and there is a general disposition to wind up differences, which a member of the American delegation said would be reconciled speedily, although he admitted that there were three or four vital points upon which the Council of Four seems far from decision.

In French official circles there is a growing feeling that Germany will not sign the treaty, and this perhaps accounts for the haste, as delay, it is generally conceded, makes Germany's signing less likely.

The reply to the Germans will be submitted by the Allies as an ultimatum with a short time limit, probably about four days, within which Germany will have either to take or leave the conditions offered.

The most important modifications under consideration, namely, that relating to reparations, will probably not involve any material changes in the treaty as originally presented. The concessions

SENATE ASKS HEED TO IRISH APPEAL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The American Peace Commission at Versailles was officially requested by the United States Senate today to obtain a hearing for the cause of Ireland before the Peace Conference.

Sixty Senators voted for the resolution which carried the request, and which also expressed sympathy with the Irish cause. Only one Senator, John Sharp Williams, answered "No" when the vote was taken without a roll call.

The resolution was presented by Senator Borah of Idaho. Senator Walsh of Montana had it amended so as to express sympathy with Ireland.

Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, spoke, among others, for the resolution, including in his remarks a plea for the retention of an unimpaired Monroe Doctrine.

Senator Borah did not speak for the resolution, but Senators Phelan of California; Fall, of New Mexico, and Walsh, all upheld it.

The resolution, the first paragraph of which is Senator Borah's and the second Senator Walsh's, reads:

"Resolved, that the Senate of the United States earnestly requests the American Peace Commission at Versailles to endeavor to secure for Edward de Valera, Arthur Griffiths and Count George Noble Plunkett a hearing before the Peace Conference in order that they may present the cause of Ireland.

"Resolved that the Senate of the United States express its sympathy with the aspirations of the Irish people for a Government of its own choice."

Lodge Asserts Action Is Proper.

Senator Lodge said: "I voted with great pleasure for the resolution as it was reported by the Committee, because I have always thought that any man is entitled to his day in court, and any nation is entitled to a day before the Peace Conference. I have done what little I could—and it was very little—to try to get hearings for the Albanians and the Koreans and some other people who wish to be heard, and I was very happy therefore to join in asking for a hearing for the representatives of Ireland.

"My colleague [Senator Walsh] has presented an amendment containing a general statement of sympathy of a character which I know appeals to all the American people. We have always desired as a nation that all people should go on peacefully under a government of their own choice.

"When, however, the conference first met, ostensibly to make peace with Germany, I think every one realized that when the nations associated in the war against Germany had gathered at Paris to present to Germany a treaty putting an end to the war it would be utterly impossible for those nations acting together and in that way to inquire into and interfere with each other's affairs.

SENATORS CLASH ON LEAK

HITCHCOCK CARRIES POINT

UNITE IN FINAL VOTES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The Senate decided unanimously today to investigate the peace treaty "leak," passing the resolution introduced by Senator Hitchcock without a dissenting voice and without a roll call.

Not five minutes after this was done the resolution of Senator Johnson of California, calling upon the Secretary of State to furnish the full text of the treaty to the Senate, "if not incompatible with the public interest," was passed, also without roll call and without opposition.

All the heat and bitterness that have characterized recent sessions of the Senate were again manifest when the Hitchcock resolution was brought up. The antagonism centred around an attempt by the Republicans, headed by Senator Kellogg of Minnesota and seconded by Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, to introduce a substitute for the Hitchcock resolution.

Text of Hitchcock Resolution.

The Hitchcock resolution reads:

"Whereas, The Senator from Idaho, Mr. Borah, has stated in the Senate that certain interests in the City of New York have secured copies of the peace treaty with Germany while the American people have been unable to secure one; and

"Whereas, The Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. Lodge, has stated in the Senate that he knows of four such copies of said treaty of peace with Germany now in New York and that the only place where it is not allowed to come is the United States Senate; and

"Whereas, The Senator from Idaho, Mr. Borah, has stated that the interests now having possession of said copies of said treaty are peculiarly interested in the treaty; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Committee on Foreign Relations be, and it hereby is, authorized and directed to investigate the matter with a view to ascertaining the facts, and particularly to ascertain and report to the Senate the names of the persons, corporations, or interests which have secured copies of said treaty and from whom they were secured and by what methods, and also to ascertain and report to the Senate in what manner and to what extent said interests are 'particularly' interested in said treaty.

"For these purposes the Committee on Foreign Relations, or any sub-committee thereof, be, and it is, authorized to send for persons, books, and papers to administer oaths and to employ a stenographer, at a cost not exceeding $1 per printed page, to report such hearings as may be had in connection with the same, the expenses thereof including the cost of travel, to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate, and the committee, or any sub-committee thereof, may sit during the sessions or recesses of the Senate."

Senator Kellogg's Substitute.

The Kellogg substitute sought to strike out of the Hitchcock resolution all the first part ending with the words instructing the Committee on Foreign Relations to report to the Senate "to what extent said interests are 'particularly' interested in said treaty," and insert the following:

"Whereas, It has been stated in the Senate that the proposed Peace Treaty, which has been delivered to Germany, is being sold upon the streets of Berlin and openly circulated in Germany and other countries, and,

"Whereas, it is claimed that certain people or interests in the City of New York have also received from members of the American Peace Commission copies of said treaty;

"Now therefore, be it resolved, That the Foreign Relations Committee of the United States Senate be, and it is hereby, directed and authorized to investigate said charges and report to the Senate its findings, and if said charges be true, to ascertain in what manner and by whose authority copies of said Peace Treaty have been furnished private citizens and denied the Senate of the United States, and also to ascertain to what extent said interests are particularly interested in said treaty."

The proposed substitute omitted the names of Senators Lodge and Borah from the resolution. Senator Hitchcock, who had specifically named these men as alleging that the "leak" had taken place, openly charged Senator Lodge with a desire to escape the investigation.

"There is no possible reason for amending the original resolution except to escape the direct responsibility which the Senator from Massachusetts assumed when he got this matter in here," said Senator Hitchcock.

The Senator from Nebraska did not apply this charge to Senator Borah, who, he said, was ready "to go before an investigating committee."

Senator Lodge met Senator Hitchcock's charge by asking Senator Kellogg to withdraw the substitute, which was done. The vote was then taken viva voce.

The Foreign Relations Committee will meet Monday, and, it is assumed, will go ahead with consideration of the measure and the subsequent procedure. Republicans and Democrats alike insist that an investigation is imperative. Senator Lodge has already taken the position that he cannot be compelled to say anything more about the "leak" than he has done upon the Senate floor, and that he cannot be forced to disclose the name of the individual in whose possession he said he saw a copy of the treaty.

Feeling between Senators Lodge and Hitchcock, leaders respectively of the Republican and Democratic sides, and also the present and past Chairmen of the Foreign Relations Committee, appears to be at white heat. There was a violent passage between the two in the debate today, and Senator Lodge jumped from his seat and shook his finger at Senator Hitchcock.

It is expected that Senator Hitchcock will lead the attack upon Senator Lodge when the Foreign Relations Committee meets Monday, and excitement is promised.

Talked of Broader Inquiry.

When Senator Hitchcock called up his resolution Senator Kellogg at once offered the substitute, saying that it would provide for a "broader" investigation, as it asked for an investigation of the publication of the treaty abroad. Senator Lodge supported the substitute, and this "amazed" Senator Hitchcock, so he declared.

"Yesterday and the day before yesterday," said Senator Hitchcock, "the Senator from Massachusetts was for the resolution—this identical resolution—which was introduced day before yesterday and was before the Senate all day yesterday."

"Let me save the Senator's time," Senator Lodge replied. "I will admit that I was inconsistent. I will admit that I thought this resolution would do. I think now this is a better one. I am perfectly willing to put my name in and I know the Senator from Idaho will vote the same way, if it will please and soothe the Senator, but let's have a vote on it."

"Yes, I propose to have a vote," replied Mr. Hitchcock, "and I propose to have it this afternoon, and I propose to have the country understand that the Senator was so anxious to stand here upon the floor of the Senate and upon his own responsibility charge that copies of the peace treaty were in New York in the hands of New York interests."

"I never said that," interrupted Senator Lodge.

"The Senator from Idaho," continued Mr. Hitchcock, "takes the proper position. He came in here upon his own responsibility and made certain allegations He was ready to go before an investigating committee and have his statements investigated; but the Senator from Massachusetts, after having this printed resolution before him all day yesterday, after having known exactly what its phraseology was, after having had all the experience of many years as a legislator, suddenly during the night has seen a new light and wants an investigation in some general terms of matters already admitted.

Ignores Germany's Action.

"What do we care whether the printed copies were on sale in Germany or not? If they were on sale in Germany that is a German matter. What we are interested in now is this: Are there copies in New York? Are they in the hands of interests in New York that have no legitimate right to their possession?

"Was the Senator from Massachusetts justified when he came in here and charged that they were in New York? That is what we want to know, and my resolution provides for finding out. My resolution provides for finding out whether they are there and how they got there, and who put them there; and there is no possible reason for amending that resolution except to escape the direct responsibility which the Senator from Massachusetts assumed when he got this matter in here.

"What do we care whether Germany is selling her peace treaty upon the street or not? That is not the question. The question is the integrity of the American Government and officials of the Government. Have our representatives in Paris permitted interests in New York to get possession of these copies of the peace treaty for their own selfish use? Did the Senator see such a copy in New York and spend an hour and a half in reading it?"

"I have said so and I decline to repeat it," cried Senator Lodge, jumping to his feet, advancing toward Senator Hitchcock and shaking his finger. "Does the Senator question the truth of what I have said," he demanded very sharply.

"I will say," replied Senator Hitchcock, "that the statement he made upon the floor of the Senate is one which I have a right to have investigated. If he objects to having it investigated let him take the responsibility."

"I have no objection to its being investigated and it shall be investigated," Senator Lodge answered.

"Why does the Senator ask for these amendments eliminating his name?" inquired Mr. Hitchcock.

"When the Senator stops talking I will tell him," replied Senator Lodge.

"I think," said Senator Hitchcock, "we should have another investigation, this new one to find out what has happened in twenty-four hours, what new light has burst upon the consciousness of certain Senators who were so anxious to have the resolution passed yesterday, but who regard it as out of date and out of order today."

Asks Substitute Withdrawn.

At this point Senator Lodge asked Senator Kellogg to withdraw the substitute. Senator Lodge denied that he had caused delay, but said that Senator Hitchcock had held up the matter for a day.

"Let it pass as he introduced it," said Senator Lodge, alluding to the Hitchcock resolution. "Nobody can object to anything that is asked there. I stated on the floor that I saw and had in my hand and looked over for an hour and a half a copy of the treaty, and I did. If any one desires to deny that, he has his opportunity.

"I heard also of three other copies. They had nothing to do with any interests, so far as I know, of any financial body of any kind; and if there has been bribery and corruption, which the Senator talks about, who was bribed? Who could have been bribed to give it up? Nobody but the agents of the Administration in Paris. There has been no bribery or corruption about it. They have been sent over, sent quite freely, in my opinion. I only know of the existence of four.

"As to having the name of the Senator from Idaho and mine there, that, of course, is a matter of total indifference to me. I will take my chance with public opinion. I have taken it for a good many years."

Senator McCormick interrupted to say that press dispatches today reported that the German Government has mailed copies of the treaty to the members of the Senate and House of Representatives.

Senator Kellogg called it "an outrage on the Senate," that the treaty should be furnished to individuals in this country and distributed broadcast in Europe and not given to the Senate.

"I have not any doubt that the Senator from Nebraska realizes this," Senator Kellogg said, "and he has tried to cover it up by a great indignation against the Senator from Massachusetts and the Senator from Idaho, because they have stated an undisputed fact in the Senate. If the Senator thinks he can make political capital by that sort to talk to the people of this country let him go ahead and do it. I want the whole thing investigated."

Senator Kellogg then withdrew his substitute resolution.

"I think before this debate closes, sixty days from now," said Senator Borah, "whether this investigation goes on or not, I will demonstrate to the satisfaction of some people in this country why it is that certain interests in New York are so peculiarly active in this matter."

Text of Johnson Resolution.

There was a short interval after the passage of the Hitchcock resolution, during which the Senate dismissed another bill. At 2 P. M., according to parliamentary procedure, Senator Johnson called up his resolution. The Vice President put the question, and the few Senators present voted aye.

The Johnson resolution reads:

"Whereas the Peace Treaty has been completed and has been delivered to the representatives of Germany; and

"Whereas, a synopsis only of the treaty has been given publicity in the United States, and our people are entitled to know its full contents, and to what, if any, engagements they may have been committed; and

"Whereas, it is reported in the press that the entire treaty has been cabled to the State Department and is now in possession of the State Department;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, That the Secretary of State be, and he is hereby, requested, if not incompatible with the public interest, forthwith to transmit to the Senate the full text of the Treaty of Peace completed at the Paris Conference and delivered to the representatives of Germany."

May Summon Financiers.

WASHINGTON, June 6, (Associated Press.)—There was much speculation tonight as to the turn which the inquiry on the Peace Treaty leak may take. Senator Lodge told the Senate yesterday that he could not reveal the source of his information regarding the treaty copies, and Senator Borah is understood to take the same view.

In some quarters it was suggested that subpoenas might be issued to representatives of any financial interests suspected of having private channels for securing such information. Another opinion was that the inquiry would begin at the other end and would seek to locate first any possible leak among Government officials and attaches.

TAFT HAS NOT SEEN TREATY.

Former President Denies Knowledge of Copies in This Country.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 6.—Here to address the State convention of the New Jersey branch of the League to Enforce Peace, former President Taft tonight declared that he had not seen a copy of the peace treaty and that he did not know whether there were any copies in this country or not.

He said he knew nothing whatever about the treaty except from what he had read in the 20,000-word official abstract already published.

SAYS WILSON INDORSED TREATY AS IT IS NOW

Matin Quotes Him as Asserting It Violates None of the Fourteen Points.

PARIS, June 6.—"I am convinced that our treaty project violates none of my principles," President Wilson is quoted by the Matin as having said when he was made acquainted with the German counterproposals to the treaty.

"If I held a contrary opinion I would not hesitate to confess it and would endeavor to correct the error. The treaty as drawn up, however, entirely conforms with my fourteen points."

SOCIALIST PLEA FOR THE FOE.

French Group in the Chamber Urges Amelioration of Peace Terms.

PARIS, June 6, (Associated Press.)—The Socialist group met in the Chamber of Deputies today and adopted the following resolution:

"This motion expresses the hope that the allied Governments will bring ameliorations to the peace treaty giving it a character more in conformity with the conditions of a just and lasting peace, and, furthermore, that the situation of Germany and the peoples not forming part of the League of Nations be defined more clearly and in a favorable sense."

BRUSSELS, June 6.—The Belgian Socialist Party has decided to present to President Wilson while he is here an address dealing with the treaty of peace. Last evening's newspapers stated that President Poincaré of France would come to Brussels after the visit of President Wilson.

NORWAY'S BLOCKADE VIEWS

She Offers Suggestions to Obviate Bottling Up Germany Again.

CHRISTIANIA, June 6.—The Norwegian Government, replying to a note from the Entente Powers concerning a resumption of the blockade against Germany in case there should be a renewal of hostilities, has submitted some suggestions to the Entente, having as their object the making of such a step unnecessary.

A dispatch from Paris last Monday said that Norway had declined to join in a blockade movement against Germany should the Allies decide on such a course if Germany refused to sign the peace treaty. Previously Switzerland, and later Sweden and Denmark, declined to consider a blockade of Germany on the ground that it would be a breach of their neutrality.

Brockdorff Off for Germany.

REPARATION TERMS WILL BE MODIFIED

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

will, instead, be presented in the form of a supplementary agreement, defining the procedure for the Reparation Commission and prescribing certain instructions for that body which, according to the original draft of the treaty, received a most comprehensive power of action, subject only to the instructions of the powers represented on the commission.

This new solution, which is expected to emerge from the deliberations of the experts, will dodge the fixing of a definite monetary total for reparations, to which the French object on the ground that announcement of any sum which it is considered possible to exact in payment would so disappoint the expectations of the French public as to produce a political upheaval.

It will also evade the indefinite solution written into the draft of the treaty which the Germans declared would leave them toiling to pay off a debt the extent of which was unknown, and with the population in virtual economic slavery to the Reparations Commission for the period of reparations under that clause of the treaty requiring Germany to "devote her economic resources directly to the physical restoration of the invaded areas of the allied and associated Powers to the extent that these Powers may determine."

The instructions to the Reparations Commission in the proposed supplementary agreement will enable the Germans to know at once the amount of reparations due under certain "categories" of reparations, such as pensions, separation allowances, maintenance of war prisoners, and the destruction of ships at a fixed figure per ton.

It was found impossible, however, to fix any total sum for all categories, since the cost of reconstruction and restoration in the devastated regions could not be established until after an extensive survey, and the only general estimate on which the French were willing to act would bring the total to such a high figure, namely, $50,000,000,000 francs, as the experts were quite generally agreed was beyond Germany's power to pay.

In addition to learning at once the definite instructions on which the permanent commission will act, the Germans will also be assured that a certain amount of working capital will be left them, including, probably, tonnage to conduct overseas trade, without which they profess inability to make the required reparations.

It is understood that the question of a plebiscite in Upper Silesia has practically been decided affirmatively.

No change with regard to responsibilities, punishment of the former Emperor or the disposition of the German colonies is regarded as probable.

The changes in regard to reparations will probably delay presentation of the reparations clauses in the Austrian treaty, which will be made to conform to the German provisos under the principle of joint and several responsibility and administration by the same permanent commission.

The British correspondents in Paris have begun an investigation as to why their first dispatches regarding the discussion of the necessity of Peace Treaty changes by the Council of Four were held up for thirteen hours. The dispatches reached the newspapers too late for publication in the current issues.

OFFICIAL BERLIN HOPEFUL.

Believes That Brockdorff Has Paved the Way for Oral Exchanges.

BERLIN, June 5, (Associated Press.)—While the German correspondents at Versailles continue to take a gloomy view of the forthcoming answer to the German counterproposals, official circles in Berlin appear more hopeful regarding the course of events.

The slight tone of optimism which has projected itself into the Berlin estimates of the situation is born of the conviction that a basis for oral negotiations is gradually being created—a position for which Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau and his colleagues in the Peace Commission have been manoeuvering diligently since the first notes were exchanged. A belief prevails in some quarters in the Wilhelmstrasse that the Entente will avail itself of neutral intervention by way of breaking the ice.

Political observers here believe that Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau at present holds a slight strategic advantage for reasons outside those that might be contained in his counterproposals. The trace of optimism which has been asserting itself in the past forty-eight hours is explained by events which it is believed here will ultimately work out to Brockdorff-Rantzau's advantage.

These factors are thought to be found in the Paris strike, fresh efforts at Polish aggrandisement, reported French machinations in Rhenish Prussia, and the rumors of American and British opposition to the Entente terms—all of which, it is believed in Berlin, are conspiring to bring the Entente's alleged adamantine front into immediate jeopardy.

German optimism is based on the expectation that in view of what is termed the liberality and boldness of the German counterdraft, the Entente leaders will not dare, as the optimists say, to assume the moral responsibility of slamming the door in the face of Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau and his fellow-envoys.

AMERICANS REFUSE TO AID RHINE SPLIT

FORBID SHIFT OF GOVERNORS

PARIS, June 6.—American officers at Coblenz, it became known here today, have refused to display posters advertising the Rhenish Republic sent to them by French officers.

COBLENZ, June 4, (Associated Press.)—American authorities here have sent word to the over-President of the Rhine province to ignore orders from Berlin transferring him to another province, the Americans believing that this move was a political one and connected with Berlin's efforts to counteract the movement for the establishment of a Rhenish republic.

It was said in Wiesbaden on Sunday that Berlin had also ordered the removal of the over-President of the Treves district, and that the Americans had instructed that official to ignore his instructions from Berlin. As to just what bearing the German Government's endeavors to change officials at this time has on the republican movement Americans are not certain.

Five political parties in this city have combined in issuing a proclamation protesting against the separation of the Rhinelands from Germany.

BERLIN, June 5, (Associated Press.)—The German Government has curtailed the privileges extended to allied officers and commissions traveling in Germany, explaining its action on the ground that instances have been uncovered of men who were traveling with official permits carrying on political propaganda and circulating abroad reports injurious to German interests.

The Government has decided to exercise active control of all credentials and permits and will confer them only on persons engaged in official work.

WON'T RECOGNIZE DORTEN.

Big Four Are Disinclined to Complicate the Peace Negotiations.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 5.—Although France approves of the recently declared Rhenish Republic, even admitting that it is due in part to French propaganda, there is not the slightest chance of the recognition of Dr. Dorten by the French Republic for some time to come. If an official request for such recognition should come to the Clemenceau Government it would be immediately referred to the Council of Four, and that body would probably ignore it, as any other course would needlessly complicate the already involved business of making peace with Germany.

Although it is admitted in Paris that French propaganda was a factor in the action of the Rhine Valley Germans, it is declared that not the slightest pressure was brought to bear by the presence of French troops. As proof of this the French are daily expecting a declaration of independence from Hanover, where there are no French troops. They have official news on which they base this belief concerning Hanover, and reports come from that region that the people in the theatres are now singing the ancient Hanoverian hymn.

As to the Rhenish Republic movement, already started, it is looked upon by the French Foreign Office as an effort to effect a separation from Prussia, but not as yet from Germany altogether.

FOR FEDERAL HOME LOANS.

$2,000,000,000 Building Plan Introduced by Calder.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—An "own your own home" bill prepared by the Department of Labor was introduced today by Senator Calder, Republican, of New York, and referred to the Banking Committee. A Federal home loan board and home loan banks would be established, through which $2,000,000,000 in assets of building and loan associations throughout the country would be made immediately available for home building.

RENNER IS EXPECTED AT ST. GERMAIN TODAY

ST. GERMAIN, June 6.—Dr. Karl Renner, Chancellor of German-Austria and head of that country's peace delegation, who, with five colleagues, has been at Feldkirch for a conference with Dr. Otto Bauer, the German-Austrian Foreign Minister, is expected to arrive here tomorrow.

BASLE, June 6.—The conference at Feldkirch between representatives of the Austrian Government and Dr. Renner and Herr Schuller of the Austrian peace delegation will end today, and the members of the peace delegation will start immediately for Paris, according to a telegram from Vienna.

The commission appointed by the Austrian National Assembly to discuss the peace terms was to hold a meeting in Vienna today, and on Saturday the National Assembly will hear a report from Foreign Minister Bauer on his conference with Dr. Renner.

VIENNA, June 3, (Associated Press.)—Before leaving this city for a short sojourn in the country, where he will take a rest, President Seitz said regarding the terms of peace:

"They surely are only proposals. What a terrible disappointment America is for me! This is driving me to despair. The terms are also bad for the Allies, as they mean the feeding of Bolshevism, against which we are helpless, especially from the Hungarians, who are meeting with new military successes. I have no power to enforce such terms upon the population of German-Austria and it will be dangerous for the man who signs them."

Dr. Karl Renner will attempt to secure an oral discussion of the terms at St. Germain.

FEAR SCHLESWIG TRANSFER.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 5.—Pressure is being brought on the Government by the shipping interests and some of the inhabitants of Schleswig to prevent that province coming under Danish influence, as stipulated in the Versailles Treaty.

It is believed here that England is responsible for this arrangement for this territory, hoping thus to clip German maritime enterprise.

A well-known diplomat asserted today that England would not have dared push her demands so far if Wilson had not backed her.

Germany promised by the peace treaty of 1866 that a plebiscite should decide the final nationality of North Schleswig, but this diplomat said that the Danishr Government never took the plebiscite clause seriously, and only once, in 1896, Germany was reminded of it when the Danish Prime Minister talked to the German Minister Kiderlen von Waechter about the project of selling St. Thomas to the United States. The Danish Premier said he himself did not favor the sale to America and would much prefer to exchange the islands for Danish villages in North Schleswig. This conversation with Diderlen was reported in Berlin, his letter being submitted to Wilhelm II., who wrote on the margin:

"What Wilhelm the Great reconquered with the sword his grandson will not bargain for a few islands somewhere in distant oceans."

It is asserted that in 1917 the Danish Government practically renounced any claim to Schleswig territory. Dr. Solf, as Foreign State Secretary, announced in a letter, dated Nov. 14, 1918, to Danish authorities, that the German Government was willing that the Wilson principle of self-determination should be applied to any doubtful or wholly Danish district in Northern Schleswig.

It is the opinion here that the Versailles treaty wants to make undisputed German districts Danish to please England.

NO ADRIATIC SOLUTION YET.

PARIS, June 6.—When the Council of Four met this morning Premier Orlando of Italy was absent. This led to the belief that the Adriatic question was again under consideration. It is understood that no further progress has been made by the various elements working on the solution of this problem.

The Italians are showing great uneasiness over the unsettled Adriatic problem, as Premier Orlando insists that it must be settled before the Italian Parliament meets on June 18.

The South Slav delegation here handed to President Wilson yesterday a memorandum regarding the Fiume question, according to the Petit Parisien.

BELGRADE, June 6.—A plebiscite taken on the Island of Chesro, near Fiume, as to union with Italy or Jugoslavia gave the following result in round numbers: Jugoslavia, 5,000; Italy, 3,000.

ERZBERGER FOR SIGNING?

Said to be Preparing a Memorandum Urging Acceptance of Terms.

COPENHAGEN, June 6.—Mathias Erzberger, head of the German Armistice Commission, according to the Deutsche Tageszeitung of Berlin, is preparing a memorandum which, after discussing the peace terms in all their aspects, advocates signing the treaty.

MUNICH EXECUTION STIRS GERMAN UNREST

MUNICH, June 5, (Associated Press.)—Levine Nissen, the Bolshevist agitator who was one of the leaders of the Munich Communist Soviet régime, was executed at noon today at Standelheim, outside the capital.

He was convicted yesterday and the Bavarian Cabinet refused to commute his sentence, maintaining that he was the cause of the civil war in Bavaria and deserved no mercy.

LONDON, June 6.—The execution in Munich of Levine Nissen is resulting in unrest throughout Germany, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen says. The Majority Socialists are joining a strike movement begun by the Soldiers' and Workers' Councils and Executive Committees of the Greater Berlin factories, which protested against the sentence of the Bavarian Communist.

Strikes have broken out in Nuremberg and Munich. A strike at Leipsig has resulted in street fighting.

It seems probable that Levine Nissen, named above, is identical with the Bolshevist leader Levien, who figured prominently in the press dispatches in connection with the Munich Soviet régime.

The arrest of the Communist leader "Levine," who had previously been referred to as editor of the Red Flag of Munich, was announced in a Munich message of May 15, and a dispatch earlier this week reported his sentence to death after a two days' trial.

KOLCHAK'S ANSWER RECEIVED IN PARIS

Is Said to be Satisfactory Acceptance on the Whole of Allies' Recognition Terms.

SIBERIA MAKING PROGRESS

PARIS, June 6.—An answer from Admiral Kolchak, head of the All-Russian Government at Omsk, to the allied proposals has been received by the French Foreign Office. It is understood that the answer, in the main, is a satisfactory acceptance.

Admiral Kolchak's reply, however, makes reservations concerning a Constituent Assembly, and also in respect to dealings with new States formed from Old Russia.

OMSK, May 27, (Associated Press.)—The Siberian Zemstvos, which were organized in 1917 are, with the exception of two or three in the far eastern section of the country, in harmony with the Omsk Government, and M. Pepelaev, Minister of the Interior, declared today that the exceptions were dominated by new settlers who are not representative of the populations of the districts affected.

The Government is encouraging the work of the Zemstvos, stipulating only that persons to become eligible to office must be residents of a district for one year, a condition which has not been enforced heretofore. M. Pepelaev remarked today that "with the growth of the Government there is less and less evidence that the Zemstvos are mixing in politics."

Summarizing the relief work undertaken by the Government, he said 1,000,000 rubles had been sent to Ufa; 1,000,000 each to Perm and Ekaterinburg, and 5,000,000 to Irkutsk. A fund of 6,000,000 rubles will be placed at the disposal of the Zemstvos to fight epidemics, and it is further planned to spend 20,000,000 more on general relief when the country is freed from the Bolsheviki.

The Social Revolutionists, the Social Democrats, and the labor unions in Perm have united in a bloc and published a declaration calling upon all Democratic and Socialist organizations to participate in the regeneration of Russia and in the building up of an army capable of fighting against the enemies of the Russian State. The declaration announces that the organs of local self-government, municipalities, and Zemstvos, as well as all other public bodies, will support the Omsk Government against all anarchistic elements.

Recruiting for the army is progressing well. The Ministry of War reports that at the town of Atchinsk, near Perm, which was recently taken from the Bolsheviki, 2,870 men out of 3,100 reported for duty. In the Krasnoyarsk district, where there are several Bolshevist centres, 93 per cent. of the men eligible for service have responded, he says.

An eight-hour working day has been decided upon by Leonid Shumilovsky, Minister of Labor, a Social Democrat and member of the Constituent Assembly.

"The interests of the workingman can be safeguarded and the living conditions for the working class can be improved only on condition that the industries in the country will exist and develop," he says in a statement. "The degradation of the industries means poverty and utter need first of all for the workingman. We have decided upon an eight-hour working day in all the industries. The State is interested in establishing working conditions under which the generations should grow up strong physically, morally, and intellectually. We have introduced sickness and unemployment insurance. Employment bureaus, with the help of the Government, will be established everywhere on the territory cleared from the Bolsheviki.

"The Ministry of Labor greets the tendency of the workingmen to organize themselves into unions, considering it in the interest of the State that the workingmen should form themselves into an organized, disciplined body."

If the Government succeeds in clearing Russia of the Bolsheviki this year it will be largely able to meet the demands for grain to supply the people, according to M. Petrov, Minister of Agriculture. He bases his estimates on the fact that the yield west of the Urals will be 30 per cent. below normal, although the Siberian crop will be 17 per cent. larger than last year. It is proposed to use the surplus of wheat in Siberia to meet the deficit in European Russia.

It is said that quite a proportion of the wheat crop of the last three years is still to be thrashed in outlying districts, due to the fact that transportation facilities were such that the grain could not be brought to market and the additional consideration that there was no currency for the purchase of grain. This wheat may be made available for the coming year. Harvesting machinery now lying in Archangel has been ordered to Siberia, and it is expected to arrive in time for the harvest.

In 1917 there were 5,920,000 acres of wheat in Siberia, exclusive of the Uralsk, Turgai, and Yakutsk districts. The acreage shows a large increase for 1918 and 1919. The only districts requiring Government aid are Orenburg, Omsk, and Semiryetchensk.

GERMANS AID BOLSHEVIKI.

Said to be Working Against Both Esthonians and Lithuanians.

STOCKHOLM, June 6.—German forces on the Esthonian front are aiding the Bolsheviki, an official statement issued at Esthonian headquarters says. The statement reads:

"There was violent fighting on the Gatschina front throughout Tuesday and the battle was renewed on Wednesday. On the southern front the German Landwehr, instead of pushing the enemy back from Riga, is trying by all means to advance to our line."

The movements of three cavalry detachments are specified in this connection in the report.

A statement issued yesterday by the Lithuanian National Council in New York says:

"Marshal Foch has demanded of the Germans at Spa that they leave Lithuania on account of German treachery in surrendering Lithuanian territory to the Bolsheviki and Poles. The Lithuanian delegates in Paris have just submitted original documents to the Peace Conference proving this, with a multitude of facts. The Germans plunder Lithuanians, shoot them down, arrest them, and make requisitions. They forcibly free Bolshevist agents arrested by the Lithuanians and sell to the Bolsheviki contraband supplies, including sugar, salt, arms, bombs, and ammunition, and often are found standing in the same ranks with the Bolsheviki.

"They purposely betray Lithuanians into Bolshevist hands. In Alytia German troops surrendered forty machine guns to the Bolsheviki. Premier Slevevicius, in a letter from Lithuania, says the Germans wanted to surrender a Lithuanian battalion to the Bolsheviki near Zyzmarsasi for 9,000,000 marks, and at the time the Poles took the Grodno district the Germans surrendered Grodno City to the Poles for 3,000,000 marks."

SETBACK FOR KOLCHAK ADMITTED IN COMMONS

Churchill Warns Against Encouraging Extravagant Hopes of Army's Advance.

LONDON, June 6.—Speaking in the House of Commons today, Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War, said:

"We are endeavoring to wind up our affairs in North Russia, which we hope will become self-supporting before the end of the Summer, enabling us to leave, having honorably discharged our duty."

Mr. Churchill said the check to Admiral Kolchak's advance was now more pronounced, and that no attempt should be made to encourage extravagant hopes in that quarter.

The Minister of War explained that all the British were doing was to supply Admiral Kolchak with munitions, the small British force in Siberia being hundreds of miles from the firing line. The British troops in the Caucasus, he said, were simply remaining there until the Peace Conference decided what would be the future of that country.

Under pressure from British forces the Bolsheviki have evacuated Alexandrovsk, in the Trans-Caspian territory on the eastern shore of the Caspian Sea, according to advices received here. The British had bombarded the town and British airplanes had dropped bombs on it.

On the other hand, the Bolsheviki have recaptured Sarapul, on the Kama River southwest of Perm, which was one of the important towns taken by Admiral Kolchak's forces in their Spring advance, a Bolshevist wireless message asserts. The dispatch also asserts that the Bolsheviki are continuing to advance in this region.

BERNE, June 6, (French Wireless Service.)—Lithuanian troops advancing from Vilna are occupying Kecia, in the direction of Dvinsk, information received by the Lithuanian Press Bureau here says.

Agents of the American Food Commission are very active in Lithuania and are welcomed everywhere, the bureau announces, adding that the Lithuanians see in the United States "the liberator of their country from German oppression and Bolshevism."

ARCHANGEL, June 5, (Associated Press).—The American gunboat Sacramento arrived in Archangel today, accompanied by a freight steamer with a cargo of American seed and grain, which will relieve the serious shortage existing. Eagle boats which started with the Sacramento have not been able to negotiate the ice floes in the White Sea, which are still lingering in some localities.

LENIN TIRED OF STRUGGLE.

Writes Pessimistic View of Outlook to Russian in Geneva.

GENEVA, June 6, (Associated Press.)—An authentic autograph letter from Nikolai Lenin, the Bolshevist Premier, to a Russian comrade here, in which Lenin says he is growing tired of the struggle against the superior forces and organization of the Allies, has been shown to the correspondent.

The letter, which is dated Moscow, May 4, complains also of the growing weakness of Lenin's party when, it says, further strength is required. Lenin adds that the financial situation is becoming worse, and concludes with the remark that "we are in great trouble."

MAGYAR RED TROOPS INVADE SLOVAKIA

Czech Army Reported Unable to Halt Advance Into Richest Districts of Country.

PRAGUE, June 5, (Associated Press.)—Admission was made today by Dr. Irobar, Czech Minister here, that the Hungarian Bolshevist army had achieved an unexpected success over the Czech troops in Slovakia, who were reported still to be retreating.

The situation in Slovakia is said to be very serious, with the richest districts in the hands of the Hungarians, whose advance, it is believed, can be checked only by the assistance of French troops.

The damage caused by the advance of the Hungarians is said to exceed 1,000,000,000 crowns, according to the estimate of Dr. Irobar.

VIENNA, June 6, (Associated Press.)—The Hungarian Soviet troops have continued to carry out minor successes against the Czechs. They have crossed the Danube at Gran, and Pressburg is menaced, notwithstanding the fact that two French generals have been placed in command of the Czech operations.

Hungarian counter-revolutionary forces have become more active and have captured the western part of the city of Odenberg, 87 miles southeast of Vienna. There have also been uprisings in Southwestern Hungary which were put down by M. Samelli, who was sent by Lenin.

Bela un. has issued a memorial to President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George, declaring that if Czech outrages against the Hungarians are not stopped he will retaliate.

"I think that position was an entirely sound one and might have been used to exclude even a resolution exciting such general sympathy in the United States as that offered by my colleague. But that objection can no longer exist. The Peace Conference has passed far beyond its primary business of making peace with Germany and bringing peace to the world. It has entered into the entire sphere of international relations the world over.

"More than that, it has literally entered upon the settlement of a question which is wholly ours, and that is the Monroe Doctrine. In the first draft of the treaty presented to us the Monroe Doctrine was left somewhere among the voices in the air and the visions that are seen, and we were told that it was all right because it had been extended to the whole world, which took away its entire meaning and characteristics. Now, however, there comes back a second draft, with a direct statement in regard to the Monroe Doctrine, putting it in a far worse position, in my judgment, than it was under the first draft, and that was far enough."

Senator Lodge read Article 21 of the League of Nations covenant, and said that while the President called this "reservation" of the Doctrine "a new article" the British offered an explanation of the Doctrine, and asserted if there was ever any dispute over the meaning of the theory "between the American and the European powers the League is there to settle it."

"In the first place," Senator Lodge continued, "the Monroe Doctrine is not an international understanding and never has been. At the last Hague convention our delegates specifically reserved it. It never has been formally acknowledged and accepted by any other nation. It is not a regional understanding. I do not know who invented that strange phrase, but it is not what the Monroe Doctrine is.

"The Monroe Doctrine is our policy and was never anything else. Our fellow republics to the south have sometimes attacked it, and have sometimes run to it for shelter with great enthusiasm; but it is not their doctrine. It is ours, and it rested in the first place upon the broad principles of preservation.

Calls Resolution Courteous.

"That is the bottom of the Monroe Doctrine. It is all ours, and now it is carried into this League of Nations. It is already interpreted by England, although it is wholly our affair, and it is to be determined in the future by the League of Nations.

"Any question which arises in regard to the Monroe Doctrine, in my judgment should be decided by only one power, and that is the power that has declared, interpreted, and maintained it, the United States.

"I do not mean at this moment to enter into any elaborate discussion of this point, but I bring it up because my colleague has offered an amendment for which I shall vote, which might have been objected to in the past on the ground that the nations associated against Germany should not look into each other's affairs; but when it comes to those nations taking the Monroe Doctrine, our doctrine, our policy, and foisting it on the League of Nations, and then telling us that they are going to interpret it, I think they have carried their flight so far that if we choose to make a few suggestions about other matters it is quite legitimate and courteous to do it."

Senator Fall of New Mexico said:

"In the event that a revolution arose in Ireland or in any other country it would become the duty of the League of Nations, upon the ground that the peace of the world might be threatened, to lend assistance to put down that revolution, exactly as France acted as mandatary and Austria acted as mandatary for the Holy Alliance in 1822 and 1823."

Collegians Plead for Irish.

BOSTON, June 6.—At an intercollegiate mass meeting in Faneuil Hall tonight, called by the Irish Victory Fund Committee, representatives of a number of colleges adopted a resolution indorsing "the independent nation of Ireland" and urging that representatives of the new Irish Republic be permitted to present their case at the Peace Conference.

Among the institutions represented were Harvard, Tufts, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston University, Wellesley, and Radcliffe.

Ryan Applauds Senate Action.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—Michael J. Ryan, one of the three delegates sent to the Peace Conference by the Irish Race Congress held here several months ago, in a statement tonight on the action of the Senate in adopting an Irish resolution, said he rejoiced at the "proof that a part of the Government of America still remains loyal to the best traditions of the Republic."

"I am sure," he said, "that the overwhelming majority of the people of America will thank the Senators of the United States for the action this day taken. The vote of the Senate will hearten every lover of liberty the world over, and will, I trust, be responded to and complied with by President Wilson and his appointees in Paris."

WALSH MAKES DEMAND ON PEACE CONFERENCE

6,000-Word Report on Ireland Is Presented to Wilson for Immediate Action.

PARIS, June 6.—Frank P. Walsh, one of the delegates of the Irish Societies in the United States, who visited Ireland recently, has presented a demand to President Wilson that the Peace Conference investigate the Irish question.

His demand is accompanied by a 6,000-word report on the observations made by Mr. Walsh and his colleagues, Michael J. Ryan and Edward F. Dunne, during their visit to Ireland.

In the event of Mr. Wilson's failure to push the matter, Mr. Walsh says he will present his request to the Italian delegates, and, failing there, to the British colonies.

The investigation is asked by Mr. Walsh "in accordance with a resolution in the United States Senate."

One copy of the report has been sent direct to President Wilson and another has been addressed to him through Secretary of State Lansing. A copy also has been sent to Premier Lloyd George.

Accompanying the report, it was understood, was a list of Irish political prisoners and a compilation of alleged atrocities committed in Ireland by the British authorities.

It was understood the documents would be made public tonight.

LODGE PRESENTS PROTEST BY FIUME

RESISTANCE IS THREATENED

City Will Not Tolerate That Its Fate Be Decided Without Its Consent, Delegate Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—A protest against President Wilson's attitude toward Fiume was read in the Senate today by Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, in the form of a cablegram from Adrea Ossinack, the plenipotentiary representing Fiume at the Peace Conference. The cablegram insisted that Fiume should have the right to self-determination, and accused the President of showing an "openly hostile attitude toward aspirations for which the Italian people shed so much blood." It reads:

"National Council assembled in emergency meeting after animated debate unanimously approved following appeal to United States Senate. When Peace Conference is about to decide destinies of world, Fiume, represented by National Council elected by plebiscite and by its Mayor elected years ago by free ballot, appeals to Senate of great American people invoking its aid to prevent perpetration of one of greatest injustices known to history. On Oct. 15, before downfall of Austro-Hungarian monarchy, a Deputy of Fiume declared in Hungarian Parliament that Fiume, which had always been Italian and wished to remain Italian, would exercise right of self-determination under its special statute of free national Italian commune united as corpus separatum to Hungarian Crown.

"Thirtieth of October, when result of battle of Vittorio Veneto not yet known, Fiume, abandoned by Hungarian authorities, we acquired complete independence, and, despite presence Croatian soldiers who occupied city by force, by plebiscite based on right of self-determination, proclaimed its annexation to Italy, to which Fiume always bound not less than Trent and Trieste by common language, customs, feelings. Same time National Council declared it placed decision under protection of America, mother of freedom and universal democracy, awaiting sanction of Peace Conference.

"All Peace Conference had to do was to take cognizance of annexation to Italy proclaimed by Fiume, and all Italy had to do was to say whether she accepted this annexation or not. But Fiume, to its great surprise, sees that its right to self-determination, freely exercised and placed under protection of America, was denied by President Wilson, who, in fourteen points proclaimed the fundamental principle and right, refused to very city which offers world unique typical instance of self-determination.

"President Wilson unable to deny historical right of Fiume, free through centuries, or national right, because all expert Americans, French, Spanish, and even enemy journalists, had to recognize Italian character of the city whose Mayors and deputies have always been Italian, in whose archives and municipal acts not one document can be found not in Italian. Since President could contest neither historical nor national right to self-determination of Fiume, he had recourse to economic arguments, to give Fiume status of free city, thus insuring, in disguised form, preponderance Jugoslav influence.

"President declared Fiume natural point of hinterland west of Jugoslavia, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and for this reason wishes insure Jugoslav influence, so that city may gradually fall into hands of Jugoslavia. President forgets he thus favors only one of hinterland peoples, forgets that only 7 per cent. of total movement of part of Fiume accounted for by trade Croatia and Slavonia, forgets that competing agricultural countries of Jugoslavia and Hungary can only obtain from Italy, mainly an industrial country, satisfactory guarantees of impartiality in administration of port, in interests of inland traffic, as Italian commercial interests would not be in contact with those of hinterland.

"President Wilson is silent when reminded that the treaty of London insures Jugoslavia over 1,000 kilometers of coast with twelve ports, and refuses to understand argument which shows needs of traffic do not require political possession of a city and that Fiume can be annexed to Italy without injury to interests of hinterland peoples.

"If Fiume is a free port no hindrance will be placed in the way of trade of hinterland. President Wilson's refusal to respect self-determination Fiume strange. For while he thus solemnly denes principle he himself proclaimed, it also shows openly hostile attitude toward aspirations for which Italian people shed so much blood and sustained such heavy sacrifices, and favors those Croats, Slovenes who fought to last in ranks of Austro-Hungarian army against Entente.

"Citizens of Fiume appeal to the sense of justice of American Senate, hoping it will not permit in the name of the great people of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington, so gross an injustice to the community.

"Fiume wishes to know if the Senate which represents American people approves of policy which outrages the feelings of a city and is offensive to Italian dignity. Fiume wishes to know if the American Senate wishes to share responsibility which Mr. Wilson has assumed before history. Legitimate representatives of Fiume declare to representatives of the American people that Fiume will resist this attempt on its liberties. Fiume will face war, or life or death, and will not tolerate that its fate be decided without its consent. It is prepared to defend itself to the utmost."

PRESS FOR TAX REPEAL.

Garment Retailers' Association Continues Fight on Luxury Impost.

John W. Hahn, Secretary of the National Garment Retailers' Association, who went to Washington in the interest of the repeal of the luxury tax, telegraphed yesterday to the local offices of the association as follows: "Not much chance for immediate repeal of luxury tax."

Acting on this information, the association sent circulars to its members to renew their efforts by various means to have their Congressmen act favorably on the proposed repeal. At the same time, they are to explain to their customers the status of the fight against the luxury tax.

N. & W. Tieup Is Threatened.

ROANOKE, Va., June 6.—A complete tieup of traffic on the Norfolk and Western Railway is threatened by a strike of machine shop employes on virtually the entire system. Labor leaders said today that unless some agreement was reached within twenty-four hours enginemen and trainmen would be called out. The Railroad Administration in Washington has been notified.

It is estimated that the tonnage to be assigned under this arrangement will approximate 170,000 tons.

BESSARABIAN APPEAL AGAINST RUMANIA

Delegation in Paris Protests Against Proposed Absorption of Province by Kingdom.

PARIS, June 6, (Associated Press.)—The delegation in Paris which is representing the interests of Bessarabia is agitated over the discovery that the proposition made by the Allies to Admiral Kolchak, head of the Omsk Government, with regard to his desire for allied assistance, contained a clause which is declared to stipulate that Kolchak shall permit Rumania to retain control of those sections of Bessarabia inhabited by people of Moldavian nationality.

In the opinion of Alexander Kroupensky, former President of the Bessarabian Provincial Zemstvos, the head of the Paris delegation, this will be equivalent to giving Rumania all of Bessarabia, as the Moldavians live in the centre of that province. The committee does not believe that Kolchak will accept this provision, because it is a matter which Russians insist must be referred to the Russian Constituent Assembly and the population be consulted.

Since early in 1918 Bessarabia has been virtually a Rumanian province, occupied by Rumanian troops and dominated by them. The Rumanians have a Director General there and claim the right to control the country because of a resolution to unite with Rumania, which was passed by a Bessarabian Assembly. The Bessarabian delegation now in Paris alleges that this Assembly was in no sense a representative one, and that it was dissolved by the Rumanians immediately after it had voted for union.

FEWER SPEED VIOLATORS.

Traffic Court Has Light Day, and House Leaves for Vacation.

Compared to other recent days it was a light day in the Traffic Court yesterday. Magistrate House left at the end of the day for his vacation, and before he went he heard 116 cases, of which 50 cases were for speeding. The few cases that he left over were heard by Magistrate Alexander Brough. In disposing of the case of an acquaintance, whom he fined $5 for violating the eight-foot section of the law, Magistrate House told of his own experience while on his way to court.

Miss Leila Kerr, 30 years old, of 353 West Eighty-fourth Street, daughter of Walter Kerr, President of the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company of 52 Wall Street, pleaded guilty to operating her automobile on Park Avenue at twenty-six miles an hour as a second offense.

"I don't like to say harsh things," said Magistrate House, "but as sure as you are here before me now, if you ever come back again you will lose your license to drive. I have been sending a great many repeaters to jail because we are going to discourage people from coming back here again." Miss Kerr was fined $50, which she paid.

Patrolman Joseph R. Wallace, chauffeur for Chief Inspector John Daly, was the complainant against Israel Nomoff, 22 years old, a chauffeur of 103 Forsyth Street. He was charged with not keeping to the right at Park Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, causing a collision with the Chief Inspector's automobile.

This journey, a nine-minute ride by air, was taken by Mrs. Frank Wright of the Tedesco Country Club, Swampscott. Advertising was dropped from the air on the trip, and merchandise was taken back to Swampscott.

The company plans daily flights between Boston and the North Shore Summer resorts, on express, passenger-carrying, and advertising business. The proposed schedule of the company shows the running time to be eighteen minutes from Boston to Magnolia and thirty-seven minutes from Boston to Portsmouth, N. H.

bomb investigation. Why this selection was made he did not explain, except to say that Philadelphia was a convenient central point between New York and Washington, where important ends of the investigation are being made.

Special operatives have been put to work in all three cities, but Mr. Flynn will supervise the entire proceeding.

Mr. Flynn said that no tangible evidence had been obtained aside from the hat worn by the bomber blown to fragments while attempting to wreck the house of Attorney General Palmer in Washington.

"The public apparently expects us to do superhuman work in running this thing down," he said. "It is a complicated job and we must be given reasonable time in which to get a start.

"We are checking up on the movements of every known anarchist and radical in the country to ascertain where he was on Monday night. This may take a month, but we believe it will lead to something. At present there are no arrests in sight."

The Federal investigators and the city police and detective force are co-operating in the investigation.

TO HEAR SYRACUSE MINISTER.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 6.—Believing that a complete account of the adventures in New York City of the Rev. D. James Charbonnier of this city will throw added light on Bolshevist activities in that city, the Federal Department of Justice will question Mr. Charbonnier.

The decision to question the local minister came as a result of his revelations at a meeting of the Syracuse Methodist Preacehrs' Association. Mr. Charbonnier explained that, while in New York on business with the Board of Foreign Missions he commented on the weather with a stranger. From the weather the talk changed to other subjects, in the course of which the minister stated that a few years before, while stationed in Paterson, he had met a number of anarchists and socialists.

This remark aroused great interest on the part of his listener, who asked the minister if he would be willing to speak before a large gathering of men who were contemplating a strike and who were interested in a change in the tide of events.

Mr. Charbonnier declared that he would be glad to go before the meeting if he could speak on the subject of "The Church and the Laboring Man."

Education and Military Training Made Compulsory — All Class Distinction Abolished.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The first copy of the newly proclaimed Constitution of the Ta Han (Korean Republic) was received in this city today and made public by Dr. David Lee, General Manager of the Korean National Association. The text of the Constitution is as follows:

"1. The Ta Han (Korean) Republic shall follow republican principles.

"5. The citizens of the Ta Han Republic shall have the right to vote for all public officials or to be elected to public office.

"6. Citizens will be subject to compulsory education and military service and payment of taxes.

"8. The Ta Han Republic will extend behevolent treatment to the former imperial family.

"9. The death penalty, corporal punishment, and public prostitution will be abolished.

"3. All political offenders shall be specifically pardoned.

"4. We will observe all treaties that shall be made with foreign powers.

"5. We swear to stand by the independence of Korea.

"6. Those who disregard the orders of the Provisional Government will be regarded as enemies of the State."

tectives working under Inspector Faurot have been reinforced by detectives from the Homicide and Narcotic Squads. The men of the last named squad are aiding in the work of listing the anarchists who were in this city last Monday and in the week or ten days preceding that date.

Detectives from other cities who will work with the New York police in the effort to trace all anarchists and other extreme radicals here are expected to arrive today. These detectives are coming from Chicago, Pittsburgh, and other large Eastern and Middle Western cities.

Pietro Cialdelli, 27 years old, a longshoreman, of 4,507 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday by Detective Frank Ruddy and Warrant Officer Peter Dalton of the Fifth Avenue Police Court, at his home on the charge of beating his wife, Margaret, 20 years old.

Mrs. Cialdelli informed the police that she had been married to the man only three months and that he had treated her cruelly. He had told her, she said, that he was an anarchist and had been selected to kill President Wilson upon his return from abroad. The wife told the police to be careful in arresting her husband, as he was a dangerous man and had weapons in his home.

The police went to the home of Cialdelli and found him drinking wine. He attempted to resist but was soon subdued. A huge knife was found in his possession. The police also found six pamphlets printed in Italian, said by the authorities to be of the anarchistic type. The prisoner was arraigned before Magistrate Geismar in the Fifth Avenue Police Court on the charge of beating his wife and for possessing a dangerous weapon. He was held in $500 for the first offence and $2,000 for the second for examination today.

SEES NO ROOM FOR REDS.

Senator Frelinghuysen Addresses Newark Normal School Alumni.

United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, speaking in Newark yesterday at the jubilee celebration arranged by the alumni of the Newark Normal School in honor of its purchase by the State from the city, gave his reason for not favoring the school federalization bills in Congress.

"A good many educators have written to me urging me to support the bills," he said. "I object to the State of New Jersey contributing several millions and receiving back practically less than it pays in. Another thing I do not want the withering hand of politics to interfere in the educational system of America."

Declaring there are some people who are dissatisfied with the form of Government in this country the Senator said: "After 140 years of happiness and prosperity our system of government is the best in the world today. There can be no red flag, there can be no black, there can be no international flag in America today. There can be only one flag—the star-stangled banner."

TO HONOR SOLDIERS TODAY.

Kingsbridge and Nearby Communities to Welcome Sons in War.

Residents of Kingsbridge, Riverdale, Spuyten Duyvil, Mount St. Vincent, Marble Hill, and Fieldston will formally welcome home today the boys of that neighborhood who served in the world war. For several weeks past a committee, which includes George W. Perkins, Major Ivy Lee, Miss Giulia Morosini, Mrs. Edward Carse, and Archibald Douglas, has been arranging for the event, which takes place this afternoon and evening.

A parade at 2 o'clock will mark the beginning of the celebration. At the head of the procession a service flag containing 623 stars will be carried by a guard of honor. The men who have been released from the service will be next in line, escorted by the Van Cortlandt Chapter of the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, delegations from fraternal and religious organizations and school children. The parade will start at Broadway and 225th Street and end at the Horace Mann School, Riverdale.

The paraders will be reviewed at Broadway and 238th Street by Brig. Gen. Brice P. Disque, Borough President Henry Bruckner, District Attorney Francis Martin, County Judge Louis Gibbs and clergymen from the communities represented. The march will be halted for a few moments in front of the reviewing stand while General Disque pins gold service stars on twenty-seven mothers of the district whose sons have made the supreme sacrifice.

Following the parade, athletic contests will be held at the Horace Mann School. Prizes have been contributed by residents, and during the games refreshments will be served by the Red Cross workers. At 7 o'clock a dinner will be given to the men in the gymnasium of the school. Mr. Douglas will preside, and the speakers will include Mr. Perkins, Cleveland H. Dodge, and Major Wilbur T. Wright.

The day's celebration will close with a dance at the Riverdale Country School, for which an orchestra has been provided by Miss Morosini.

TO ADVERTISE FOR RECRUITS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The War Department announces that the Secretary of War this morning approved the completed plan for the expenditure by the War Department of $185,000 for newspaper advertising to secure recruits for the army. This money will be spent during the month of June, the advertising beginning on or about June 16 and continuing until about the end of June.

"Advertisements will appear," an announcement read, "in all daily papers printed in English in all of the fifty-five large cities in which are the principal recruiting offices of the army. The inadequate size of recruiting offices in other cities makes it inadvisable, as a business matter, to place newspaper advertising in those cities, since the staff is not available to do the preliminary and follow-up work which every advertiser on a business basis recognizes as an essential part of a properly conducted advertising campaign."

MANY WELCOME COL. GRANT

Five boatloads of Brooklynites went down the bay yesterday to greet Colonel Sydney Grant, former commander of the old 13th Regiment, who returned on the Pannonia as a casual. Colonel Grant, who has been identified with the National Guard for more than thirty-five years, received the decoration of the Legion of Honor for the part he played as Chief of Construction at the base ports. The regiment which he commanded was reorganized as the 59th and 70th Coast Artilleries, and he went to France with the corps. He was there relieved of his command to take the post of Chief of Construction. The Pannonia brought back 2,553 troops attached to casual companies.

Other steamers docking yesterday were the Pretoria, with 2,986 troops of the 36th Division; the Cecilia, with 2,054 men of the 90th Division, made up of drafted men from Texas and Oklahoma; the Britannia, with 956 soldiers, many of them ual companies, and the Duca d'Aosta, with 1,750 soldiers from Southern States on board.

REMOVE DRAFT OBJECTOR.

Baldwin Is Taken Off Committee by Social Work Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 6.—The delegates to the National Conference of Social Work today removed Roger N. Baldwin from membership on the Executive Committee of the organization because of his conviction upon the charge of violating the provisions of the selective service law in refusing to submit to physical examination. Baldwin, who had served as director of the National Civil Liberties Bureau, was sentenced last October to one year in prison after his trial before Judge Mayer in the Federal Court in New York.

When the question of approval of the personnel of the various divisions came up at the convention A. P. Thorne, Commissioner of Charities in Bridgeport, Conn., declared that Baldwin's name should be removed from the committee in the division on industrial and economic problems. The vote on the proposal was 258 to 214.

Delegates who declare that the organization has many radicals among its members said that they would attempt to cause the removal of other committee members. The division of agencies and institutions has adopted a resolution calling for the resignation of Owen R. Lovejoy, General Secretary of the National Child Labor Committee, who was elected President of the conference this week, and it is predicted that the fight against him will be pressed tomorrow.

TRANSANDINE ROAD BLOCK.

Snowslides Make Traffic Impossible Before September.

BUENOS AIRES, June 5.—The heaviest snowstorms in recent years have probably stopped communication between Argentina and the United States by way of the Trans Andine Railway and the west coast until Spring.

Snow slides, one of which is estimated to have carried down a hundred tons of snow, have torn up the Transandine Railway at points and wrecked the bridges, making it impossible to operate the biweekly train between Buenos Aires and Valparaiso.

Several prominent North American business men were among those caught in the snows of the Andes and forced to return to Buenos Aires to resume their journey northward by the east coast route.

Officials of the Transandine Railway state that it will hardly be possible to repair the road before the Spring months of September or October.

GREECE HONORS OUR NURSES

ATHENS, June 5.—King Alexander today conferred the Medal of Military Merit on the Misses Sarah Addison of Baltimore, Md.; Marie Glauber of Chicago, Ill.; Alma Hartz of Davenport, Iowa; Isabel Martin of San Francisco, Cal.; Emily Porter of Bridgeport, Conn.; Clarissa Blakeslee of Drexel Hill, Penn.; Edith Glenn of Bristol, Penn., and Florence Stone of Painfield, N. J., Red Cross nurses, for their work in fighting the typhus epidemic in Macedonia. Miss Blakeslee contracted typhus while nursing, but has entirely recovered.

The King made a brief address to the nurses, thanking them for saving the lives of a great many Greeks who returned from Bulgaria after the armistice was signed.

JULY PROHIBITION REPEAL DEMANDED

New York Association Sends Protest to Every Congressman and House Committee.

CALL IT ECONOMIC MISTAKE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Members of Congress and of the Judiciary Committee of the House today received a protest against the enforcement of national war-time prohibition from the Association Opposed to National Prohibition, an organization with headquarters in New York City, of which James Arthur Seavey is the Managing Director, with headquarters at 19 West Fourty-fourth Street. The Directors of the Association are Arthur Coppell, of Maitland, Coppell and Company, bankers; Michael Friedsam, President of B. Altman and Company; Joseph W. Harriman, President of the Harriman National Bank; Percival S. Hill, President of the American Tobacco Company; Laurence McGuire, President of the U. S. Realty and Improvement Company, and Cornelius J. Sullivan, an attorney.

The letter is signed by Messrs. Harriman, Coppell, McGuire, and Seavey. The protest is made on the basis that, as viewed by the association there is no ground for making the United States bone dry before Jan. 1, thereby depriving the liquor interests of opportunity to dispose of their stock and throwing men out of employment.

"It would seem to us," said the letter, "to be the worst possible scheme of national economics thus to unnecessarily add hundreds of thousands of men to the hundreds of thousands already out of work. Grave dangers threaten our national life. It is not too much, even, to say that the very foundations of this republic, the land of our home and our loved, are threatened."

The protest asserts that Congress, should it refuse to repeal the present legislation, "is bidding to write all over this land the black wraths of famine, the red wraths of discontent, and the pale wraths of death."

The letter reads in part:

"The President of the United States declared after the signing of the armistice that 'the war thus comes to an end.' The necessity for the Food and Fuel Administrations has ceased, munition factories have turned to peace industries, the clothing needs of the army and navy have become normal. As for the need of conservation of man power, the vital problem of the hour is employment for the hundreds of thousands of men, returned soldiers and otners, who are unwilling conscripts in the legions of the unemployed. The army is being demobilized as rapidly as ships can be provided to bring back our soldiers from Europe. 'The war comes to an end.'

"Therefore there is absolutely no reason for the Sheppard amendment becoming operative.

"If this measure were proposed to the Sixty-sixth Congress, it obviously would be overwhelmingly defeated in both Houses. If such a measure were proposed and defeated now, it ought not to be put in force now. Even the framers of the so-called Federal prohibition amendment realized that all persons affected thereby should have a reasonable time in which to get rid of their stocks and business, to adjust their affairs, and, if possible, to readjust their lives. Accordingly the prohibtion amendment allowed one year in which the capital and labor employed in various branches of the liquor business might aranrge for other means of livelihood. If the Sheppard amendment becomes operative these men will be deprived of six of the twelve months given to them under the terms of the Federal prohibtion amendment.

"Moreover, if this amendment goes into effect, nearly 1,000,000 men directly employed in the liquor business, and also thousands of others employed by allied interests, will be thrown out of employment. Most of these men have families dependent upon them."

COMMITTEE HEARS ARGUMENT

"Pros" and "Antis" Present Views on Wartime Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Arguments for repeal of wartime prohibition and legislation for drastic enforcement of that and constitutional prohibition were heard today by the House Judiciary Committee.

Representative Sabbath, democrat, Illinois, in favoring repeal of the wartime act, contended that dealers should have had at least a year in which to close up their business. He urged the committee to interview soldiers back from the front, investigate conditions in the larger cities and not be influenced by "professional prohibitionists."

Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, discussed legal phases of the bill for enforcement of prohibition now before the committee.

In the course of his argument, Mr. Wheeler was questioned by Representative Igoe, Democrat, of Missouri, and others, as to what might happen if some States permitted the manufacture of 2½ per cent. beer, should the amount of alcohol to be used for beverage purposes be limited under the constitutional amendment to one-half of 1 per cent. the Federal law, he contended, would undoubtedly be inforced.

It was the intent of the amendment, he said, to wipe out the liquor traffic, "which has no inherent right to exist," and the only difficulty would come when a State attempted to permit something which the Constitution prohibited.

"When that comes," he added, "we will meet it in the courts."

Richard H. Bond of Baltimore, representing the flavoring extract association, asked for modification of provisions of the bill which, he said, would prevent the manufacture and sale of all extracts.

LAUNCH WORLD 'DRY' LEAGUE

Vandervelde, Lief Jones, and Hercod to Lead Fight on Alcohol.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—With a view to carrying prohibition to all parts of the world, temperance workers assembled here for the annual National Convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America today organized the "World's League Against Alcoholism."

Four Presidents for the new organization were elected as follows: Lief Jones, London, England; Dr. Robert Hercod, Secretary of the International Temperance Bureau, Lausanne, Switzerland; Dr. Howard H. Russell, Westerville, Ohio, founder of the Anti-Saloon League, and Emil Vandervelde, Brussels, Belgium. Ernest H. Cherrington of Westerville, Ohio, was elected General Secretary and instructed to open permanent offices for the body in Washington. Miles Vokes of Toronto was chosen Treasurer.

Countries expected to be represented in the league were said to be Canada, Mexico, Japan, Scotland, Ireland, England, France, Belgium, Denmark, Switzerland, Australia, New Zealand, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, and Italy, in addition to the United States.

Under the terms of a constitution adopted, the meetings of the league will be held once in three years, the first coming probably next October in Washington.

Delegates to the Anti-Saloon League convention adjourned their sessions tonight after passing resolutions in support of a world campaign against liquor and against proposals to relax war-time prohibition enactments.

SERB BORDER MENACED BY BULGAR FORCES

COPENHAGEN, June 6.—A part of the Bulgarian Army has been mobilized and is marching toward the Serbian frontier, a Balkan news agency reports.

If the news concerning the mobilization of a part of the Bulgarian Army and its march to the Serbian frontier be true, it is contrary to the sentiment of the huge quantity of propaganda which has emanated from Sofia since Bulgaria surrendered to General Franchet d'Esperey and accepted such terms as would prevent the mobilization of any part of the Bulgarian Army. Besides, the railways are all in the hands of the Allies.

The Sofia official propaganda, while demanding Dobrudja from Rumania and Macedonia from the Greeks, has turned a most friendly face toward Serbia and Jugoslavia, supporting the latter's claims in the Adriatic against Italy.

A Bulgar mobilization against Serbia, if possible, would at once bring into operation the new Graeco-Serbian defensive treaty, negotiated along the lines of the treaty repudiated by King Constantine in 1915 and signed at Belgrade on April 17, 1919.

URGE TREATY ACCEPTANCE.

League to Enforce Peace Sends Resolutions to the Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 6.—After ex-President Taft had described in a speech what would be the procedure if the Senate failed to ratify the peace treaty, including the League of Nations, the New Jersey Branch of the League to Enforce Peace at a meeting in the State House here today adopted resolutions addressed to the United States Senators Frelinghuysen and Edge of New Jersey and Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, declaring it to be the hope of the league that the peace treaty as it stands may be ratified.

The meeting was a session of the convention which the league is holding here. In addition to Mr. Taft, there were present on the speakers' platform George W. Wickersham, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Dwight W. Morrow, and Helen Varick Boswell, President of the National Women's Republican Association. Dr. Henry van Dyke of Princeton was the presiding officer.

Mr. Taft, in his address said that if any substantial amendment were to be made the treaty would have to go back to the other powers, who signed it for their acceptance and approval.

"This includes," he said, "not only all the allied powers, which formulated the treaty, but Germany also. Upon those who insist that substantial amendments must be made to the treaty will, therefore, fall the responsibility for the indefinite postponement of peace, the continuation of a state of war, and a postponement of settled business conditions in the United States and in the rest of the world."

PUBLISHER ACCUSED OF INCOME FRAUD

Porter, is based on information and belief. Shorn of some of its legal verbiage it reads:

"Jay A. Weber, Secretary of the Pictorial Review Company, a corporation organized under the laws of New York, did knowingly, wilfully and unlawfully promise and offer a sum of money, to wit, $25,000 to a person acting for and on behalf of the United States in an official function, to wit, N. W. Gropper, Internal Revenue Agent, who was acting under the authority of the Treasury Department, with the intent to influence and induce the said Gropper to do and omit to do acts in violation of his lawful duty with the intent to influence the decision and action of said Gropper on matters which might be pending before him in his official capacity.

"That is to say to influence and induce the said Gropper to make a false, misleading and incorrect report to the Bureau of Internal Revenue of the Treasury Department of the liability of the Pictorial Review Company to pay taxes under the act of Congress of Sept. 8, 1916, and Oct. 3, 1917, in violation of his lawful duty."

It is explained in the complaint that: "The sources of deponent's information and the grounds of his belief are in an investigation conducted by him in the course of his duties and also admissions made to him by the said Gropper."

When Weber was arraigned before Commissioner Hitchcock Mr. De Witt asked that bail be fixed at $100,000, because of the belief that Weber's alleged offense was to enable his company to evade payment of taxes on more than $500,000. But Commissioner Hitchcock thought that $50,000 would be sufficient to warrant the appearance of a man representing such large interests as the prisoner. The examination was set down for next Friday.

As soon as Weber was arrested, officials of the Bureau of Internal Revenue seized all of the books of accounts of the Pictorial Review Company and had them carted to their office in the Custom House. Beginning today a thorough investigation is to be made of them in order to learn whether full taxes have been paid, not only for 1917, but for all the years from 1913 to and including 1918.

The co-partnership directory of 1918-19 says that the Pictorial Review Company is capitalized at $800,000 and its officers and Directors are:

President Ahnelt's Statement.

William P. Ahnelt, President of the Pictorial Review Company, issued the following statement last night:

"I have talked with Mr. Weber since the proceedings of this afternoon and I am convinced that he is absolutely innocent of the charge made against him. It is a fact that, for about three weeks, two agents of the Internal Revenue Department have been examining the books and accounts of the Pictorial Review Company, a course which, I understand, is followed as to all business houses which are liable to Federal taxes. These agents were given full access to all of the company's records without the slightest reservation.

"The only criticisms made by them were, as I am informed, as to one or two technical matters presenting legal questions. The company had acted as to these matters under the advice of counsel in preparing its report, and its books show fully the complete transactions. I have no doubt but that in these particulars, as in all others, the correctness of the company's returns will be sustained.

"In any event they could not give rise to any legitimate claim of fraud or misdoing of any kind. It is needless for me to say that no officer of the Pictorial Review Company has, at any time or in any way, shape, or manner, been party to any attempt to influence improperly any official of the Government."

SEES NEW EPOCH FOR THE AMERICAS

Barrett's Review of Convention Results Is Applauded by Commercial Conference.

AIR MAIL MAY BE FACTOR

F. B. Noyes Hails Press Co-operation in This Hemisphere—Praise for Ecuador and Peru.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—A new epoch in Pan American commercial relations will date from the second Pan American Commercial Conference, Director General John Barrett of the Pan American Union, presiding officer of the present initial conference, declared in summing up the achievements of the meeting at its concluding session today.

"Its one great outstanding characteristic," said Mr. Barrett, "has been the expression of the Pan American or all-American idea and viewpoint, in which the interests of Latin America, just as much as those of the United States, have been frankly considered and discussed by the most eminent and skilled authorities of both North and South America."

Mr. Barrett's statement was applauded by the more than 750 representatives of the United States and Latin America who have attended the five-day meeting.

The work and results of the conference were summarized by Mr. Barrett in the form of some eleven points or "conclusions," among which he urged the following:

"The meeting of the unavoidable and pressing financial needs of the Latin-American Governments and legitimate private undertakings, and also the protection and enlargement of the United States-Latin American trade, through the financial and banking interests of the United States providing the necessary money loans and credits.

"A well-defined program for the protection of the patents, trademarks and copyrights of each country in all the other twenty, through the new international bureau established in Havana and the opening of the South American office in Rio de Janeiro.

Frank B. Noyes, President of The Associated Press, at the conference that the exchange of "true, ungarbled and unbiased news," between the North and South American continents, now being brought about by the membership of South American newspapers in the organization, would be "more effective in cultivating and maintaining the relations of friendship and affection that should exist between the two continents of this hemisphere," than all the propaganda that could be fed out by all the publicity agents that could be put to work.

"It is a matter of pride to The Associated Press," said he, "that this invitation to our fellowship was instantly accepted, and that we now list among our members the most important journals in the countries to the south of the United States.

"We are making peoples know each other, know each other's habits, know each other's likes and dislikes, virtues and foibles. It is only within the last few weeks that the people of this country have learned through The Associated Press that football is an international sport in South America."

A. C. Pearson, President of the Associated Business Newspapers, and W. W. Davies, North American representative of La Nacion of Buenos Aires, also spoke, as did Alfredo Collas of New York.

John L. Merrill, President of the All America Cables, declared that his company had dedicated to the services of the Americas 20,000 miles of cables and land lines, and that extensions now under way or planned would bring the total to 30,000, the first extension to be completed being that to Uruguay and Brazil.

Acting Secretary of State Polk sent congratulations and good wishes to the conference at the concluding session, through Assistant Secretary of State Long.

A cable of congratulation and good wishes from the President of Ecuador was read at the morning session.

President-Elect Leguia of Peru, in a cable message to John Cacasour Noel, Assistant to the Director, said:

"I rejoice over the splendid success of the Pan-American Commercial Conference. It will be more than useful to bring American enterprising spirit and capital into closer touch with Peru, where we are longing for both."

The belief that the United States would be able to hold a great part of the Argentine trade, built up during the war, was expressed by Robert Barrett, of the Department of Commerce's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. The United States, he said, had now prepared to give the credits desired by Argentina.

American business men, who have been attacked by Latin American representatives for not paying enough attention to the wants of Latin-American customers, were defended by Dr. W. C. Kretz of New York, who said that the various regulations in South and Central America made it impossible for the business man to know what was desired.

Commercial organizations in the United States were urged by Francisco J. Yanez, Assistant Director of the Pan-American Union, to give travel scholarships to the best students in the foreign trade courses of American universities, affording, he said, a scientific preparation "which will one day revolutionize the relations of the Americas."

ALL READY TO BEGIN BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN

PROMINENT MEN GIVE HELP

Ex-Secretary McAdoo Heads National Activities—Collector Edwards New York Chairman.

The opening gun of the Boy Scout Week campaign, when the Boy Scout organization will make a nation-wide drive for 1,000,000 adult associate members, will be fired tomorrow at a mass meeting at the Hippodrome, according to an announcement made at Scout Headquarters yesterday. The campaign will last from June 8 to June 14, and it will strive to engage the attention of every man in New York City. William G. McAdoo, formerly Secretary of the Treasury, is in charge of national activities for the week, while William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue, has been designated Chairman for New York City.

At the Hippodrome tomorrow, Chairman Edwards will preside and make the introductory address. He will be followed by Mr. McAdoo, Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Father Duffy, Dr. Joseph Silverman, and Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland. The Police Glee Club will sing, accompanied by the Police Band. Elsie Janis, assisted by Ed Wynn, will take over the meeting after the speakers finish.

On Monday the first out-of-door meeting of the drive here will be held on the steps of the Sub-Treasury. Among the speakers will be Martin Vogel, Assistant Treasurer of the United States; Colin H. Livingstone, President of the Boy Scouts of America; Mr. McAdoo, and Daniel Carter Beard, Honorary Vice President of the Boy Scout organization.

New York will be fine-combed by the many teams enlisted for the drive. The Executive Committee under which the Manhattan Canvass Committee will operate includes some of the most prominent men in the borough. The borough itself will be divided into twenty-seven districts, the districts following precinct lines. In each district there will be a team captain in charge to see that the 20,000 solicitors for financial aid and membership get the best results. Firemen and policemen will also aid in the work.

ACCUSES HEAD OF HOSPITAL

Lawyer Asserts Inmates of Dannemora Are Maltreated.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 6.—Governor Smith was informed today by Louis J. Greenspan, an attorney of Jamaica, L. I., that inmates of the Dannemora State Hospital are being maltreated. The Governor asked Mr. Greenspan to put his charges in writing, promising that an investigation would be made.

He charges Dr. John H. Ross as being responsible for the death of two inmates. He asserts the two were beaten to death by guards. Mr. Greenspan said he has the names of the inmates and the guards, but he did not disclose them.

Mr. Greenspan also says that five men are now being illegally housed at the institution. He alleges that Philip Bishop of New York City should have been released three years ago. It is the contention of Mr. Greenspan that Bishop is sane, but is ill and should be removed to a private hospital. He insists that Bishop is locked in a cell having a window only one foot square, and that he gets only a half hour's airing a week. Others for whom Greenspan appears are William Levine, New York; Samuel Brandt, Brooklyn; John Shuman of Elmira, and James Belden of New York.

Dr. Ross was appointed to the institution about a year ago, following the death of Dr. Charles E. North, who was killed by inmates.

ADMITS AIDING TERRORISTS.

Italian Printer Testifies Against Pro-Germans in Zurich Trial.

ZURICH, June 5.—Monani, an Italian printer living in Zurich, testified at the trial of the pro-German agents and anarchists here today that he had had relations with the German terrorist service during the war. The Italian, who is one of the defendants, said he had received considerable sums from a German Lieutenant named Joris and a Hungarian officer named Veugh, the heads of the terrorist organization. He said he had purchased bombs, grenades and revolvers with the money given him.

Dr. Briss, a naturalized Swiss attached to the British Consular Service in Zurich, said he was acquainted with the Hindu revolutionists, Hafis and Chattopasgaya, who had removed their headquarters from Paris to Zurich at the outbreak of the war. Hafis, the witness said, at one time brought a trunk full of explosives from Berlin, explaining that they were intended for the use of revolutionists in Italy. With the explosives, Dr. Briss added, were small bottles containing bacteria for killing horses.

SHELLMAKERS IN FRAUD SUIT

Attempt to Fleece Rumania Through Mails Alleged.

NEW HAVEN, June 6.—Warrants have been issued by John F. Crosby, United States District Attorney for Connecticut, against George E. Matthies of Seymour, a manufacturer; William C. Huntoon, President of the Continental Metals Company of Providence, and Walter H. Hensey, Gilbert J. Loomis, and Frederick White, manufacturers' agents and brokers of New York City, alleging use of the mails in a scheme to defraud the Rumanian Government, it was announced by Federal authorities today. Mr. Matthies is owner and Treasurer of the Seymour Manufacturing Company, which made shells during the war and at whose plant more than 600 men struck yesterday, demanding increased wages.

The warrants charge, also, attempts to bribe a member of a Rumanian commission in this country which was procuring war materials. The contracts are said to have aggregated several million dollars, and the amount involved in the charges is said to be several hundred thousand dollars.

The warrants were issued as the result of a presentment by the Department of Justice to the Federal Grand Jury which was in session at Hartford last week.

TO FIGHT AMERICAN PACKERS

Great Britain to Ask New Zealand's Aid in Price War.

LONDON, June 6.—The New Zealand Government has received advices from London indicating that Great Britain will ask New Zealand to help her fight the American packers, says a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Christchurch, New Zealand.

The suggestion is that an agreement be made to sell New Zealand's meat products in London at a certain price. Then, adds the dispatch, "if the trust reduces prices Great Britain and New Zealand must beat it on its own ground."

A conference of New Zealand producers, it is added, has been convened to discuss the subject.

CALIFORNIANS START A BOOM FOR JOHNSON

Republican Leaders Summoned to Meet in San Francisco on June 14.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—A call for a Republican conference here on Saturday, June 14, to discuss campaign plans in behalf of Senator Hiram W. Johnson as a candidate for President on the Republican ticket was today sent throughout the State by a committee of party leaders. The call denounces what it terms the "blunders" of the Democratic Party and sketches Johnson's career as Governor and Senator.

Two hundred party leaders are expected to answer the call, and it is announced that a big representation from the Progressive wing will attend.

CLEARS FAIR COMMISSION.

Governor's Investigator Finds No Mismanagement.

ALBANY, June 6.—No corruption on the part of the State Fair Commission or the various contractors was shown by an investigation into the affairs of the commission, Charles E. Norris, a special Commissioner, reported to Governor Smith today. Mr. Norris was appointed by the Governor to make an investigation upon the request of the District Attorney of Onondago County. Accompanying the request were allegations of mismanagement, misappropriation of funds, and irregularities of sufficient moment, in his opinion, to warrant a Grand Jury investigation.

"An exhaustive inquiry into all claimed irregularities in the conduct of the business of the commission discloses nothing which would reasonably warrant censure or justify the expense of public hearings," reported Mr. Norris.

Various matters of practice, however, were criticised and the Governor forwarded the report to Lieutenant Governor Walker, Chairman of the State Fair Commission, with the request that the recommendations be considered.

CLOSE CONVALESCENT CAMP

Last of the Patients at Camp Dix Will Be Discharged This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, N. J., June 6.—The Overseas Convalescent Central Camp at Camp Dix was closed today. Forty convalescents remaining out of the thousands who have passed through will be discharged this week.

The convalescent centre was organized to care for overseas men who had recovered from wounds or illness sufficiently to leave the base hospitals, but had not reached full health. Those soldiers were transferred to the centre, where they had the advantage of using every means of modern science in regaining the use of crippled bodies. In hundreds of cases injuries that would have caused permanent disability of arms or legs were remedied to such an extent that the limbs could function normally.

SEEKS NAVY IMPOSTORS.

Admiral Glennon Asks Aid in Catching Swindlers in Sailor Garb.

Rear Admiral J. H. Glennon, Commandant of the Third Naval District, sent a letter to District Attorney Swann yesterday from the Naval Intelligence Officer of the district, H. O. Rittenhouse, asking the prosecutor to aid in the apprehension and punishment of impostors garbed in uniform, who have swindled families and relatives of sailors in the service. Some of these men, it is said, wear borrowed, stolen, or bought uniforms, and others have been dishonorably discharged from the naval service.

According to the information given by the Intelligence Officer the swindlers visit welfare organizations, get the names and addresses of sailors and of their relatives by stealing letters, and then wire to relatives in the names of the sailors for funds, urging some fictitious emergency as a reason for immediate need of money. Relatives of sailors have been fleeced of many thousands of dollars, wrote Mr. Rittenhouse. He declared that one swindler alone was known to have obtained $1,000. Chief Assistant District Attorney Talley notified Admiral Glennon that four of these impostors had been caught and two of them sent to prison. Two others are to be sentenced in a few days.

MAINE COURT BARS GINGER.

Samples Up to 95 Per Cent. Alcohol Used as Beverage There.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 6.—Jamaica ginger was declared to be an intoxicant, and its sale or possession unlawful, in an opinion handed down today by the Supreme Court of Maine.

The evidence showed that Jamaica ginger could be and was used by ordinary persons as a beverage, and in such quantities as to produce intoxication, said the Court. Three different grades containing respectively 95, 28, and 55 per cent. of alcohol, were in the lot seized a year ago, on which the decision was based.

Mr. Glennon, like Daniel L. Ryan, the Deputy appointed on Thursday by Commissioner Delaney, lives in the Bronx. He is a lawyer.

FORD JURY HEARS OF BORDER KILLINGS

MRS. PATTERSON TESTIFIES

Her Deposition Concerning Acquaintance with von Bernstorff Ruled Out by Court.

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., June 6.—Mrs. Nellie F. Austin of Sebastian, Texas, whose husband and son were killed by Mexican raiders on their ranch thirty miles north of the Rio Grande on Aug. 6, 1915, testified today for the defendant in the libel suit of Henry Ford against The Chicago Daily Tribune.

Her testimony and that of V. L. Conrad and Roscoe H. Smith followed the ruling of Judge J. C. Tucker that the defendant might introduce testimony to show actual conditions along the Mexican border, leaving it incumbent upon the defendant to show that the writer of the alleged libelous editorial headed "Ford Is an Anarchist" had such knowledge in a general way at the time he wrote the editorial.

Direct evidence for the plaintiff was concluded in the forenoon. A deposition by Mrs. Elinor Medill Patterson, one of the owners of The Tribune, was ruled out. It related to her acquaintance with Count von Bernstorff in Washington, an acquaintance which Mrs. Patterson deposed she broke off fifteen months before the United States entered the war against Germany. On this point Judge Tucker said:

"It does not strike me her acquaintance with Mr. von Bernstorff would cut any figure in the case unless followed by some overt act or some conspiracy or something of that kind that was connected with this case. And I do not understand that mere acquaintanceship with somebody, even if he was an enemy, ought to prejudice the case."

Counsel for Mr. Ford excepted to the ruling.

Mr. Smith's testimony served as a preface to that of Mrs. Austin. He was at Sebastian, a mile and a quarter from the Austin ranch, working at a corn cutter with Mr. Austin and the latter's son, when a band of Mexican raiders appeared. They robbed the general store and a detachment of them rode away, taking the two Austins with them in a cart.

Mrs. Austin told of her terror when the detachment, numbering five men, entered her house, and of efforts of her husband and son to reassure her. The bandits took a shotgun and a rifle and some ammunition and then rode away, with Mr. Austin and his son still in the cart.

"I must have become unconscious, and when I came to the dog was licking my face," said the witness. "When I could muster the strength I followed and found the bodies of my son and my husband. They were dead—murdered."

Smith's testimony showed that he telephoned to near by villages giving notice of the raid on Sebastian. The nearest troops, he said, were twelve miles away. Two of the band which killed the Austins were afterward captured and hanged.

Mr. Conrad, a civil engineer of Brownsville, related his personal experience with a gang of bandits, who, he said, had fired upon an automobile in which he was taking some workmen to a contract along a country road. The driver received a scalp wound as their machine outdistanced the bandits.

Adjournment was taken to Monday.

SMALL NATIONS IN LEAGUE.

Esthonians, Lithuanians, Letts, and Ukrainians to Ask Recognition.

The organization of the League of the Four Small Nations, made up of Esthonians, Lithuanians, Letts and Ukrainians of America, was announced yesterday by Ivan Narodny, member of the Executive Board of the Esthonian League and Vice Chairman of the new organization. The League of the Four Small Nations was the result of a series of conferences between the executive committees of the American Esthonian League, the Lettish National League of America, the Lithuanian National Council of America, and the Ukrainian National Societies, which represent nearly 3,000,000 persons of these nationalities in America.

Vincent F. Jankus, Vice President of the Lithuanian Council, was elected Chairman; Mr. Maronday Vice Chairman; Vladimar B. Lototsky, editor of an Esthonian newspaper, Secretary, and John Kalnin, Vice President of the Lettish League, Treasurer. According to the announcement the new organization marks the beginning of a systematic attempt to organize and unite on democratic republican principles, somewhat on the order of this country when it consisted of thirteen States. The first step of the league will be to ask the United States Government to recognize the independence of Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Ukrainia.

Judge Gives Blood for His Attendant

OSSINING, N. Y., June 6.—Judge George Cowie of Ossining sacrificed considerable blood today in a transfusion operation in the Ossining Hospital, under the direction of Dr. C. C. Vetoes Higher Pay for Legislators.

BOSTON, June 6.—Governor Coolidge today vetoed the bill recently passed by the Legislature to increase the compensation of members from $1,000 to $1,500 a session, beginning with the present session. In a message to the House the Governor expressed the opinion that the present salary was ample. "Service in the general court," he said, "is optional and not obligatory, not to be undertaken as a profession or a means of livelihood. It is a voluntary public service and should not be made a job."

SOME TARIFF CUTS IN CANADIAN BUDGET

American Foodstuffs, Clothing, Farm Tools, &c., Will Have Same Rate as Britain's.

OTHER PREFERENCES STAND

Protection Principle, However, Generally Upheld by Finance Minister's Proposals.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, June 6.—In the long-awaited budget speech last night of Sir Thomas White, Finance Minister, in the House of Commons, the greatest interest centred in his announcement that the British preference would be restored to its pre-war position by the repeal of the 5 per cent. wartime surtax and that other countries than Great Britain would in future have the benefit of the pre-war tariff only on foodstuffs, linen and cotton clothing, woolen clothing, boots and shoes, fur caps and fur clothing, gloves and mitts, hides, agricultural implements, petroleum oils, mining machinery, bituminous coal, and a few other articles. In other words, the 7½ per cent. war increase on the pre-war tariff in effect against all other countries than Great Britain will become an integral feature of the tariff with respect to all goods except those named.

Reductions are made of 5 cents a pound on coffee and 3 cents a pound on British-grown teas. Wheat and wheat flour are continued on the free list if coming from countries which give such articles from Canada the same treatment. This is also true of potatoes.

The protectionist principle has not been departed from in the budget, and to please the conservative protectionist in the Union Government, no reduction is severe enough to give the Canada manufacturer more competition from his American competitor.

The agricultural implement section of the tariff apparently gave the Government much concern, for the explanation on this point is a long one. The Government has made an arrangement with the railways for equalization of freight rates from Eastern Canada to the West with the rates enjoyed by American manufacturers from Chicago to the Canadian West. This will enable Canadian manufacturers to compete to this extent with their rivals in the Middle Western States. In return for this concession, the railways will get the benefit of the removal of the 7½ per cent. surtax on bituminous coal.

In Sir Thomas announced the Government's intention to undertake a thorough inquiry, when conditions were more stable as to how the tariff could be revised intelligently.

A heavy increase in income taxation was announced. All corporations will pay 10 percent. on their net income in excess of $2,000, while the rate on individuals is substantially increased. Roughly it will now approach the tax in the United States on smaller incomes, but is below that on the larger incomes. Continuation of the business profits tax was also announced.

The reductions on the tariff will cause a loss of revenue of $17,000,000, but the income increases are expected to produce an additional $10,000,000.

The new budget is regarded as a compromise, and it is criticized by extremists on both sides, while most of the "moderates" express themselves as pleased with it.

Silence attended the Minister's remarks while he spoke of the war debt, which generations yet unborn would have to help in paying, but an outburst of applause came when he pointed out that of the country's net debt, which would reach $1,950,000,000 by March 31, 1920, more than one billion and a half would be owed to Canadians in Canada, and that the payment of $115,000,000 yearly in interest charges would not, therefore, detract greatly from the resources of the country, although it would make taxation heavy.

Sir Thomas laid emphasis on the necessity for industrial and commercial expansion as the best way to meet the country's problems. The year's expenditures will reach $320,000,000, while the ordinary revenue is estimated at only $280,000,000, so another domestic loan will be necessary.

DANIELS SAYS NAVY IS TO AID IN PEACE

Tells 454 Annapolis Graduates He Expects a Greater Record Than That in War.

ACADEMY'S LARGEST CLASS

Secretary Declares the Service Demands All Their Energies in Era of New Discoveries.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 6.—Secretary Daniels, in an address at the graduating exercises at the United States Naval Academy here today, declared that the closing of hostilities did not mean that the United States Navy could "rest on its oars," but that it must surpass its great war record by a "greater record in peace."

The 454 members of the graduating class, the largest in the history of the academy, were urged by the Secretary to apply all their energy to the great task of developing the efficiency of the navy.

"You are coming into the navy in a period that will challenge all your resource and initiative," said Secretary Daniels. "You must not imagine for a moment that, because the war is ended, the navy will or can rest upon its oars. All your force and energies are needed, for we are determined the navy shall not, as it did after the war between the States and the Spanish-American War, mark time for a decade.

"Our policy must be that it shall not only not decline, but shall move constantly forward, improving in every element of efficiency and making new records and new discoveries. The navy has made a great record in war. Let us make a greater record in peace."

Secretary Daniels reviewed the record of the navy's inventive enterprise and will to overcome obstacles manifested during the war as a vital contribution to the final result. This record, he said, challenged the enterprise and inventive genius of American naval officers for all future time.

"We want men who will think the unthinkable and solve the unsolvable," declared the Secretary; "men who will dare to tackle the problems that have so long puzzled the world."

Mr. Daniels read an "all navy" message which he issued during the war, inviting all officers of the navy to submit any plans or suggestions they might have to help the American Navy to win the war."

This invitation still stands, the Secretary said, adding that no officer should hesitate on account of his rank to communicate to the Navy Department any well-considered suggestion designed to improve the American Navy.

"It is, in the main, to the faith, the daring and audacious faith of youth, that we shall look for the progress that will make every ounce of navy count 100 per cent," Mr. Daniels concluded. "My message to you is to be leaders of men, in constructive thought as well as in action."

NAVY'S FOOD FOR WORKERS.

Daniels Announces Plan to Distribute Surplus Among Employes.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Large quantities of clothing, cloth, and food products will be sold to navy yard workmen, civilian personnel employed at yards and naval stations, and the families of naval men under a plan announced by Secretary Daniels today, to be put in effect at once.

Officials believed that in this manner the large stocks of clothing and foodstuffs, particularly the latter, can be utilized to the benefit of the public without disturbing the market. The plan is to be first tried out by the sale of a limited quantity of staple materials at the larger navy yards. If it proves a success the points of distribution will be increased.

Almost every variety of canned goods is included in the list, and all will be sold at approximately cost price.

REPORTS ASIA MINOR LOOKING TO AMERICA

70% OF ARMENIANS KILLED

Rev. P. F. B. Chappell Quotes British Authority for His Figures—Syrians Still Starving.

ROME, June 4, (Associated Press.)—The people of Armenia, Syria, and Turkey are most eager that the United States shall have the League of Nations mandate for their countries, according to Bishop H. H. Fout of Indianapolis, the head of one section of the American Commission for Relief in the Near East. The Bishop, who belongs to the United Brethren, arrived in Rome today on his way to the United States, accompanied by seventeen other members of his commission.

"These people," he added, "look to the United States in their present appalling condition. They cry out for the United States. America is their first choice, with Great Britain second.

"Turkey by her inhuman treatment, in my opinion, has lost the right to be intrusted with authority to rule. From various estimates I have reached the conclusion that out of the Armenian nation of 3,000,000 at the outbreak of the war, 1,000,000 were massacred. The condition of the remainder is most appalling.

"There is plenty of mute evidence in the hundreds of thousands of skeletons scattered throughout the Turkish Empire that the Turks sought to exterminate the Armenians by systematic massacre. The Armenians were driven like herded cattle from one locality to another until they were exhausted by tortures and torments of unbelievable character. In addition the Turks sought to wipe out the clergy of Armenia. Only eight out of forty-four Bishops survive, while only 10 per cent. of the clergy is living today."

The Rev. Paul F. B. Chappell of Nashville, Tenn., told the correspondent of what he had seen in traveling from Port Said to Aleppo.

"Poverty is most profound, although the prospects for the next harvest are good," he said. "Even at the present time the people fall dead in the streets from the effects of Turkish treatment. The Turks could not invade Syria as they invaded Armenia, but they were successful in preventing food from going to Syria. Starvation is widespread throughout the region.

"Colonel Hawker, the British commander at Beirut, told me he thought it would be found that only 30 per cent. of the Armenians were living when final accounts were taken. He said the Armenians were hounded and driven over an area 1,200 square miles in extent. They were harassed by armed and mounted Turks who worked in relays.

"The Turkish plan was to take all the ablebodied men from the community and tie them up. Then they would torture them by cutting their flesh and burning the wounds. Finally, they would cut off their heads in the presence of the wives and children of the victims. The old men, women, and children were herded together and driven from place to place."

A large number of photographs taken in Armenia, showing piles of skulls and skeletons and pictures of deformed children and tortured women were shown the correspondent by the Rev. Samuel T. Bartlett of Toronto, a member of the committee who penetrated into Eastern Turkey.

"At Ourfa," Mr. Bartlett said, "I saw a deep well filled with skulls of dead Armenians. There must have been several thousand of them. At Malatee there is a pit containing thousands of skeletons. A little girl at Sivas told us the Turks had taken her father and other men, tied and tortured them and then killed them.

"The Turks also took all the babies in the town and threw them into the river until it overflowed its banks. They let out the priests, put red-hot iron shoes on their feet, tied them to wagons and forced them to walk long distances. The finger and toe nails of the priests were pulled out, and the priests finally were compelled to say the rites over the dead, while the Turks looked on and laughed and mocked. At other places they pulled out the beards of the priests and tortured them until they fell dead from exhaustion. It was a tale of bloody butchery that we heard."

Mr. Bartlett said that the committee traveled across Central Asia Minor from Aleppo to Samsun on motor trucks. From Sansun to Constantinople they were the guests of Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, the American commander in Turkish waters, on the Destroyer 149.

Macedonians Appeal to Wilson.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 6.—The General Council of Macedonian societies in Switzerland has sent a cablegram to the United States Senate, repeating an appeal already made to President Wilson and the Peace Conference, to "rescue the Macedonian people from misery by establishing an independent Macedonia under the direct protectorate of the great American democracy."

ROYAL BANQUET FOR PESSOA

The King and Queen Entertain Him at Buckingham Palace.

LONDON, June 5.—King George and Queen Mary gave a banquet at Buckingham Palace tonight in honor of Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, President-elect of Brazil, who was accompanied by his wife, daughter, and suite. Among the 150 guests were members of the Cabinet with their wives, members of the House of Lords, former Ministers, members of the diplomatic corps, dignitaries of the Court, the Lord Mayor of London, and other prominent people. The American Ambassador, John W. Davis, was unavoidably absent. Among the members of the royal family who were present were Prince Albert, Princess Mary, and Prince Arthur of Connaught.

In offering a toast to Dr. Pessoa King George gave him a hearty welcome to England and expressed a desire to maintain and increase the "good understanding between the British and Brazilian peoples."

Speaking of the entry of Brazil into the war, King George said he was aware "how deep was the regret felt by all ranks of the gallant Brazilian Navy that no opportunity occurred to meet the enemy in battle before the armistice."

In responding Dr. Pessoa expressed the hope that "the bonds which unite Brazil and Great Britain shall continue to be firmer and more intimate, strengthened as they were by the recent alliance during the war.

"Now that the war is over," he continued, "Brazil, in her unlimited field for enterprise, progress, and prosperity, will rejoice to see Great Britain bring her fruitful collaboration to the growing task of Brazilian development."

He assured those present that British enterprise would receive a sympathetic welcome, and Brazil would make an earnest endeavor to make the collaboration successful. The guests stood throughout both speeches. After the dinner King George and Dr. Pessoa had a short conversation in a private room.

VENIZELOS LAUDS WILSON.

Cablegram to American People Made Public at Greek Fete.

The following cablegram from Prime Minister Venizelos for communication to the American people was given out last night at a Greek fete held in the Hotel Plaza under the auspices of the American-Hellenic Society:

Paris, June 4, 1919.

Frederick Cunliffe-Owen,
37 Riverside Drive, New York.

May I congratulate you for your untiring efforts on behalf of Greece. I am greatly flattered by your kind words, and pray you to convey to the American-Hellenic Society, to its illustrious President Nicholas Murrray Butler, and to its officers, my heartiest congratulations and sincerest thanks for their great work. In them I have found worthy collaborators.

Whatever I can say regarding the part played by the people of the United States and their distinguished President in this war, will, indeed, but inadequately convey the tribute due to them. Mindful of the covenant bequeathed to you, my American friends, by Washington and Lincoln and the fathers of your Constitution, nurtured with the spirit of justice, liberty, and Christian charity, you have crusaded with one heart and one voice united and faithful to the end, for the greatest cause the world has ever known. It was a cause dearest to you because it was humanity's cause. Your brave men and women on the land and on the sea, at home and abroad, have demonstrated to the world the highest degree that altruism and noble service can reach. Your brave boys who have fought so gloriously, have left behind them a living message which is bound to affect both the Old and the New World, and to lead us all to higher spheres of life. In the days of struggle and suffering, your great leader, Woodrow Wilson, enunciated the new political gospel which gave courage and hope to all enslaved peoples. You have given freely and lavishly of your means and resources towards the alleviation of their sufferings. During this present period of judgment you have again not failed them. For your President has justified the great hopes which these nations have placed on you. And in the days to come you are bound to perpetuate your glorious history. Ancient Greece can indeed be proud of her greatest daughter. May I as the representative of modern Greece venture to convey to you all, and through you to the people of the United States, the expression of the eternal debt of gratitude which is hers, towards you and to your glorious spokesman here? VENIZELOS.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and Dr. Andre Andreadis, recently from the Peace Conference, made addresses. Mr. Cunliffe-Owen, to whom the cablegram was addressed, is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the society.

Canadian Troops Returning Fast.

TORONTO, June 6.—Sir Edward Kemp, the Overseas Minister of Militia, announced in this city today that May established a record for the number of soldiers returned to Canada, the official figures being 54,499. He indicated that all told there were not more than about 75,000 Canadian soldiers remaining to be repatriated.

PLAN LIBERAL TERMS IN WAR RISK POLICIES

Insurance Bureau Working on More Attractive Insurance Features.

TO RETAIN ANNUITY SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, June 6.—More liberal provisions are being worked out by the Bureau of War Risk Insurance for inclusion in term policies taken out by men in the military services, as an inducement to them to retain their insurance after returning to civil life.

The term policies may be continued for five years after discharge from service, and at any time during that period may be converted into ordinary life, endowment, or twenty-year policies, the premiums on which will be considerably higher. The privilege of paying premiums at Post Offices probably will be one feature.

Opportunity to make the policies payable in a lump sum to the beneficiaries, instead of extending the payment over a term of years, may not be granted, despite the general approval which greeted a previous announcement that such a feature would be incorporated into the policies. The annuity system of payments was written into the war policies as a substitute for pensions, and especially as a means of safeguarding inexperienced widows from promoters of doubtful get-rich-quick schemes.

The task of getting into touch with the holders of war risk insurance is one of the biggest ever undertaken by the Government. With 4,000,000 policyholders the expense of reaching each one with an argument as to the value of keeping up his insurance will reach several million dollars.

15-Year-Old Deserter Not to Die.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—On recommendation of General Pershing, President Wilson has commuted to ten years' imprisonment the death sentence imposed on Private Philip Sohn of the 109th Infantry, 28th Division, for deserting in the face of the enemy. General Pershing based his recommendation upon the extreme youth of the soldier, who enlisted at the age of 15.

Will Bar Alien Women.

All alien women in the employ of the Standard Oil Company and other large industries in Bayonne will be obliged to obtain naturalization papers as soon as possible. Similar action regarding alien male employes was taken during the war. Many other large industries in Hudson County, employing thousands of alien women, will take similar action.

TO THE ALTAR, NOT TO JAIL.

After having been married on June 3 to Miss Isabel MacNamara of Mount Morris, N. Y., at St. Teresa's Church in Brooklyn, Traffic Patrolman Charles J. Ryan of Sub-division A returned yesterday to his regular post at Prince and Lafayette Streets, where he has been regulating traffic for some years.

He said yesterday that about a month ago he hailed a young woman operating an automobile and told her the machine was smoking.

"Pardon me, Mr. Ryan," she said. Then he recognized her as his former playmate, Miss MacNamara, from Mount Morris, where he was born and brought up.

Mrs. Ryan is a niece of a former law partner of Mayor Hylan and owns a number of apartment houses.

Teachers' Union Makes Application to Board of Education.

James P. Boyle, as spokesman of a joint committee of the Central Federated Union of New York, the Central Labor Union of Brooklyn, the Woman's Trade Union League, and the United Hebrew Trades, asked the Board of Education yesterday to restore to the Teachers' Union the right to use the public school buildings for its meetings. He also inquired as to the attitude of the board toward the Teachers' Union. He asked if the inferences of disloyalty of its members as given out by the board were not for the purpose of terrorizing the officers and members, and thereby destroying the Teachers' Union. He said that he represented 500,000 persons. The organizations he appeared for, he declared, were slow but persistent, and they wanted to learn the true attitude of the board toward the Teachers' Union.

President Prall said that five members of the board were present and two were absent. The matter would be taken up and discussed by the board and a reply would be given to the labor representatives in two weeks.

Mr. Boyle wanted to know if any member of the board wished to ask him any questions. "Do you recognize any difference," asked Mrs. Ruth F. Russell, "between a profession and a trade?" Mr. Boyle answered that there had been a difference, but the labor men now looked after professional men and had tried to protect them in their salaries.

Shortly after Mr. Boyle and his associates had left the room they returned to ask if the board knew that plain clothes men had been in the audience. President Prall replied that their presence had no significance. Mr. Boyle replied that it was an unusual thing to occur and that he thought it was significant.

TREMBLY NOW RETALIATES.

RAHWAY, N. J., June 6.—Mayor David H. Trembly tonight retaliated against the Justice of the Peace who entertained a complaint against him for refusing to permit Frederick Harwood, Secretary of the Socialist Party, to speak at an open-air meeting here on Saturday night. According to Harwood, the Mayor called out the Fire Department, gave orders for the water to be turned upon Harwood, and held the nozzle of the hose as the water gushed forth.

Mayor Trembly tonight arraigned Justice of the Peace Theimer of 323 Rahway Avenue, Elizabeth, before Police Judge Orlando H. Dey, and charged him with a misdemeanor, for alleged improper procedure. The Justice of the Peace was held in $500 bail for a hearing on Tuesday.

Mayor Trembly says he is determined that no street meetings shall be conducted by out-of-town Socialists here. The firemen are anticipating another clash tomorrow night, as Socialists have notified the Mayor they will come here ready to conduct a meeting at Main and Lewis Streets at 8 o'clock.

The Department for Women's and Misses' Sweaters

THE MEADOWBROOK COAT

—an outergarment of brushed wool which will make a direct appeal to the woman of fashion for country club, yachting, motoring or general sports wear out of doors.

Not even remotely resembling the familiar sweater, it may nevertheless be worn upon most occasions when a sweater is in order, as well as upon many when the latter would be distinctly out of place.

This attractive and most becoming garment may be obtained in several modish colors.

The Best Men's Clothes from the Best Makers in America--At Gimbels

Gimbels do not make clothing! That is a highly specialized business, better done by exclusive tailoring concerns than by big retail stores.

Gimbels do not indulge in freak ideas to attach elusive, imaginary virtues to clothes and make advertising cover a multitude of sins.

Gimbels do not ride clothes hobbies and lay stress on any one particular clothes feature.

The business of this store is to please, not merely one class of men, but all men, from the very youthful college man and the broad-chested proud A. E. F. hero, to the very dignified business man who shuns the youthful models.

The Gimbel Idea Is VARIETY and We Search the World to Get It

The finest clothes in America are here—under our own labels, but made by the tailors you know.

The three-store buying power of the Gimbel Stores is a leverage in the markets and we use it to give New Yorkers such a varied selection as they could only find by shopping around in ten or a dozen other stores.

And three-store buying means prices based on immense volume so that "price" is as much a Gimbel inducement as are style, quality, workmanship and immense variety.

MEN'S CLOTHES

"Made in Our Own Shops"

WHY do we keep the line "MADE IN OUR OWN SHOPS" at the top of our advertising? A reasonable question, and it deserves a frank answer.

We have already told you that few, if any, custom tailors have their own shops. They cut the cloth and "send it out" to be made.

Many factories do the same. They do business on the "contract plan"—taking orders from samples—and having the clothes made up by operatives who work at their homes—being paid by the "piece." The more "pieces" they finish, the more money they earn. Naturally, they work in a hurry—and hurry work is usually poor work.

All our men's clothes are made right in our own shops, and we encourage our people to sew slowly, carefully, painstakingly—to neglect nothing.

FAIR WEATHER SPURS FLIERS

Handley-Page Expedition Expects to be Ready for Tests Within Three Days.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 6.—Newfoundland's first real Spring day this season put new energy into the expeditions preparing for the transatlantic flight. The gentle balmy breeze and bright sunshine after the biting atmosphere they have endured during the most of their stay not only was welcomed because it enabled better progress in the work of assembling the airplanes, but was received as well as an omen of good crossing weather when once the time comes to take the wing in spite of the multiplicity of little things still to be done.

Captain John Alcock, the Vickers Vimy pilot, still expects to hold his trial flight before the end of this week. He has decided upon just one flight, and unless something should prove radically wrong thereafter he will prepare to "hop off" on the first favorable day. His navigator, Lieutenant A. R. Brown, devoted today to installing his wireless gear, with which he has been practicing in his room at the Cochrane House, and Frank Platford, the Rolls-Royce engineer, put in busy hours giving the twin engines their last tuning preparatory to the test tomorrow.

F. P. Raynham's Martynside, with which he hopes once more to try a crossing, is all ready for the new engine expected here at any day now. Just as soon as it is installed he will be back in the race, provided he gets a navigator. So far he has not found an entirely satisfactory man, who would be available in time.

At Harbor Grace the Handley-Page men took advantage of the fine weather to rush their preparations, and tonight were hopeful that within three days they might make the first of their trial flights. Their present plan is to essay a series of tests before actually starting across.

Lieutenant W. E. Williams, advance agent of Alliance Airplane Company, has learned that the Alliance single engine "Seabird" expected on the Furness Line steamship Digby next week was not ready in time to be shipped on her. This means a delay perhaps of two weeks, and practically eliminates this machine from the competition, provided, of course, one of the three now here gets across.

CONFLICTING CLUES TO LOST AVIATOR

One Traces Captain James to Mt. Stamford—May Have Fallen Into Hudson.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 6.—An airplane that dropped into the Hudson River about a week ago, headed north, and of which nothing has been heard since, is believed by Dutchess County authorities and by Colonel Wheeler of the Minecla Aviation Field to be the most promising clue to the disappearance of Captain Mansell James, the missing Canadian aviator.

The machine was seen to drop into the Hudson at Blue Point, about three miles below this city. Willard Everitt, the telegraph operator at Highland Station, and Harry Elliott saw the plane drop, their attention being called to the approach of the machine by the telegraph operator at Marlboro.

It is now thought that Captain James became lost and was headed north searching for the landing field at Poughkeepsie, seeing that he was in the wrong location when he passed Newburgh. The airship was seen to strike the water just before dark. The men do not recall the day, but say it was about a week ago.

The probable course of the airplane of Captain Mansell T. James, the Canadian "ace," who has been missing since the start of a flight eight days ago from Lee, Mass., to Atlantic City, was traced yesterday as far as Mount Stamford, southeast of Waterbury and about thirteen miles north of Long Island Sound.

At the time the machine was gaining altitude, apparently in preparation for a flight across the Sound, according to information obtained by J. R. Murdock, Superintendent of the telephone exchange at Torrington. Mr. Murdock and officials of other exchanges are conducting a wide search by telephone and automobile for the missing aviator.

Several school children of Mount Stamford said they had seen the plane on the day of the flight during their lunch hour. Officials of the Aero Club of America stated that the speed of James's plane would have brought it over Mount Stamford about that time and the climb to a higher altitude would indicate that he intended to continue the flight to Atlantic City instead of stopping at Mineola.

PORTUGAL OFFERS AIR PRIZE

First Aviator Flying to Brazil, 5,400 Miles, Gets $32,400.

LISBON, June 6, (Associated Press.)—The Portuguese Government today issued a decree establishing a prize of 30 contos (at normal exchange approximately $32,400) for the Portuguese or Brazilian aviator who flies from Portugal to Brazil.

The Minister of Marine, in discussing the offer of a prize, said that Portugal had been stimulated by the example of the United States and intends to establish a commercial aviation route between Portugal and Brazil. The route would be from Lisbon, Madeira, the Canary Islands, Fernando Noronha, and Pernambuco, a distance of 5,400 miles.

WON'T TRY ATLANTIC FLIGHT

C-8 to be Kept at Cape May for Use in Patrol Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., June 6.—Captain Robert R. Paumack in command of the Cape May Naval Air Station, who brought the C-8 on its non-stop flight from Akron, Ohio, to Cape May on Tuesday, covering 765 miles in thirteen hours and ten minutes, said this afternoon that there was no intention on the part of the Navy Department to have it try for a transatlantic flight. It will be kept here for patrol duty.

PARIS, June 6.—A new altitude record for women aviators was made today at Issy-les-Moulineaux when Baroness La Roche ascended to a height of 3,900 metres, (12,869 feet).

The time consumed in making the flight was 1 hour 49 minutes.

Miss Ruth Law, when informed of the altitude flight of Baroness La Roche, declared last night that she had reached the height of 14,000 feet in a flight at Peoria, Ill., in Sept., 1917.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Commander John H. Towers, flight commander of the navy transatlantic seaplane squadron, was relieved of all duty with that squadron today and assigned to service with the Commission for Air Terms now sitting at Paris.

RED REIGN OF TERROR OVER

Correspondent Calls Russia Land of Paradoxes—Industry Stops, Education Advances.

Picturing Russia under the Bolsheviki as a land of paradoxes and contradictions, Frazier Hunt, war correspondent, who returned to New York yesterday on the transport Von Steuben after making a report to Colonel House in Paris of his observations of several months spent in Russia, declared that Lenin was inclined to compromise with those opposed to him and would welcome a return of foreign capital. He believed, however, that the Russian people would insist on a radical Government for a long time to come. He described Russia as he left it a few weeks ago in the following words:

"If you stop the New York street car lines and the subways, close up the Ritz and other fashionable hotels, change Delmonico's into a lunchroom, board up three-quarters of the stores in Fifth Avenue, shut down most of the factories, and work the others on half time, take away all the privately owned motor cars, fail to clean the streets for a week, charge $90 for a short quart of cheap liquor—then you have the present Bolshevist conditions transferred from Moscow to New York."

On the other hand, he said, recent tales of mad orgies of blood and murder were exaggerations, so far as he had observed. He said he had no fears for his safety during the whole time he was in Russia.

"Personally, I do not believe the United States should be guided in its Russian policy by the imperialistic propaganda of the Old World," Mr. Hunt said. "The reign of terror is at an end in the country. The only persons who are shot down in the streets are the highway robbers and thieves. Soviet Russia has little patience with them or workers against the public weal. The whole structure of Russia is a series of contradictions. Here is a Government that has opened 9,500 new free schools for the people and supported the students gratis, that propagated the arts, sciences, and literature, on one hand, and tore down the very pillars of convention on the other."

Mr. Hunt said it would not be exaggerating to say that 90 per cent. of the people in Russia were living on short rations, though few were actually dying of starvation. The peril that the people were facing was an epidemic which would result in many deaths among the population, due to their weakened powers of resistance, he said. Food was very high, and when he left Petrograd horse meat was selling at $4 a pound, and sugar at $10 a pound, with other commodities proportionately high.

"There are few factories running in the country at present," he said. "Transportation is demoralized and industry is as completely at a standstill as education is advancing. In Central Russia you find the things you don't expect, and look in vain for the things you do expect. For example, take the tales told to me at the Finnish border when I was entering Russia. The Finns swore I would be shot and never return alive. I was received cordially, allowed to go wherever I desired and the only inconvenience I suffered was the lack of good food. I felt as safe everywhere as I do here in New York."

Summing up his observations, Mr. Hunt said that Russia must be put to work to save the country. He believed that Admiral Kolchak had only a half chance of winning against the Bolshevist Government, even if recognized by the Allies. He based this belief, he said, on the fact that Admiral Kolchak was still 400 miles from Petrograd and was opposed by a force of more than a million Bolshevist soldiers. Russia, on the whole, Mr. Hunt added, was suspicious of Europe, and the people looked to the United States as their friend. Mr. Hunt said that the world must become reconciled to the fact that the Russians could not be satisfied with anything but a radical Government.

The Von Steuben brought back 2,814 officers and enlisted men, many of whom belonged to the 36th Division, a Texas and Oklahoma contingent. Major Gen. Charles Bailey of the 81st Division was also a passenger. On Memorial Day a wreath was dropped into the sea in honor of Carl D. MacVittie, Roy Ragan, and Jesse T. Swafford, members of the crew, who were swept overboard during a West Indian hurricane last September.

The last of the 88th, or Clover Leaf Division, made up of drafted men from Texas and Oklahoma, returned yesterday on the Madawaska, which had 2,835 men on board. Bobbie Chevrueuel, a 16-year-old French boy, who had been a mascot of an American regiment in France, was discovered as a stowaway when the transport was three days out of St. Nassaire. He said he had been with the regiment for seven months until he left them to go to a hospital to be treated for a broken arm. He carried letters written by a Major Stebbins to several prominent New Yorkers bespeaking their interest in his behalf. The boy was turned over to the immigration officials at Ellis Island, but several officers said that efforts would be made to obtain his admittance into this country.

Capt. Raymond Belmont, son of August Belmont, arrived yesterday with the 78th Division Headquarters Company on the Santa Ana, which brought back 1,421 men. He was met at the pier by his father, step-mother, and wife. He said the war had been a great experience for him, but he was glad to get back home. Capt. Belmont went overseas in May, 1918, as Lieutenant, and won his promotion during the St. Mihiel engagement.

Wife's Vacation Not a Necessity.

The appellate term of the Supreme Court decided yesterday that a wife's Summer vacation is not such a "necessity" in a legal sense that her husband can be compelled to pay the expenses if she fails to do so. The ruling was made in a suit of Catherine Stevens, owner of a Summer boarding house, against Harry J. Hush of 174 West Seventy-ninth Street. The court held that Summer board in the country did not "lie within the category of what are usually, though perhaps not happily, designated as necessities." The court reversed a judgment obtained by the plaintiff in the City Court.

Will a Slaughter of Jews Be Next European Horror?

While the sporadic persecutions and massacres of Jews in Russia, Poland, Roumania, and the Ukraine, already reported, are disturbing in themselves, they are but scattered sparks compared to the conflagration some observers foresee. Thus William G. Shepherd, in a Paris dispatch to the New York Evening Post says that not only leading Jews in France but even notable Russian authorities, including Kerensky, "admit the possibility that the next Russian horror will consist of attacks on Jews." In the course of a dispatch from Paris a correspondent to the New York Day, a Jewish paper, says regarding the massacres in the Ukraine that "the purpose is apparently to exterminate the entire Jewish population."

Regarding the reported persecution of Jews in Poland, Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes, of New York, declares that that country "is now at the bar of the world's judgment, for the world has to choose between Turkish atrocities in Armenia, German atrocities in Belgium, and Polish atrocities in Poland."

Poles in New York, and the new Polish Premier Paderewski, deny that pogroms have occurred in Poland, and characterize these charges as anti-Polish and pro-German propaganda. To substantiate these denials the Polish Information Bureau cites Dr. Vernon Kellogg, recently returned to New York from Poland, who in an interview published in The New York Times stated that while "there were constant rumors of difficulties of one kind and another between the Jews and the Poles," he did not find evidence of any widespread massacres.

SAYS GLASS PLANS TO FLOAT NEW LOAN

DISCUSS HOUSING FUNDS

Officials of Lending Companies Give Varied Views Before Joint Investigating Committee.

Testifying yesterday before the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, at its hearing in City Hall, William A. Day, President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, told the committee that Secretary of the Treasury Glass had assured him on Wednesday that the Government would be compelled to raise more money through the flotation of loans. Mr. Day had been explaining the inability of his company to invest money in real estate mortgages because of the large amounts it had already placed in the various Liberty Loans, when Senator Charles C. Lockwood, Chairman of the committee, asked him whether he understood that there would be further Government bond issues.

After stating that there would, the witness continued: "The Government will have to have more money. The Secretary of the Treasury himself told me that the night before last, and everybody who knows the situation knows that, and it is our duty to turn in and support it as much as we can." When asked when the new Government loans might be expected, Mr. Day answered, "I could not say as to that, but they are not very far off. The Government must have the money and it is of importance to everybody that it should have it."

Mr. Day was one of the principal witnesses, most of whom were officials of the great lending companies. Each of them was asked by Senator Lockwood what his company would do to relieve the housing situation. Mr. Day said that the huge investments his company had made in Liberty Bonds at the urgent request of the Government had made it necessary to borrow millions, "which for a life insurance company was an extraordinary thing to do." After the Chairman had urged him several times to set a definite figure as a pledge of what his company would do, Mr. Day finally promised that he would recommend to his finance committee that the Equitable set aside $500,000.

In contrast to Mr. Day's reluctance to offer mortgage money, Victor A. Lersner, Controller of the Williamsburg Savings Bank of Brooklyn, said that he came to lend a more happy and pleasant tone to the hearing by stating that his institution had $5,000,000 to place out on new property, and that during the last two months it had put out $2,000,000. Walter Stabler, Controller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, while testifying that his company was also handicapped by its large investments in the Liberty loans, said that his company had had many applications for loans in recent months, and that it was meeting many of them.

Although Mr. Stabler is a member of the Reconstruction Commission, which has proposed the establishment of a five-million-dollar fund to supply builders with second mortgage money, he differed sharply during the hearing with Abram I. Elkus, Chairman of that commission, as to the necessity and success this fund can realize in inducing building.

Louis J. Horowitz, President of the Thompson-Starrett Company, told the committee that the prices of building materials would go even higher as the demand increased, but admitted that in some trades there had been artificial price fixing. He also stated that the total increased cost of low-priced dwellings was now about 30 per cent. above what was regarded as normal before the war.

At the opening of the hearing Senator Lockwood announced that Senator Calder would introduce into the United States Senate a bill prepared by the Department of Labor providing for the establishment of a Federal home loan bank, and that the bill would contain a provision exempting from Federal income and other taxes mortgages and holdings of mortgages up to $40,000.

Other witnesses were Alfred E. Marling, President of the Chamber of Commerce; Clarence H. Kelsey, James P. Holland, President of the State Federation of Labor; Archibald M. Woodruff, Assistant Secretary of the Prudential Life Insurance Society; Edward J. Hannah, President of the Central Federated Union of New York, and Charles Byrne, Secretary of the Long Island Building Trades. The next session will be held at the City Hall at 10 A. M. Monday, when the principal witnesses will be manufacturers of building material.

When Mr. Marling told of the $5,000,000 fund which the Reconstruction Commission had proposed to meet a need which the builders could not supply and the lending companies would not lend, it was revealed that this fund did not exist as yet, as no money had actually been paid in.

"Whatever failure there has been," explained Mr. Marling, "is in the fact that Mr. Elkus and I have been so engaged that we have not been able to go around. Those whom we have personally seen have been sympathetic with the purpose we have at heart, and while frankly agreeing with us that it is not the best sound economic principle, at the same time they feel that it is worth the trial in view of the situation in the city."

Mr. Horowitz declared that if $75,000,000 could be raised the situation, so far as building was concerned, could be relieved within six months. He believed tax exemption, Federal and State, on a limited amount of mortgage funds would make it unnecessary to have Government aid in building. He was opposed to Government aid in any form for home building.

DENY UNTERMYER CHARGES.

Insurance Men Say Liberty Loans Have Taken All Their Free Cash.

Denials of the assertion of Samuel Untermyer that the solution of the housing problem was retarded largely by the reluctance of the insurance companies to make loans on improved real estate were given out yesterday by Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life Insurance Company, and Charles A. Peabody, President of the Mutual Life.

In his letter to Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, Mr. Untermyer had said that the New York Life and the Mutual Life, with the Equitable and Metropolitan companies, made a small amount of their loans on real estate, as compared to investment in stocks and bonds. He declared that four life insurance companies had in their possession for investment more than $2,000,000,000, belonging to more than 20,000,000 persons. Here is Mr. Kingsley's reply:

"Mr. Samuel Untermyer assails the insurance companies of this State and charges that the housing problem here and presumably elsewhere throughout the country is the result of 'conspiracies' between them and between other companies, those which produce building material, &c. He charges some life companies with evading the law, (a charge which he cannot sustain,) and demands an act of Legislature under which the companies shall be forced to dump on the market what he calls their 'Wall Street' securities, and then put one-half of all their available funds in mortgages on New York City real estate.

"How simple! Of course all the forty-seven other States can act similarly, but a thing like that doesn't disturb Samuel. Most of the other States think the New York companies now have a disproportionately large part of their assets in New York City mortgages.

"Then how easy to sell several hundred millions of legally held securities! What a steadying force that would be in the critical days of readjustment!

"The next wave of the wand of this financial magician very likely may require the sale of all farm mortgages now held and the investment of 50 per cent. of all money thus made available in the corporate stock of the City of New York. Why not? New York needs money and the investment would be good.

"Every intelligent man, (except Mr. Untermyer,) knows why the housing problem is so grave all over the world. The insurance companies of New York had no more to do with bringing that condition about than they had to do with the invasion of Belgium in 1914.

"The life companies have for two years and more put all their available funds into Government bonds and backed this Government and its allies by borrowing to such an extent that the four great companies of the city, together with the two great life companies in Newark, today owe $75,000,000 on that account. For substantially the first time in the history of any of these companies they have ceased to be lenders and are themselves borrowers.

"The New York Life Insurance Company invested continuously and heavily in the war bonds of the United States and allied countries. It owns now (or will when it has paid its notes for $16,000,000 held by the banks of New York) $112,109,000 of those securities. Needless to say that when companies back their Governments in that way (and all the ocmpanies criticised by this financial wise man have proportionately done the same) they are not investing elsewhere, and are not 'conspiring.'

"The charge that the insurance companies control Wall Street is so cheap and false that while it would sound familiar in the mouth of Townley or Trotzky, it comes less familiarly from the modern sage of Greystone."

In his statement Mr. Peabody said:

"I have little time or taste for controversy with Mr. Untermyer. His unselfish and disinterested concern for the rights of the poor policyholders is an old story and has impelled him to make another offer of his services in their behalf. Of course, all that he says in his bid for their support is, in spirit and substance, untrue. He said it all long ago, when he, on a former occasion, undertook to save them from ruin. Unfortunately, they so little understood their own interests that they preferred to intrust their affairs to those whom he now pleasantly calls 'kings and despots.'

"In this age of democracy, for which we have saved the world, it might be considered libelous to call anyone by such an opprobious name. Perhaps Mr. Untermyer is simply hoping to indulge in his well known fondness for libel suits. The only difficulty is that I do not know any king or despot who would consider himself injured by anything which Mr. Untermyer might say, unless he changed his note and said something in his favor. That would be a serious grievance and might well provoke some reflection as to how the king or despot could extricate himself from such an unfortunate friendship."

Similar statements were given out by officials of other insurance companies on Thursday as letters were written directly to Mr. Untermyer.

FEDERAL RAIL LOSS $58,000,000 IN APRIL

NO INCREASE IN RATES NOW

WASHINGTON, June 6. — Director General Hines estimated today that the Railroad Administration incurred a deficit of approximately $58,000,000 in April, making a total deficit of $250,000,000 for the first four months of the year.

The Director General reiterated, however, his previously expressed judgment that present economic conditions were too unsettled to afford a safe basis for decision as to the necessity for increased rates to offset the difference between income and operating cost. For the present there will be no increase, he added, the administration confining itself to practicing every possible economy.

The net operating income for April was about $26,000,000, as compared with $71,000,000 for April last year, and an average of $67,102,681 for April during the three year test period, on which the compensation to the roads is based.

"In April," Mr. Hines said, "as in January, February, and March, this unfavorable showing was due in large part to the falling off of business. It was also due in part to the heavy increases in wages and cost of materials. The Railroad Administration is not unlike other industrial undertakings in the increases in wages and costs of materials, but is unlike these other enterprises in that the latter have made high corresponding increases in the prices of what they sell while the Railroad Administration has made an increase in transportation rates of only 25 per cent., which is a far less percentage than the increase in wages and cost of materials."

CAUGHT BY A TOOTH PRINT.

A tooth bite in a cake of chocolate was the only clue detectives Mellarney and Hand of the Alexander Avenue Station had to work on in the theft on Thursday night of $25 worth of nut bars from the candy factory of William Brunson, 293 East 134th Street, and the only distinctive thing about the bite was that it showed that one of the upper teeth of the sampler was missing.

Yesterday morning the detectives arrested two boys at Alexander Avenue and 133d Street, who described themselves as John Herlihy, 14 years old, of 300 East 134th Street, and Herbert Heins, 14 years old, of 302 East 134th Street.

"There's a snaggle-toothed boy," said Detective Mellarney. "Let's question him." When Heins was made to bite a cake of chocolate and the teeth marks were compared with the one Detective Mellarney had, the boy confessed the robbery, the detectives say.

The fragrant odors from the factory, the boy said, were too great a temptation for him. The boys were charged with juvenile delinquency and were taken to the Bronx Children's Society.

HELD IN NAVY ROBBERY.

Theatrical Producer Accused of $20,000 Theft from Pelham.

Frank Kay, the theatrical producer, of 540 West Thirty-sixth Street, who was arrested by Detectives Dennison and Fitzgerald of the West Forty-seventh Street Station on the charge of having stolen silverware and other Government property worth $20,000 from the naval training station at Pelham Bay Park, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock.

Pending a hearing on the larceny charge, Kay, who was represented at the hearing by former United States District Attorney Edwin M. Stanton, was released on $1,000 bail, which was furnished by a surety company. At the request of Assistant United States District Attorney Richard P. Olney, Jr., Commissioner Hitchcock held two actors, named Max Cooper and Edward Christman, as material witnesses in the case. The complaint upon which Kay was held names an Ensign still in the naval service as a co-defendant for aiding and abetting in the looting of the training station in Pelham Bay Park.

MINE DEAD ARE NOW 90.

WILKES-BARRE, Penn., June 6.—The explosion of five kegs of black powder at the Baltimore No. 2 Tunnel of the Delaware & Hudson Company yesterday has caused the death of ninety men. There are thirty-five in hospitals at present, and the condition of several of these men is serious.

Investigation by State Mine Department officials of the disaster was begun today. All of the mine inspectors of the district are present.

John McGroarty, motorman, and James Kehoe, brakeman on the train of mine cars that caused the accident, testified that the trolley wire was sagging but not low enough to come in contact with the metal cars. They said an iron bar or other metal carried by a miner, might have been touched by the wire thus causing a short circuit that emitted sparks which ignited the powder on the train. Another theory they advanced was that sparks from a lamp, a pipe, or a lighted match might have come in contact with loose powder.

ARREST FOUR IN ROBBERY.

Boy Caught in Store Says Men Sent Him to Steal.

Three men, one of them said to be a former Bank Examiner of Albany, and a 15-year-old boy were arrested early yesterday morning by Patrolman Joseph Curtis. The boy, Samuel Yornack of 212 Clinton Street, is charged with juvenile delinquency, and the three men, Joseph Brill, Ira B. Casper, and Jacob Walkheiser, all of 1,365 Intervale Avenue, the Bronx, face the charge of acting in concert in robbery.

Patrolman Curtis was passing by the stationery store of Bergen Urovsky, at 115 East 165th Street, when he saw Yornack hiding in the back of the store. The policeman fired a shot in the air, and the boy climbed over the transom and surrendered himself. He said that he had entered the store at the instance of three men, who, he said, were then at a nearby restaurant. They were arrested a few hours later. Casper, who declared he had been a Bank Examiner and had quit his position because of a rebuke from his superior, had in his possession a permit to carry a pistol, issued by a Justice of the Peace in Albany.

GIANTS GET ROUGH RECEPTION ON ROAD

League Leaders Run Against Snag in Pittsburgh and Lose by 7 to 1 Score.

FOUR PITCHERS POUNDED

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., June 6.—Defeat at the hands of the Pirates by a score of 7 to 1 was the Giants' portion in their first game of the season in the West. McGraw's sluggers could not hit the offerings of the veteran Babe Adams, and their pitchers could not hold the Pirate batters in check, so the result was inevitable.

Four Giant hurlers tried to stem the tide of defeat that began to roll against them in the early innings of the fray. They were Rube Benton, Pat Ragan, Poll Perritt, and Jess Winters, and only the last named performed in the manner expected of him.

The Giants scored their only run in the second inning. Thereafter they were helpless with the stick. Benny Kauff opened the second frame with a single to left. Zimmerman hit one over second, but Terry went back of the bag and made a wonderful stop and pegged Heinie out by a step, Kauff reaching second. Fletcher singled to right, scoring Kauff, and a single to centre by McCarty put Fletcher on third. Benton then hit to Adams, and Fletcher was run down between third and home. Burns brought the inning to a close by forcing Benton at second.

Giants Take the Lead.

The slender lead which the Giants had grabbed was soon wiped away. Terry, first up in the third for Pittsburgh, was an easy victim, but Benton, suddenly losing his grip, passed Stengel. The fourth ball was a wild pitch, and Stengel reached second before McCarty could retrieve the pellet. Boeckel also walked, and Southworth followed with a double to left centre that scored Stengel and Boeckel.

Benton then retired and was replaced by Ragan. Cutshaw was tossed out by Fletcher, but Mollwitz tripled between Burns and Kauff, scoring Southworth. Ragan could not locate the plate for Lee and Adams, and both walked, so that the sacks were loaded. At this juncture Pat followed Benton to the showers, and Perritt, hastily warmed up, took over the pitching burden. He checked the Pirates temporarily by grabbing Bigbee's high bounder and tossing him out at first.

Triple, by Zeb Terry.

Perritt was withdrawn in the seventh to allow King to bat for him. Nothing, though, came of the substitution, and Winters entered the box in the Pirates' half of the inning. The youthful Texan held the Pirates off in that frame, but in the eighth they combined a pass, an error, and a double for their last tally.

With two out, Terry waited Winters out and was rewarded with a base on balls. Stengel crossed the Giant infield by laying down a bunt, and Baird, who had replaced Zimmerman, booted the ball. Boeckel doubled to left, scoring Terry, but there the attack was halted, as Doyle threw Southworth out at first.

The Giants were presented with a few opportunities to score after their brief rally in the second inning, but were unable to take advantage of them, as Adams, pitching in superb form, tightened up whenever the New Yorkers threatened to become dangerous.

REDS' BATTING BEE SUBDUES BROOKLYN

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 6.—In the ninth inning, with one run needed to tie the score, Low Malone overran third base and was retired for the final out, and the Reds won the opening game of the series from the Robins this afternoon by a score of 7 to 6. Pat Moran's men found Jeff Pfeffer for timely hits during the contest.

In the seventh inning the Reds scored three runs when Daubert singled, and crossed the plate when Groh followed with a triple to left. Rousch then hit to the same spot for a home run, scoring Groh in front of him.

Ray Fisher, who was nicked for four runs and five hits during the first eight sessions, weakened in the ninth and was knocked out of the box. Wheat, who had made a home run in the second round, opened the inning with a single and went to third when Myers doubled.

Konetchy scored both with a single, and Fisher gave way to Luque. Malone forced Johnston, who ran for Koney. He reached second on an infield out. Schmandt batted for Pfeffer and hit to Kopf, who fumbled the ball. Malone's run past third and Kopf's throw to Groh ended the rally. It was Pfeffer's third straight defeat.

BIG N. Y. A. C. GAMES TODAY.

Athletes from Universities and Clubs Entered for Meet.

Track and field athletes holding national, intercollegiate, and district championship titles will strive for prizes this afternoon at Travers Island in the first installment of the New York A. C.'s 102d games. The events will be conducted as memorials to the club's members who made the supreme sacrifice in the war, each event on the fourteen-event program being named after some man whose life was ended. Next Wednesday the second installment of the meet will be conducted at Travers Island, when five events will be decided.

The desire of athletes to return to a pre-war basis in open competition is reflected in the exceptionally heavy entry reported by the Winged Foot officials. The Winged Foot meet is the first big open track and field meet conducted since the signing of the armistice, and many of the stars who served in the army, navy, or marines have entered. Many out-of-town entries have also been received, including the track team of the Boston A. A. Yale University, Princeton, and Rutgers will also be represented in the day's sport.

The fourteen events to be decided this afternoon are:

The Major McKenna 100-yard run, Lieutenant Lederle 220-yard run, Lieutenant Buermeyer 440-yard run, Sergeant Hamilton 880-yard run, Lieutenant Overton one-mile run, Seaman Dorgan three-mile run, Lieutenant Engels 120-yard hurdles, Major Gill one-mile walk, Cadet Bradley putting 16-pound shot, Driver Myers throwing 56-pound weight, Aviator Grieb running high jump, Private Ferguson running broad jump, Commander Beecher throwing the discus, and Lieutenant Peabody pole vault.

The events for the following Wednesday are: Major Stewart throwing 16-pound hammer, Captain Buckingham throwing the javelin, Commander Crank running hop, step, and jump, Cadet Collins standing high jump, and Major Mitchel interscholastic relay.

PLAN NEW SERIES RULE.

Leagues to Consider Arrangement to Divide Money.

President John A. Heydler of the National League and President Ban Johnson of the American League discussed plans for a new division of the world's series receipts at a meeting here yesterday. A new plan was put into effect last season whereby the first four clubs in each league got a share of the money, and the spoils for the two clubs playing in the series was reduced. The arrangement did not work out well last season and resulted in the players going on strike and holding up one of the games more than an hour.

The division of some of the money among the four leading clubs in each league stimulated the last few weeks of the race and this feature may be retained. The two Presidents will get the opinions of the players and club owners in their leagues and will make a decision at a special meeting of the National Commission which will be held in Cincinnat next week.

SUBURBAN HANDICAP TODAY

Suburban Handicap Field.

Horse.	Weight.	Jockey.
War Cloud	122	Knapp
Lanius	120	Loftus
Papp	109	Kelsay
*Sweep On	108	McAtee
Vindex	106	Ambrose
*Over There	102	Myers
Star Class	96	Callahan

*W. R. Coe entry.

The Suburban Handicap, at a mile and a quarter, which has been won by many great horses since it was first run for in 1884, will be decided this afternoon at Belmont Park and promises to bring out a field that will compare favorably with most of those that have gone to the post for this popular event. Eleven specially prepared thoroughbreds are named in the overnight entries, with W. S. Kilmer's Exterminator, the Kentucky Derby winner of 1918, the top weight. Exterminator has been racing well in the West all through the present Spring and is quite likely to start favorite in spite of fast trials by many of the contenders. Exterminator has traveled the route so often that he was not asked to go the full distance in his final workout, but showed that he has all his speed by galloping a mile in 1:40.

A. K. Macomber's War Cloud, which was beaten by Exterminator in the Derby last year, only to capture the Preakness four days later, is next in order of weight, with 122 pounds to shoulder. War Cloud has had two excellent training moves in the last week, going the mile and a quarter the first time in 2:08 and winding up his preparation on Thursday by accomplishing the same distance in 2:04 1-5. Lanius, the Metropolitan Handicap winner, is in with 120 pounds, and will have Loftus in the saddle. He also has worked the distance twice this week, on Monday in 2:05 and on Thursday in 2:09.

The fastest preparatory work of any of the candidates is credited to George W. Loft's Papp, which reeled of a mile and a quarter on Wednesday in 2:08 2-5. Papp is in very light for a four-year-old, with only 109 pounds, but it must be remembered that he also showed the best public trial for the recent Metropolitan Handicap only to cut a poor figure in the race.

Three three-year-olds are admittedly dangerous, as the colts of that age are doing well this year. Those named are Sweep On and Over There from W. R. Coe's stable, and Harry Payne Whitney's Vindex. Sweep On has turned the mile and a quarter in 2:04 3-5, and has also shown up well in his races this season, while Over There's trial was nearly a second slower. Vindex made a good reputation in Maryland, which was shattered later in the Kentucky Derby. He failed to get away from the post in the Preakness, but his trial in 2:06 3-5 shows that he has a chance to duplicate the victory scored by the same owner's Johren last year.

Corn Tassel, Princeps, and Boniface all have raced well, and the only one of unknown quality is Star Class, which will carry the lightest weight, 98 pounds.

The entries for the other events follow:

WALKER WILL PLAY KIRKBY FOR TITLE

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDEPORT, Conn., June 6.—After having three fairly easy matches, Oswald Kirkby, the title holder, rose to the occasion this afternoon by defeating D. E. Sawyer of Siwanoy in the lower semi-final bracket of the Metropolitan Golf Association championship tournament over the links of the Brooklawn Country Club. As a result, the Englewood man will meet A. L. Walker, Jr., the twenty-year-old Columbia student, in the thirty-six-hole final tomorrow.

Walker gained additional laurels this afternoon by defeating that tournament regular, Max R. Marston of Baltusrol. Before they teed up the prevailing sentiment in the gallery favored Marston, it being figured that his greater experience in important events would prove too much for the Richmond County lad. Except for one slip, where he got into trouble at the eighth and took three more to reach the green, taking a 6, Walker played beautiful golf.

He took advantage of frequent opportunities offered by Marston, whose drives were continually going astray. The only time the Baltusrol man was up was early in the match, when he won the first hole. He had a chance to make it 2 up, but missed a short putt on the second green.

Thereafter Walker began to reel off hole after hole in par, except at the eighth, as previously mentioned. Out in 40, the former interscholastic title holder made the turn 1 up. His opponent had taken 42 strokes.

Both Get a 2 on Tenth.

The best flash of the match came at the short tenth, where both laid their tee shots to within about fifteen feet of the pin. A trifle away, Walker proceeded to run down the putt for a 2. That made Marston's try all the harder, but he proved equal to the task, thereby getting a half in 2.

A Stymie saved Marston at the eleventh, which was halved in 6, but Walker won the next two, sinking a putt for a 3 at No. 12. The lad also won the thirteenth, Marston driving to the rough. Now 3 up, it began to look as good as settled, though Marston won the fourteenth when his opponent drove to the long grass.

To the short fifteenth, Marston should have won, but he took 3 putts and actually lost the hole, although the other golfer failed to make the green from the tee. That made Walker dormie and made it even more decisive by winning the sixteenth, thanks to a good putt of about four yards. Had the bye holes been played Walker might have had a 76.

Kirkby got the jump on Sawyer by winning the first two holes, a stroke under par at each. A fine approach at the first left him a putt of 20 feet, which he sank, and a few moments later, he dropped one equally as long in no wise dismayed, the veteran Sawyer stuck to his work and hung on so gamely as to be only 1 down at the turn, despite the fact that Kirkby made the first nine in 36, par figures. Another long putt enabled the champion to win the twelfth in 3, while he won the next when his opponent got trapped on the approach. Halves at the next three holes left Kirkby a winner in the sixteenth green. Had he played the bye holes and made them in 4's he would have been round in 71.

White Gives Marston a Battle.

The hardest match of the day resulted from the meeting of Marston and Gardiner White in the morning. Although not driving well, Marston recovered so well as to save himself on a number of occasions. He stood 2 up early in the match, but later on stood 2 down, only to square accounts at the fifteenth. The next two were halved, but Marston won the home hole in 4 and the match. Both were round in 77.

Kirkby's morning victory was at the expense of C. V. Benton of the Hudson River Country Club. There again the Englewood man started with a rush, making the first four holes in par and gaining a quick lead of 4 up. After that Benton did well to keep the match alive to the fifteenth.

Walker began the day by defeating G. B. Carhart of Greenwich. Out in 39, the younger man turned for home 2 up. They halved the tenth rather unsatisfactorily, Carhart chipping in with a mashie for a 3 and Walker bringing off a long putt. He also won at the fifteenth. The summaries:

CAMERA AID TO GOLFERS.

British Professional Suggests Plan for Teaching Game.

A unique method for teaching golf to beginners as well as for correcting the faults of experienced players has been suggested by J. H. Taylor, the British golf professional. He has devised a plan for using motion pictures as an aid in teaching and believes with the development of the idea it will be possible to give highly valuable instructions by mail, thus enabling all golfers to better their game, no matter where they may reside.

"An expert can tell a good deal from an action picture as to what is wrong with the swing and what ought to be done to put matters right," says Taylor. "I know that in the course of his career Vardon has had many such photographs from various parts of the world and has been able to come to the rescue of long oppressed foozlers. Very often there is one conspicuous fault which is the cause of all the trouble and which is obvious at once to the expert."

TRACK CHAMPIONS REMAIN.

Nine Intercollegiate Titleholders Will Be Eligible Next Year.

Coaches who prepared teams for the intercollegiate track and field meet which was held recently at Cambridge, Mass., have been highly pleased to find that there will be small loss among the champions through graduation this year. Of the thirteen athletes who were crowned at Cambridge, nine will be eligible to compete next year as undergraduates. Out of a total of sixty-six who scored points at least two-thirds are expected to be enrolled for the next college term.

The champions who made their last intercollegiate appearance as undergraduates are Captain Ivan Dresser of Cornell, Captain Creed Haymond of Pennsylvania, and William Allen of Maine. Dresser fittingly ended his career by duplicating his victory of 1918 and achieving a new intercollegiate record for the two mile, and Haymond stepped both sprints not far from record time. Allen's put to 44 feet 6¼ inches displaced the mark made by Captain Braden of Yale when qualifying trials were held.

Kurt Mayer, who won both the quarter and half-mile for Cornell, has another year in college. Lasater Terrell of Princeton, and Walter Rice of Rutgers, second and third, in the quarter-mile are likewise juniors, and John Stewart of Yale, and Louis Souder of Syracuse, are second year students. Marvin Gustafson of Pennsylvania, runner-up, and Charles Shaw, the 1918 champion in the half-mile, are juniors; Ives Turner of Syracuse is a sophomore, and Arthur Coakley of Dartmouth a freshman.

Harvard's 110-pound middle distance runner, Dennis O'Connell, '21, will have another chance at the mile next year, and hopes to obtain a record on his next attempt, or before he leaves college. Robert Crawford, the big Lafayette freshman, who finished almost neck and neck with O'Connell, expects to reverse the decision before he finishes college, while Thomas McDermott, James O'Leary of Cornell, and Valentine Raymond of Princeton are through with school this year.

Walker Smith, '20, who hopped away with two fine hurdle races, and John Watt, '20, his team mate, who finished second in both instances, are another pair of aces for Cornell next Spring. George Trowbridge, who finished third in the high sticks, and fifth in the low, has a year more at Princeton, and George Frazier, the Pennsylvanian, who landed a point in the low obstacles, has two more years as an undergraduate. W. A. Savage of Bowdoin, who placed in both events, and Charles Bellerjeau of Rutgers, fifth man in the high hurdles, are due to graduate this month.

Carl Johnson, who scored 12¾ of Michigan's 25½ points, has still another year at Ann Arbor. He won the running broad jump, finished behind winner Creed Haymond in the hundred, and split second place in the high jump with Warren Hampton, '20, of Pennsylvania. The whole scoring field in the high jump, just as in the quarter and half miles, is eligible to appear next year. Richmond Landon, the winner, has two years more at Yale, and James Ramsey of Cornell and George Krogness of Harvard, deadlocked for fourth place, are likewise sophomores.

Robert Le Gendre, runner-up in the broad jump, is only in his freshman year at Georgetown, while Sherman Landers and Frederic Davis, fourth and fifth men, have one more year under the Red and Blue banner. Henry Flower, the third finisher, will be graduated from Harvard.

Captain William Moore of Harvard, second in the furlong and third in the hundred, will not be back next Spring, but Robert Cook of Michigan, fourth place man in both sprints; Robert Clark of Princeton, who got third in the two-twenty; Wingate Rollins of Tech, and Frederic Devis of Pennsylvania, fifth men, have another year in college, although Rollins may not be eligible to participate next year on account of the four-year rule.

Lincoln Weld, '21, victor in the hammer throw, and Captain Edwin Myers, who captured the pole vault, return to in the Fall, while George Dandrow of Tech and Joseph (Cuddy) Murphy are rated as sophomores.

Cedric Smith, fourth place man in the hammer, and third in the shot, graduates from Michigan this year. Ames Stevens of Harvard, fifth place hammer thrower, also winds up his studies in June.

Wilbur Newstetter of Pennsylvania, runner-up in the pole vault, is a senior, while Landers, his team mate, and Robert Harwood, Harvard, '20, are two of the quartet tied for third place who are coming back to college. Dudley Parker of Yale and Joseph Breakley of Rutgers are packing away their books this Summer for the last time.

LOCAL WOMEN WIN GRISCOM GOLF CUP

For another year at least, the Griscom Cup will remain in the possession of the New York women, for in the last of the tri-city matches over the Apawamis links yesterday the metropolitan combination won decisively over Philadelphia, 12 to 3. All the prophets had chosen the Quaker City aggregation to win without much trouble because of the fact that Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, winner of the Eastern title earlier in the week; Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck, former national champion; Miss Mildred Caverly, runner-up in the national tournament in 1916, and Mrs. G. H. Stetson, one of the most promising Philadelphia players, were playing on the first four places respectively. It was figured that this quartet would all win their matches, while the rest of the lineup on both teams was fairly evenly matched.

Of the four women mentioned, however, only one scored a point for her side. That was Mrs. Stetson, who eliminated Mrs. Thomas Hucknall, winner of the Red Cross tournament at Apawamis a year ago. Mrs. W. A. Gavin, metropolitan champion, was carried to an extra hole by Mrs. Barlow, but the Baltusrol woman eventually won. The same was the case with Mrs. L. C. Stockton and Miss Caverly, the first named winning on the nineteenth hole.

Mrs. Gavin was one down at the sixteenth green, and halved the next. Both women got in the long grass on their tee shots at the eighteenth. Mrs. Barlow needed two shots to get out, with the result that Mrs. Gavin won the hole and squared the match.

Miss Marion Hollins played fine golf against Mrs. Vanderbeck, and it would have been difficult for any one to hold her. The Westbrook girl lost the first, but squared accounts by winning the third in a par 4. Mrs. Vanderbeck was also playing well, and was never at any time, until the match ended, more than one down. Miss Hollins made the first nine in 41, a stroke more for her opponent, and came home in 44, including 7's at the fifteenth and home hole.

Out .....6 5 4 5 3 4 5 3 6—41
In .....4 5 3 4 5 7 4 5 7—44

Miss Beatrice Lounsbery also had a close match with Miss Frances Griscom, the New York girl winning on the home green. Mrs. M. H. Frayne defeated Mrs. T. H. Vetterlein by the same margin.

HARVARD PICKS GOLF TEAM.

Will Send Quartet to Intercollegiate Tourney at Merion.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 6.—Harvard University will enter a team in the Intercollegiate Golf Tournament which is to be held at the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, June 23-28. Pennsylvania and Princeton have entered teams, and two or three other colleges will be represented.

The university representatives will be determined by four successive rounds of medal play at Oakley. The four men having the lowest totals will make the trip, and 1922 men are allowed to compete, as by the time of the meet they will be no longer in the freshman class. The 1919 men, although they have graduated, will also be eligible to represent the university.

TO HOLD BIG BOUT DESPITE WEATHER

Rickard Declares There Will Be No Postponement — Willard Does Road Work.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 6.—Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey will meet in their heavyweight championship contest here July 4 whether there is a clear sky or a driving rainstorm. Tex Rickard, promoter of the contest, made this announcement tonight in denying reports that the contest might be postponed until the next day because of inclement weather.

"All talk of a postponement is idle," Rickard said. "I am taking this stand now for the benefit of the public. There will be thousands of persons in Toledo from every part of the country, and to ask them to stay over for another day would be imposing an undue hardship. It is possible the contest may be delayed an hour or two, but it will not be postponed."

Rickard announced that although the contest is a month away the advance sale had reached the astonishing total of $300,000. This indicates, it was said, that the total gate receipts will exceed $500,000.

It became known tonight that Willard is after Clay Turner, the Indian light-heavyweight; Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, and Bartley Madden, another light-heavy, to work with him. It is contended that the champion has boxed with the sparring mates already in camp so often that he knows all their moves and that this is harmful in his preparation for a grueling contest.

The champion intended to do five miles on the road this morning, but he became lost in the outskirts of the city and covered seven miles before reaching home. In the afternoon he boxed six rounds, three each with Jack Hempel and Walter Monahan.

The champion fell to the floor of the ring during his set-to with Hempel, when he missed a punch and became overbalanced. He enjoyed a good laugh when the crowd of spectators roared over his spill.

OPEN SHOOT TO CIVILIANS.

Sportsmen Will Be Allowed to Compete in National Rifle Matches.

For the first time in the history of the national marksmanship contests sportsmen will have a chance to compete at the national rifle matches, which will be held at the United States Naval Rifle Range, near Caldwell, N. J., this Summer. The above announcement has been made by Lieut. Col. William C. Harllee, U. S. M. C., the executive officer in charge of the matches. During the rifle matches Colonel Harllee said that traps for clay target work would be installed at the Caldwell range under the supervision of the American Trapshooting Association.

Colonel Harllee also made public yesterday details of the national marksmanship competition, to be held at the Navy Rifle Range, under the auspices of the Navy Department, wherein rifle and pistol shots from all parts of the country will decide small arms championships.

The national matches, as the competitions are known, will begin on Aug. 25 and will be precedded by the matches of the National Rifle Association of America and various State events.

The test of skill with the rifle as characterized by the National Individual Match and National Team Match calls for the firing of sixty shots with United States rifle, model of 1903, using ammunition furnished by the Government. The contests are divided into three stages.

In the first stage each contestant will shoot twenty shots rapid fire, on the B-target, upon which the bullseye measures twenty inches at a distance of 200 yards. Ten shots will be fired from the kneeling, from standing position and a like, number of shots from the kneeling-sitting, or squatting-from standing position. Each string of ten shots must be fired in one minute. Either what is known as the battle sight or leaf sight may be used.

The third stage calls for twenty shots for slow fire at 800 yards on the B-target. Twenty shots will be fired in one string of ten shots, prone position, a second string of five shots kneeling, and a third string of five shots sitting or squatting in order named. Sighting shots are not permitted.

The third stage call sfor twenty shots slow fire at 1,000 yards—the long range test—on Target C, the bullseye of which is thirty-six inches.

VOSHELL IN TENNIS FINAL.

Will Play Major Harran at Westchester Club Today.

S. Howard Voshell and Major G. B. Harran of the British Army will meet in the final of the invitation singles tournament at the Country Club of Westchester today. Both players reached the final round yesterday, some of the matches being played during the rain. Voshell and Fred C. Baggs played their semi-final match during the shower, Voshell winning at 6—4, 6—0.

The summaries:

Semi-Final Round—S. Howard Voshell defeated Fred C. Baggs, 6—4, 6—0; Major G. B. Harran defeated Harry Parker, 6—4, 7—5.

Metropolitan and Bronx Championships Begin Today.

Weather permitting, the biggest tennis tournament of the season will begin this afternoon on the courts of the New York Lawn Tennis Club, at 238th Street and Broadway. Two titles and two challenge cups are at stake, involving the metropolitan and Bronx County championships, and the same tournament will also include the Manhattan doubles, a unique combination of tennis honors. The entry list of 124 names is the largest in the history of any of the events now for the first time staged simultaneously, as well as the largest yet assembled for a 1919 tournament.

Two former champions are entered, each with a chance of gaining permanent possession of a trophy. Frederick C. Inman has twice won the metropolitan title, while S. Howard Voshell has two legs on the Bronx championship cup. These two topnotchers are on opposite sides of the draw.

RAIN HALTS NET TOURNEYS.

Plan to Conclude Play for Women's Title Today.

Rain again cut into the local tennis tournaments yesterday, and all play had to be abandoned for the afternoon. Out at Forest Hills tarpaulins were spread over two of the grass courts, in the hope that a late start might be possible, and all the contestants were on hand, ready to begin play at a moment's notice.

If clear weather returns, it is planned to finish the women's metropolitan tournament today and tomorrow. The remaining semi-final match of the singles, in which Miss Eleanor Goss meets Miss Marion Zinderstein, is scheduled for 10 o'clock this morning, and will be followed immediately by the final round of the doubles, Miss Eleonora Sears and Mrs. George W. Wightman playing Miss Goss and Miss Zinderstein, the present national champions.

FEAR AMERICAN BOXERS.

British See Prospect of This Country Gaining All Championships.

British boxing promoters and sporting writers are beginning to view with alarm the prospect of America, already dominant in the game, soon making a successful conquest of the titles in every division. Jimmie Wilde is now practically the only boxer who has been able to defend a championship against the Americans, and the British lament the fact that the game is not receiving more serious attention at home. One writer says:

"When she has got her boxing house in order, America will be after every world's championship which she has the slightest chance of winning. It will be little to our credit if we allow her free passage to these distinctions. From merely local competitions we must arise to inter-city affairs, such as London vs. Birmingham. It is not so many years since the rivalry between these places was as keen as a razor's edge."

THE WIRE SYSTEMS.

We trust that Mr. BURLESON's days may be long in the land, but we are ready to write the epitaph of the Postmaster General. For a model we should take JOHNSON's on GOLDSMITH and reverse it. That is to say, GOLDSMITH touched nothing which he did not adorn. With the Postmaster General it is quite otherwise. Except, of course, the department's surplus. His profits grew with the cost of operation, and might have sufficed perhaps to pay at least the interest on the national debt, if his plans had not been thwarted by labor troubles. His policy was that postal employés might present grievances to him personally. But his sympathies were with his employés only individually, and they regarded the privilege as derisory. Collectively they were as unknown to him as they were to the private employers who recognize unions of their own selection only, and who decline relations with other unions. The wire services were taken over in the face of labor troubles, and partly to prevent them by putting strikers in an attitude of resistance to Government. The strike having ripened, nevertheless, the wire services are turned over to the gentlemen who formerly operated them for private interest, and who now face the difficulties of the strike as Government officials. There is the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, which has ordered the strike. And there is the Western Union Employés' Association. The company says there are 710 members of the belligerent union, and that if they strike they never will be re-employed. The union says there are 3,000 strikers in ten Southern States, where the company says there are only 300 members. The membership of the Western Union Employés' Association is uncertain.

The status of the companies is as uncertain as the status of the strike or the strikers. The order of the Postmaster General was so generally misunderstood that he issued an interpretation of it, and the interpretation of the interpretation by the Senators of the committee who are looking into the trouble is that the Postmaster General wished to transfer the responsibility for the labor troubles to others, while he retained other responsibilities in connection with the taking over of the wire services. He seems to have surrendered the burden of operation while retaining control of the companies themselves until Congress shall pass legislation making complete surrender of the properties to their owners safe. He had increased rates by $30,000,000 and wages by $34,000,000, and there was necessity for the rates to be continued by a protective statute until the $4,000,000 had been absorbed "by economies." The department's deficit on operation was put at $1,000,000. The figures do not match, but they are not ours. How long would be necessary to recoup the deficit of either sum seems to depend on the result of the strike, and that is anybody's guess.

The result of the quarrel may be serious, yet worth while if it settles the definition of a union, under the policy of protecting collective bargaining. Employers have a right to be protected against collective bargaining with a multiplicity of unions. Employés claim a right to select the union they wish to belong to. How shall the line be drawn between unions which must be recognized and unions which may be ignored or fought without antagonizing the official policy of the War Labor Board and of several departments of Government, to say nothing of the Federation of Labor in agreement with them?

INVESTIGATING THE WAR.

It may be singular that the War Department at Washington has not received the official report of the Chief of Staff of the First Army in France to the General Commanding the 35th Division, which Governor ALLEN has given to the press; but Secretary BAKER, who has again been taken by surprise, is on solid ground when he submits that no investigation of the handling of the 35th Division at the front should be held until General PERSHING and officers "upon whom he relied for guidance and advice" can be heard. Governor ALLEN holds a brief for the division in which he has interested himself, but he seems to have retained himself, possibly because he is public spirited and thinks that somebody in authority should speak out. But it may be doubted whether he strengthened his case, which originally was that the division lacked airplanes, transportation, and artillery when it went into battle, by having published the report of the staff officer which Secretary BAKER had not seen or seemed to know nothing about.

That report reflected upon the organization, training, and leadership of the 35th Division, and was a very vigorous document. It brings into the controversy other questions than airplane, transportation, and artillery deficiencies. Secretary BAKER makes a good point against Governor ALLEN when he observes of the staff report: "It says no word about lack of airplanes or lack of artillery. It is practically confined to those things which you testified [before the Rules Committee] that you knew nothing about." Mr. BAKER adds: "The document to which you refer bears but slightly on any concrete allegation which you have made. * * * The officer who wrote it is still in France."

Apparently it would have been better for the cause which Governor ALLEN has made his own if the report of this officer had not seen the light. If there is going to be an investigation of things that were wrong and went wrong with the 35th Division, every organization in the army whose friends are dissatisfied with its performance in battle, and particularly with the relation of staff officers to it, may be the subject of inquiry. In that event, Congress would have very little time for legislation during the next two years. Would it not be well to limit investigation to the salient cases of inefficiency and neglect?

THE SOLDIERS OF WINNIPEG.

It is a good thing to know that the revolutionary strike in Manitoba is dying out, and no praise can be too great for the discharged soldiers who, when the police and fire departments struck hands with disorder, stepped forward to take their places and virtually to take over the government of the City of Winnipeg. Nevertheless, it is unfortunate. When these soldiers pushed the disloyal police force out of the way and took charge of the city themselves, they created a vigilance committee like that one which ruled San Francisco in 1856, after all the ordinary machinery of government had broken down. It was not so in form, perhaps, but it was so in fact. The soldiers of Winnipeg correspond to WILLIAM T. COLEMAN's band of determined citizens who, without warrant of law, took upon themselves the task of governing San Francisco and placing it among the list of civilized communities.

We say this not in deprecation but in praise of those patriotic and civic-minded soldiers. We are proud to think that, in case such an intolerable situation should arise in the United States, our soldiers and sailors would play the same part that was played in Winnipeg. For all that, it is a grievous thing that in free communities like Manitoba and Alberta and British Columbi it is possible for revolution to go so far as to menace the Government, and that the Government can only be saved by volunteers. The only reason the volunteers did not rise to save it before is that there is ingrained in the mind of the Anglo-Saxon, and the races to whom he has communicated his idea of freedom, a trust in the processes of law, in the instant ability of Government to cope with any situation that menaces him. Is that trust breaking down?

EDUCATION AND BOMBS.

Former Secretary MCADOO says that the bomb explosions are due to the fact that "the men responsible are uneducated, that they have not a proper training or knowledge of the ideals and privileges of American citizenship." Whatever hands made or placed the bombs, the murderous theory and direction according to which they acted comes from educated men. These revivals of nihilism, directed now by a proletariat seeking to make itself into an autocracy by means of terror, spring from educated men. These bomb throwers, however ignorant, stupid, and depraved, have been educated in the gospel of violence and hate. Is there any way of making them have a proper training or knowledge of the ideals and privileges of American citizenship? Is it possible to educate these men, in Mr. MCADOO's words, to "a proper conception of what this country means"? TROTZKY is an educated person. What knowledge of the ideals and privileges of American citizenship did he carry away from his residence here?

Whether they are aliens or citizens, the disciples of the new nihilism are beyond reason, beyond argument, beyond understanding of American or any other free, representative, and orderly Government. They hate equality, freedom, order. They seek the destruction of government other than that of a class. Possibly the children of such men may be amenable to American ideas. For themselves, when they resort to criminal methods, deportation, the penitentiary, are the only practicable school teachers.

A SENATOR'S WORRIES.

Senator JOHNSON declared in the Senate on Monday that the League of Nations was a trust. He has forgotten President ROOSEVELT's memorable division of trusts into good and bad trusts. The American Sunday School Union is as much a trust as the League of Nations. So, for that matter, is the United States of America. Calling a thing a trust nowadays does not evoke the sensation of loathing and the shrinking which some feel when they see a snake.

But he also supposes it to be a war trust; inasmuch as it does not provide for the calling of a referendum whenever our country is attacked by a foreign Power. If, for instance, that country which keeps him awake nights, Japan, were to seize Hawaii and land a few divisions in Washington State and California, Senator JOHNSON would have the people of the United States hold a referendum on the question of whether we should send any troops to resist their penetration. At least so we infer from his speech. He would not have a single company sent west of the Rockies to defend California until the last return was in from Eastport, Me. No wonder California loves Senator JOHNSON.

To Senator JOHNSON's eyes Belgium must be the most villainously autocratic of nations. When German troops crossed Belgian soil the Belgians held no referendum—not a fraction of a referendum, not a single, solitary plebiscite in the remotest Belgian village. They simply declared, in the words of the Chinese schoolboy, "Belgium is a country, not a road," and, as Cardinal MERCIER put it the other day, they fired the first and last shots of the war. So Serbia. When the Austrian artillery began to bombard Belgrade they did not even hold a town meeting, much less a referendum. They turned in and drove the Austrians off the Serbian side of the Danube, and kept on doing it until the Austrians got the assistance of Germany, Bulgaria, and Turkey. These Serbs are an antique lot, on whom the sun of new thought has never shone.

The Senator says that the Holy Alliance failed, and so will the League of Nations. The Holy Alliance was formed to insure the untroubled reign of despotism, of autocracy. It wanted to insure peace, it is true, but the peace of Warsaw, the peace of autocracy regnant. Now, to a man who is picking at the coverlid and to whom nurses are administering daily doses to make him sleep, it may appear reasonable that when a bund of Emperors fails to insure the domination of autocracy it is a sure sign that a league of all the world's nations will therefore fail to insure a democratic peace. It will not occur, however, to the passerby outside the hospital.

So, too, with the reservation concerning the Monroe Doctrine. "It could not have been written with any other purpose than the destruction of the Monroe Doctrine." On the contrary, it might have been written with another purpose. It might have been written by an American with the purpose of obtaining from all the nations of the world the thing which for a hundred years they have refused—the recognition of the Monroe Doctrine. It recognizes the Monroe Doctrine as a "regional understanding," and upholds it. That is a good deal more than any President, from MONROE to TAFT, has been able to extort from the nations in the way of recognition. The danger, in Senator JOHNSON's mind, seems to lie in the words "regional understanding." What does it matter what they call it so long as they recognize it?

EXCEPTIONAL DRAMA.

"With a few worthy and notable exceptions of legitimate drama," says a Chicago clergyman, Director of the Illinois Vigilance Association, in a recent discourse. But what he goes on to say is the old homily about the degeneracy of the stage, the least unseemly of his phrases being "moral filth which might make the devil blush." The cry has been familiar through all the generations since FRANCIS BACON castigated the Elizabethan theatre for its addiction to "arts voluptuary" and "arts of pleasure sensual," and demanded laws to repress it—stigmatizing his age as decadent in the very year in which SHAKESPEARE completed "Hamlet." The only remarkable thing about the vigilant Chicagoan is that he recognizes "a few worthy and notable exceptions." If it had fallen to him to write "The Advancement of Learning" we might have had a contemporary allusion to the fact that, barring one song from the leading lady and a few questionable quips from DICK BURBAGE, "The Tragedie of Hamlet, Prince of Denmarke" was not unworthy of the attention of the pious and the erudite.

In the many recent pulpit fulminations against our stage nothing is more remarkable than the fact that there has been only this parenthetical allusion to what is really admirable and morally stimulating in the fare of the passing season. The bedroom farce and the "classy, girly, jazzy show" have been repeatedly described in terms calculated to set the feet of the young men dancing toward Broadway, with cheeks brazenly resolute to surpass the devil in blushlessness; but, for all the press work of the pulpit censors, the "worthy and "notable exceptions of legitimate "drama" might have remained sequestered as the noontide dew.

In point of fact, they have not remained sequestered. BARRIE's "Dear Brutus" was produced on Dec. 23, and when it closed it had played only a few less than two hundred performances. The achievement is more remarkable because BARRIE has several times surpassed "Dear Brutus" in humor and sentimental phantasy—the most popularly appealing of his qualities. The main interest of the piece lay in a world-wise and disillusioned philosophy of life and character, which was not less scrupulously veracious because it brought a final moment of moral regeneration. RACHEL CROTHERS has given us two little romantic comedies, sensitive in taste and of impeccable morals, which have also been popular—"A Little Journey" and "39 East." The newly formed Theatre Guild gave us JACINTO BENAVENTE's picaresque comedy, "Bonds of Interest," affording those who care for the art of the theatre an opportunity to enjoy the leader of the modern Spanish school at his best. It then produced "John Ferguson," a play of the modern Irish school which is admirable alike for its tensely human drama and for its revelation of spiritual forces in ferment. Reinforced as it was by subtle and vigorous acting, it would doubtless have achieved a run of many months if produced at any time except the fag end of the season. The Greenwich Village Theatre made the first production here of the "Shakuntala" of KALIDASA, a classic of truly Shakespearean calibre, which, intended for a few matinées, eventually established itself for a regular run. WALTER HAMPDEN gave us his Hamlet, which has been everywhere recognized as an achievement of the first order.

Is it truthful to stigmatize the theatre that has poured out such riches as a sink of moral filth? Is it wise, or indeed honorable, to advertise it as such? There was lately produced a bedroom farce so degraded that it could not be described. Within a fortnight the play died the death. If it had been widely attacked as immoral, as the managers apparently hoped it would be, it would doubtless have prospered. There will always be men of the theatre who serve their own ends by exploiting sensational impropriety. But must there always be moralists who gain a cheap publicity by denouncing them? If so, the devil may well rejoice.

THE DRY LEAGUE.

At the eleventh hour reinforcements have come up to the rescue of American liberties, about to be bartered away to this dread League of Nations where Great Britain has six votes in the general assembly to our one, and black-and-tan potentates from Borneo might sit in judgment on the American tariff. Senator BORAH must have sighed with relief when he read of the prospective organization in Washington of "The Anti-Saloon League of Nations," a body already as august as the other League, and no doubt destined soon to supplant it as easily as Mr. ANDERSON has supplanted the New York Legislature.

"The plan is for all nations, large and small, to have equal representation; but the United States being the dominant prohibition power, will probably be in control." What more fitting than that the much-talked-of domination of the Geneva League by the Mistress of the Seas should be counterbalanced by the predominance in the Washington League of Columbia, the Gem of the Desert? Germany has not yet applied for admission, having heard afar off Mr. ANDERSON's reference to her supposed affiliation with American brewers; but Ireland, Scotland, and France are charter members. If the Scotch can contemplate without alarm the prospective management of their affairs and the extinction of their most delectable product by this League of which "the United States will probably be in control," it only goes to show that Scotland has no patriots so alert and sensitive as WILLIAM P. BORAH and JAMES A. REED.

MR. BORAH'S THIRD PARTY.

There is no end to Senator BORAH's tremors and speeches about the League of Nations. Each day it seems to give him more pain. It rises monstrous before his eyes, the sum of all villainy. If the Democratic Party and the Republican Party approve it, then there will be a third party, Mr. BORAH is sure, "that will represent the American people and American institutions." It would be interesting to the statistician and the sociologist to see the irreconcilable adversaries of the League of Nations collected and counted at the polls. That aversion to arbitration and peace should be "American" is one of those little exaggerations of theory to which Mr. BORAH's sincere but enthusiastic temperament is subject.

Twenty-three years ago the white metal was the god of his idolatry. Then, too, there had to be a third party, the Silver Republican, to accommodate the devotees of the great American cartwheel dollar. Mr. BORAH was just as earnest then as he is now. Then calamity was to come upon us for the Crime of 1873. Now it is to come upon us from the Crime of 1919. Remembering how the dark prophecies of the free silver men to scorn were scattered, how can even the most admiring friend of Mr. BORAH refrain from a grin at his present lugubrious vaticinations?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Strange Sign of Prejudice.

HENRY FORD is not the only man who is seeking just now to get money consolation from a newspaper for saying harsh things about his brand of patriotism. Down in the State of Alabama Representative HUDDLESTON has been grieved both by editorial articles and cartoons in The Birmingham Age-Herald which in his opinion impugned his loyalty to an intolerable degree, but the Congressman's sufferings must have been less keen than those of Mr. FORD, for he sued for a mere $50,000 instead of a whole million.

When the suit came up for trial the other day it terminated, for the present, in a truly curious incident. Eleven jurors had been accepted, and then the opposing counsel fell into a bitter squabble over the competence of the potential twelfth, it having been charged that the man had referred to Mr. HUDDLESTON as "a Socialist, a Bolshevik, a traitor to his party and a traitor to his country." In behalf of the plaintiff it was contended, not without some show of plausibility, that these characterizations hinted prejudice, and while the lawyers were arguing the question the chosen eleven were sent out of the courtroom. What did they do to beguile the tedium of lonely sequestration but join in singing loudly our national anthem!

At any rate, that is what they attempted, and whoever will may believe that in Birmingham eleven men selected not for vocal ability and knowledge of poetry really sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." At any rate, the Judge trusted the affirmation of his own or other ears that this was what the jurors had done, and on the ground that thus they had disclosed an incompetence to try the case fairly, he declared a mistrial and dismissed them! Just why he did so is not made evident by the information at hand, and his action therefore cannot here be explained. It must remain a cause of wonder till more facts arrive.

Dryness for Rich and Poor.

An inevitable and immediate result of what CHARLES M. SCHWAB at the Pan American Conference in Washington said about prohibition and the enforcement of it will be to convince no small number of his fellow countrymen that, instead of being a kindly as well as able man, he is a very monster of cruelty, never so happy as when he can inflict acute pain.

For Mr. SCHWAB, in seeming seriousness and sincerity, expressed the opinion that if there is to be dryness it should be complete, and for everybody, from the very beginning of it. As for those who have stocked their cellars with alcoholics in order that they may escape for years or for life the thirst so soon to be felt by the majority of the population, he declared that they should be compelled to "disgorge."

The word is a dreadful one, and the proposal, coming from such a source, is more dreadful still. At least it will so be held, and the horror of it is that there will be difficulty, if not impossibility, in disproving that Mr. SCHWAB has the support of logic and equity in what he said.

Prohibition at least should pretend to prohibit, and it cannot do that if it lets the rich drink their fill as well as ride in the modern substitute for chaises.

PROHIBITION IN TEXAS.

It Was Passed by Votes of "Whites, Blacks, and Mexicans."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a Texan and a Southerner I trust you will permit me to express my resentment at Father Belford's public statement at Madison Square Garden last night, according to THE TIMES of this date, as follows:

"Not because the white people in the South wanted prohibition, they wanted it for the negro, just the same as they have refused in the South to enforce the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments." They were willing to enforce prohibition for the negro, but not for the white man, just the same as in the South today the ballot is for the white man and is not for the negro."

While Father Belford was uttering the foregoing misleading charges, the clerks of elections in the great empire of Texas were counting a majority of ballots cast that day in favor of both constitutional prohibition and woman suffrage, an election conducted according to the law by Democrats and Republicans, whites and blacks, and where for once party lines were not observed. In all Texas, a typical Southern State, the ballot was not denied a single citizen who had qualified to vote in accordance with the law of the State, whether white, black, or Mexican. I have acted as judge of many State elections in San Antonio, and I have never known a single instance where a negro man was denied the constitutional right to vote in an election, or any discrimination whatsoever against the negro voter in favor of the white man. In San Antonio Saturday negroes voted both for and against constitutional prohibition. One thing I can say, for I know the political situation in Texas like a spelling book, that not a negro minister of any church, and not a white minister of any church, Protestant or Catholic, publicly advocated the cause of anti-prohibition or anti-equal suffrage in the Texas State election last Saturday.

WESLEY PEACOCK.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Department of Political Science in Dartmouth gives each year a course in State Government. Each student who takes this course is expected to supply himself or be supplied with a copy of his own State Constitution.

There are at the present time about twenty students who live in the State of New York who are taking this course. Before the course began I wrote to the office of the Secretary of State at Albany asking if he could supply twenty pamphlet copies of the State Constitution for use of such students. I received no reply. After waiting nearly two weeks I wrote to the New York State Library, from which I received a prompt and courteous answer, stating, however, that there were no pamphlet copies of the State Constitution available for such purposes.

I have now received another letter from the State Library saying that there is no prospect of being able to comply with this request, and quoting a certain Mr. Taft of the Secretary of State's office to the effect that that department receives upward of 2,000 similar requests a year from schools, and that they usually reply that any school needing them should have them printed by its Education Department.

Is there something peculiar in my make-up, or am I right in believing, as I do, that the great State of New York might well stand the insignificant sum which would be necessary to comply with such requests as a means of helping in a minor degree in the education of its future citizens?

LINGERING FIUME CLAIMS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the TIMES of the 26th instant, you published a report of a discussion of the Adriatic question at St. Marks-in-the-Bouwerie by the Italian Captain, Sapelli, and Mr. Bennington. I was there myself. Captain Sapelli, an undeniably sympathetic type of soldier, presented the Italian point of view on the Adriatic question which can be summed up as a feeling of resentment for the opposition against paying Italy in full for her sacrifices, without considering, however, that thereby a great injustice would be done to a third party, and that the award to Italy of the Adriatic Slavs would be for Italy itself a Danaic gift and an eternal danger for the peace of the world. But, unfortunately, this is just the way most of the Italians are looking at the question.

Captain Sapelli did me the honor of mentioning an article of mine, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES, concerning Senator Lodge's statement as to Fiume, wherein I stated that Fiume was the only fit commercial harbor for Jugoslavia. He replied by saying that only a small percentage of Croatian trade passed through Fiume. But one must not forget that in former Austria-Hungary the Vienna and Budapest centres were leading a parasitical life at the expense of the subjected nationalities, and that Jugoslavia has now to live her own economical life, which is impossible without a free outlet on the sea. As for the problematical Italian majority in Fiume City, we should not forget that in Trieste live more Slovenes than all the inhabitants of Fiume and surroundings put together.

Captain Sapelli does not like the Jugoslavs, and considers them as enemies of the Allies. I am sure, though, that he is not thinking about the 30,000 Jugoslav volunteers who bravely fought and died on the allied side on the Dobrudja, or about the 153 Jugoslav officers who, on July 1, 1918, being war prisoners in Italy, petitioned the Italian Government to let them form volunteer legions among the Jugoslav prisoners and join the Serbian Army, which Sonnino obstinately denied, while, at the same time, his press organs never tired of denouncing the Jugoslavs for their absence from the ranks of the Allies.

Mr. Bennington, an "expert" on Dalmatia after a three weeks' stay there as guest of the Italian Government, told how he put the "acid test" to the complaints of the Jugoslavs in Dalmatia against the suppression of the Slav schools. But, alas, he found that the school children could speak Italian. To make this discovery, it was not necessary to go to Dalmatia. Every Jugoslav from the coast can speak Italian. If a commission of strange gentlemen, and army officers at that, had come to my school when I was a little boy, we, too, would have all raised our hands on a question about the knowledge of the Italian language; besides, we would have been awfully frightened.

Mr. Bennington stated that Dalmatia was the birthplace of many distinguished men, but all were Italians. This is simply the limit. Tommaseo, a luminary of the Italian literature, and Lubin, the great Danteist, never ceased to emphasize their Slav conscienceness. They are a proud contribution of the Dalmatian Slavs to Italy's culture, just as artistic Dalmatia is a contribution of the Dalmatian Slavs to an art which from Italian became international. The astronomer Boskovich, to whom Milan and London erected monuments, was also a Dalmatian Slav, and so, of course, was Gundulich, the father of Croatian literature. The painters, Bukovac and Medovich, whose names are known to every artist, are Slavs from Dalmatia, and so is Mestrovich, the greatest living sculptor, whom the Illustrazione Italiana compared once to Michelangelo.

But certainly all this will not keep Mr. Bennington from calling the Dalmatian Slavs "goats," to which he likes to compare them. There is, alas, one thing against which even the gods fought in vain.

R. F. HLACHA.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of May 29 it is stated that the figures given in my recent letter to the Mayor as to the number of school children in New York City on double shift or part time are not borne out by figures from the Board of Education.

May I be permitted to reply that the figures given by me were taken from the weekly bulletin of the public Educational Association of Jan. 4, 1919, which reads as follows:

Official reports from the Department of Education for October, 1919, show that:

Every third child in the New York City schools is either on double shift or part time—a total of 247,472 out of 714,388 in the elementary grades of the city as a whole.

Every fourth child is on double shift, that is, on double or duplicate session, a camouflaged form of part time—a total of 174,622.

Every fifth child receives less than five hours of schooling daily—a total of 140,392, of whom 36,406 are on part time in the upper grades and 59,983 are on both part time and double shift.

A member of our committee was informed at the office of the Board of Education that no school buildings have been completed since Fall, and that contracts for the buildings now in process of erection were not given out until February of this year. It is safe to assume that the figures given by me to the Mayor have not materially changed since they were officially issued by the Board of Education last October, and certainly could not have changed for the better.

The statement that from 30,000 to 50,000 children in New York City are receiving no education at all was taken from a bulletin of the Public Education Association of a later date.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Great men die, and we speak well of them because of the service they have rendered and to inspire others to follow their lead. There are other men of lesser spheres whose fine qualities should not pass unnoticed. Victor Larson, who died yesterday, was for twenty-seven years the faithful sexton of Calvary Church. In the past generation he has been known to many prominent families and to others in humbler walks of life. Forgetful of himself, he has watched over their interests, he has been sympathetic to their sorrows. With entire devotion he has fulfilled his duties to the church, not as a man pleaser, but because it was the place where the best in men was not good enough.

In these days of restless advancement it is well to call attention to one who used his humble talents in untiring service for the comfort of others. The highest praise the Master gave was "Well done, good and faithful servant," and this belongs to the faithful sexton who has passed out from our midst.

THE COVENANTER.

Article X. Considered—Would It Involve Us in Small and Remote Wars?

By WILLIAM H. TAFT, GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM, A. LAWRENCE LOWELL and HENRY W. TAFT.

Article X. of the League Constitution provides as follows: "The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all the members of the League. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression, the Council shall advise upon the means by which the obligation shall be fulfilled."

The law of the League with the sanction of the power of the League thus forbids the violation of the international commandment, "Thou shalt not steal by force." It is the embodiment of the principle that we entered and fought this war to maintain. It is the answer to the German doctrine announced through its philosophers, its military writers and its avowed policies, that "Might makes right." It is the denial of the principle which Germany set forth in the summing up of her whole imperial purpose, that conquest by force was essential to the progress of God's world, and that she was His instrument in such conquest.

Objections Answered.

We are met by the objection that the United States should not bind itself not to extend its beneficent influence in the work of civilization through conquest. Such objectors argue that in this way the United States has extended its useful dominion to the present borders of Mexico and to the Pacific Ocean. If this argument is sound, then the United States should certainly not enter the League. If we yield to it, we ought never to have entered upon the war against Germany. The argument is not in the slightest degree to be distinguished from that of the German philosophers and military men whose purpose Germany was carrying out in this war. If the improvement in civilization and its spread are dependent on war in its present form, involving for the future what is practically world suicide, then surely mankind is in a bad situation. Those who support the League may well leave to the people of the United States and the people of the world the decision whether they prefer a slower method of improving Christian civilization than one which involves the cruel destruction of one-half the world in order to enable the other half to get on.

The second and the more persuasive objection which is urged to Article X. is that it is likely to involve us in wars all over the world, and to require our soldiers to undergo suffering and hardships and to give up their lives in battles waged for remote countries in whose welfare we have but little interest. It is said it will prove to be a heavy burden, both in life and treasure, for our people.

How Obligation Is Limited.

In answering this objection, it is to be noted that the operation of Article X. to increase the other obligations of the League is comparatively small.

Under Articles XI. to XVII., inclusive, provision is made for the peaceful settlement of all threatening disputes between nations by safeguarding action of the League, by arbitration, by mediation and recommendation of settlement, and by enforcement of covenants restraining war until three months after such machinery for peaceful settlement has failed. By Articles XVI. and XVII. a breach of such covenants is to be penalized by an immediate and universal boycott of the covenant-breaking nation and then by such military expeditions as the members of the League shall determine necessary on the recommendation of the Council. Unless, therefore, the external aggression in violation of Article X. occurs three months after attempts at peaceful settlement under Articles XII. to XV. have failed so that the covenants of those articles are not broken by it, the penalizing provisions of Articles XVI. and XVII. would apply to the aggression, whether for the purpose forbidden in Article X. or not. In other words, Article X. only increases the obligations of the members of the League beyond those of Article XVI. in respect of wars which do not violate the covenants of Articles XII., XIII., or XV. Article X. becomes practically important, therefore, only after the purpose of the war has been clearly disclosed. A war only for punitive purposes without taking territory or overthrowing a Government would not violate Article X.

We have seen this exemplified in our construction of our own Monroe Doctrine. The Monroe Doctrine, as originally declared by Monroe, was Article X. limited to the aggression of non-American nations against countries of the Western Hemisphere. When Spain attacked Chile during Mr. Seward's incumbency as Secretary of State and Chile called on the United States to defend her, Mr. Seward replied that our policy did not look to our defending an American State against any punitive war by a non-American power, but only against one intended to take territory or to destroy independence. Mr. Roosevelt laid down the same limitation of the doctrine in the Venezuela case as to wars begun merely to collect financial obligations when they did not seek appropriation of territory or deprivation of independence.

Modified by Other Articles.

The intervention of the League under Article X. is, therefore, likely to be invoked only in cases where the victor in a war "legal" under Articles XII., XIII., and XV., seeks to impose terms on its enemy contrary to the undertaking of Article X. In all other cases, resort to Article X. will be unnecessary because action under it will have been anticipated under other articles. Article X., therefore, enlarges the scope of the obligations of the League much less than has been generally assumed.

Second, should a violation of Article X. occur, and the Council advise a plan for fulfilling its obligation by the members of the League, this plan will have to be unanimously agreed upon by the Council. We have constantly one representative in the Council, who must thus join in advising the plan. We can reasonably assume, therefore, that the plan recommended will not involve us in military expeditions unreasonably remote or inconvenient, and that it will advise our action in that part of the world where we can most promptly furnish aid and in respect to wars in which by reason of proximity we naturally have a direct interest.

A Poe Riddle.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Quite a flood of light has been strewn about some of the darker episodes in the life of Edgar Allan Poe, but there still remain mysteries that mystify and will not unravel. Who wrote the "Outis" letter to The New York Mirror in the "Poe-Longfellow war" seems to remain as much a vexed question to Poe students as the identity of the author of the "Junius Letters," or as to who struck Billy Patterson. Recent renewed efforts to trace the identity of "Outis" bring no definite results. The names of Charles Sumner, Henry Stevens, and Hudson the actor are mentioned, but nothing definite is brought forward to identify any of them as the "Outis" writer in The Mirror. "Outis" acknowledged a friendship with Longfellow, but said that he did not know Poe, nor was he acquainted with Aldrich, not even knowing the latter's residence. Poe himself showed much uncertainty as to the identity of "Outis," with the exception of styling him a "Yankee," which he likely meant in the Southern parlance of his day, a "New Englander."

In the Longfellow letters and papers there is left nothing to give the slightest clue to this matter, nor has anything ever turned up on the subject from Willis. That Poe or Willis, as some think, could have been "Outis" is highly improbable. Willis seems to have felt the publication of Poe's criticism against Longfellow in The Mirror rather keenly. He stated that he afterwards called to see Longfellow, but the matter was hardly broached. He was also surprised that some one of the New England newspapers or friends of Longfellow did not come out more promptly with some rejoinder. There appears to have been three attempts to answer the Poe criticism in The Mirror, while "Outis" came as the fourth. Poe's efforts at a rejoinder were all centred upon "Outis'" statements. He would seem to have been successful in his attempts at knockout blows, as "Outis" never came back. From the later letter of Longfellow's to R. W. Griswold requesting that the subject be dropped it seems possible that Longfellow may have called further discussion on the part of "Outis" to an end. It is my opinion, however, that eventually this mystery will be unraveled.

Foreign Critics.

Why must James Montgomery Flagg select the "two British foreigners" who have recently had the temerity to say unkind things about Americans and neglect the host of others who have been enthusiastic in their praise of American exploits? Why take the comments of foreigners seriously, anyhow? If Mr. Flagg had lived in London, say, for twenty years, he might have heard Americans, Australians, and Colonials of all kinds criticise and dictate to English people to their hearts' content. The British are used to "soullessness" in the eyes of other nations. Perhaps they do not consider it an uncomplimentary term. Mr. Flagg's especial hostility to the British is so pronounced that I suspect he really knows very little about them, for they, like Americans, invariably show their worst side to those in whom they sense prejudice.

B. PETERS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you tell me why James Montgomery Flagg should take Mr. Nevinson's remark about American artists so very personally? Artists such as Shannon, Abbey, and Sargent have lived in England, and made a good living, too, for years, (aye, and exhibited regularly at the despised Academy,) but I don't think any one there has ever thought or spoken of them as aliens, or asked why they don't return to their own country, &c. Mr. Nevinson's remark was not tactful, but he evidently does not understand that Americans, as a rule, bitterly resent criticism of themselves, while dealing it out ad lib, on those benighted beings the Britishers.

It was with great pleasure that I read your little article under the heading of "No Need to Get Excited." I wish that more of this reading appeared in the daily papers. I am an Australian. I came here six years ago, was absent three years in the war. Naturally I was eager to see Hawker win world honors for "little" Australia, but, on the other hand, it was a source of regret that the daring Australian aviator said what he did about the American enterprise. I agree with you that it is also a "miserable business" for those whose delight it is to make capital of such misspoken statements.

The Englishman has long been recognized as a good sportsman, and now, in these later years, none the less the Australian. International athletics have indeed proved that all the English-speaking peoples are "good sports."

There is no place for this "stirring up the mud" between Uncle Sam and John Bull. Our own brothers died that there might be union and harmony between all of us. Anything that does not tend to harmony brings discord. Therefore, in a way, we dishonor our noble dead by creating these false impressions, which flavor of German character.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will Mr. Wilson acknowledge the mistake he made by judging that Fiume should go to the Ingoslava, when he receives the appeal of 160,000 Croatians against the rule of Serbia? Certainly the Serbians are not friendly to Croatians, Slovenes and those of Bosnia-Herze-Govina, who were fighting against Serbia, Italy and the Allies. If some hundred of thousands Slavs should be annexed to Italy, it would be for their own advantage, and the liberal government of Italy would gladly allow them schools in their own language. Under the Hapsburgs they were the oppressors, and not the oppressed.

URGING SESSIONS TO VOTE ON SUFFRAGE

MICHIGAN MAY BE FIRST

Several Other Western States Are Expected to Take Speedy Action on Amendment.

Governors of different States who have been asked to call special sessions of the Legislature to ratify the Federal Suffrage Amendment were sending in replies all day yesterday to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, 171 Madison Avenue, stating their intention of doing so. Governor A. E. Sleeper of Michigan wired:

"Michigan Legislature now convened in special session. Have wired Secretary of State to hasten official confirmation of Senate action. As soon as this is received Legislature will ratify."

Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas sent this:

"Am polling the members of our State Legislature offering the suggestion that they come voluntarily to Topeka without cost to the State and spend one day ratifying the suffrage amendment. I believe they will do this in such a spirit as will help the situation. With deep congratulations to you upon the fulfillment of your lifelong dream."

Mrs. Catt in responding wired to Michigan and Governor Sleeper and said that unless Illinois acted Michigan would be the first State to ratify.

The Illinois Legislature is in session, and Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, President of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association, is making every effort to have her State first in line.

Miss Helen Benbridge, President of the Indiana Woman's Suffrage League, started immediately upon the passage of the amendment to Indianapolis to urge Governor Goodrich to call a special session. The Governor is in sympathy with the suffrage cause, and has said that if a special session was necessary he would call one.

Governor Harding of Iowa, it is understood, has given out an interview saying that he would call an extra session for the purpose of ratification.

The Legislatures of Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts are still in session and the Ohio Legislature will reassemble on June 16, its main object, it is said, being to ratify the amendment. The Georgia Legislature will convene on June 26.

"Our slogan is 'A Vote for Every Woman in 1920,'" said Mrs. Catt yesterday. "There is no constitutional impediment to immediate ratification of the Nineteenth (the woman suffrage) Amendment. This is shown in Article V. of the Constitution, which says that an amendment is valid when ratified by the Legislatures of the proper number of States. There has been misunderstanding regarding the Federal suffrage amendment because there is provision in the Eighteenth Amernment (the prohibition) for a year's delay, this being for economic reasons, to enable manufacturers of liquor to reestablish their business in other lines. Economic conditions are not affected by the suffrage amendment."

Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, ex-President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs,, who took part in the recent Democratic Committee meeting at Chicago as committeewoman from Texas, yesterday said:

"Quiet Places," won him high praise. In 1914 he went on the stage under the name of Carlyle Morgan, two of his brothers also being known on the stage as Frank and Ralph Morgan. In July, 1917, he enlisted as a private in the Bellevue Hospital Unit, and went to France in February of last year.

what she believed was an essential for the political party which was to get the votes of the newly enfranchised women, for 1920.

"There are many women," she said, "who are not affiliated with any political party, but who will vote for the men put up by the party which has in its platform some great fundamental issue touching the lives and the hearts of the people as a whole. A party which does this will capture the votes of the women."

CONCORD, N. H., June 6.—Governor Bartlett, in a statement issued today, expresses the opinion that the Federal amendment granting suffrage to women should be ratified and put into operation in season to permit women to vote at the next Presidential election. On account of the New Hampshire Legislature being composed so largely of farmers and hotel men, the statement concludes that no extra session should be called this Summer, but strongly intimates that one will be called in the Fall.

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 6.—Kentucky will not be numbered among the States to call an extra session of Legislatures to act on the Federal suffrage amendment according to announcement by Governor James D. Black.

CONGRATULATIONS BY WILSON.

President Sends a Message to Mrs. Catt.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—President Wilson, through the White House, today sent to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, the following message:

"I join with you and all friends of the suffrage cause in rejoicing over the adoption of the suffrage amendment by the Congress. Please accept and convey to your association my warmest congratulations."

TO ANNUL SECRET MARRIAGE

A secret marriage between Virginia Blair Reeves, stepdaughter of Commander Archibald L. Parsons of the League Island Navy Yard in Philadelphia, and Henry H. Warner, who was an inspector at the Hog Island shipyard, was revealed in the report filed in the Supreme Court here yesterday by Alfred H. Townley, who was appointed to take testimony in a suit brought to annul the marriage. Mr. Townley recommended that the marriage be annulled. Mrs. Warner made her début in Washington in 1916 and was graduated from the Cathedral School and the Corcoran School of Art.

The testimony in the case showed that the couple came to New York City from Montclair on June 15, 1917, and after obtaining a special dispensation from Mgr. Lavelle, at St. Patrick's Cathedral, were married at St. Andrew's Church by the Rev. James P. Hearn. They then returned to finish a week-end party, and from there Mrs. Warner went to Philadelphia to visit a friend, Miss Agnes Replier, while Warner returned to his job.

Mrs. Warner testified that she and her husband never lived together. She didn t tell her mother and stepfather of the marriage until early this year, and the annulment suit was brought soon afterward.

"I never even took walks with him," testified Mrs. Warner, who at the time of her marriage was 21 years old, her husband being a year younger. "Later, in Washington, I saw him at the Powhattan Hotel, where my parents were stopping, but we saw each other only in the lobby. We met again at the Chevy Chase Club, near Washington, and we breakfasted there. Father and mother knew nothing about our marriage. He said he did not have money enough to support me. He was out of employment just before we were wed. Then he got $20 a week at Hog Island, and later was raised to $35. I tried to show how we could get along—made out a family budget showing that we could live well enough on $150 a month.

"Yes,' he said, 'I suppose that people could live together on $150 a month, but for personal reasons and for lack of interest in you I could never live with you.' I told him that my position was intolerable—that I was married yet I was not his wife. I insisted upon knowing what I was to be. He repeated that he did not care for me, and I realized that there was no love on his part. I told my parents about it then."

Mrs. Warner declared that if her husband had ever asked her to live in the same house she would have lived with him in spite of the money question.

FOR MEMORIAL HALL ON GRAND UNION SITE

The question of holding a public hearing on the matter of laying out a park at Pershing Square on the site of the old Grand Union Hotel, Forty-second Street and Park Avenue, was discussed at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate. After a plan proposed by nearby property owners to have the Square made into a park had met with opposition from Controller Craig, a number of citizens, headed by General George W. Wingate, suggested that a large memorial hall be erected on the site, where conventions, meetings, and sporting events could be held. This plan was referred to a special committee appointed by the Mayor.

Borough President Frank L. Dowling suggested yesterday that consideration of the matter be laid over until the first meeting in September, by which time the committee would have made its report. Controller Craig objected on the ground that it would hold up the sale of the property, which is under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission.

"If you tie this sale up for weeks it will interfere with subway construction, and it ought to be decided now," said the Controller. "If the hotel men want the site for light and air, let them come in and bid for the property."

General Wingate asked for more time so that he could get a committee together to obtain subscriptions for building a memorial hall. The Controller did not object to one week's delay, and the matter was laid over.

After a hearing the board adopted an amendment to the building zone law which prohibits the erection of garages within 200 feet of a public school. The amendment was suggested by Edward M. Bassett, formerly a member of the Building Zoning Commission, and received the approval of the Committee on City Plan. It provides that no garage for more than five cars may be built or extended on any part of a street between two intersecting streets on which there is an entrance or an exit of a public school. During the discussion J. S. De Selding, speaking for the amendment, said that Dr. William L. Ettinger, Superintendent of Public Schools, was also in favor of it.

What interest has Dr. Ettinger in garages?" inquired the Controller. "If Dr. Ettinger would send down the plans every week for two school houses, as he promised to do, and for which money has been appropriated, he would be doing something better than taking an interest in the stables."

"The Controller knows very well," said the Mayor, "that when the Legislature was in session they had no time. They were busy trying to get their salaries increased. Now that the Legislature had adjourned they may be able to do some work."

"This is no place to mention Dr. Ettinger's name," commented Borough President Dowling, and Mr. De Selding said he was sorry he had done so.

The board adopted the recommendation of the Committee on Finance and Budget appropriating $3,300, to be provided from accruals, for ten additional plan examiners in the office of the Borough President of Brooklyn. The additional force, it was explained, was needed to facilitate the examination of plans for house building and alterations, which work is greatly in arrears. The board also directed the payment of the bill of Charles E. Hughes, amounting to $3,497.33, as special counsel to the city in the argument before the United States Supreme Court in the action of the State of New York against the State of New Jersey to restrain the contamination of the waters of New York Bay by the Passaic River trunk sewer.

The board also adopted the report of the Committee on Finance and Budget to allow $673 for furniture for Justices' chambers in the new Brooklyn Court House.. An item of $285 for a davenport, said to be for Justice Cropsey's chambers, was not allowed.

In a letter to Commissioner of Accounts David Hirschfield, Mrs. William P. Earle, Jr., of Brooklyn, declared yesterday that she would not permit any official to deter her from criticising the police or any other branch of the City Government. Mrs. Earle had previously written the Commissioner of Accounts offering to co-operate with him in an investigation of the Police Department, but she declared that in accepting her offer the Commissioner did not meet her conditions. In her letter to Commissioner Hirschfield she said:

You requested my co-operation in an investigation of the Police Department which you said the Mayor directed you to make. I replied that I would grant that co-operation under conditions that insured the publicity and thoroughness of such an investigation and I renew my offer under these conditions.

While you now state that you accept those conditions, you very clearly depart from them by your request that I call at your office to submit the names of the witnesses I desire you to call, with a statement of what I propose to prove by each such witness. The obvious suggestion is, however, that you call the Police Commissioner to testify in public session and ascertain from him whether it is true or not that Inspector Costigan was reduced to the rank of Captain, that the Commissioner endeavored to make an explanation of his reasons for that action and subsequently substantially withdrew those reasons; that specially trained police squads, including the bomb squad, whose experience would just now be so valuable to the community, have been abolished or reorganized; that civilian positions in the Police Department have been abolished and members of the uniformed force assigned at higher wages to do the same work; that the daily work record of complaints has been abolished and its place taken by a loose card system; that members of the force who had been dismissed in previous administrations were reinstated; that the Police Commissioner suddenly discovered the need for additional police Captains on the eve of the expiration of a Civil Service list which contained the names of several of his colleagues in the Police Lieutenants' Association in such position as to make their appointment possible if his application for the new captaincies should be granted, as it was.

Clearly, as Commissioner of Accounts it is your duty to ascertain whether the facts which I have stated are correct or not. If you will give evidence of desiring to make a thorough investigation by following the suggestion that the Police Commissioner be called as your first witness in public session, as I have suggested and as I indicated, I shall be glad to comply with any further request from you for additional suggestions.

In any event as a voter and citizen of this city I shall continue to exercise my constitutional right to criticise or praise the conduct of our City Government and shall not permit myself to be deterred therefrom by any public official.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Earle criticised the administration's conduct of the Police Department in an address before the Civitas Club, of which she is President.

GO ON BETTERING BROADWAY

Association, Largest of Its Kind in the World, Plans New Activities.

The Broadway Association, as a result of its membership drive, is now the largest civic street improvement organization in the world, it was announced at the closing luncheon of the drive at Churchill's yesterday noon.

"The campaign has been a great success," said Major Henry G. Opdyke, managing Director of the association.

"We shall now take up the program of activities for the street. There are several which are obvious, and which will receive immediate consideration, such as the better lighting, the improvement of transportation and traffic conditions, and the study of the best means of eliminating the 'dead spots,' developing Broadway's architectural possibilities, keeping the street clean and beautifying its small parks and grass plots, and planting trees. There is ample work for the association to do in preserving the fine characteristics which have made Broadway the most loved street in America, and at the same time make it more convenient and desirable as a home, business, and play street."

GETS $2,000 FOR LIBEL.

Mrs. Ruby Doyle, 296 Twelfth Street, Brooklyn, yesterday received a verdict of $2,000 in the Civil Branch of the County Court, Brooklyn, in her suit for libel against George P. Clauss, secretary and treasurer of the Brooklyn Medical and Instruction Company, 991 Madison Street. Mrs. Doyle is employed as an agent of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Subway.

In her complaint she charged that on May 23 Clauss wrote to Colonel T. S. Williams, then President of the B. R. T., charging in his letter that he was one of a number of passengers standing in line before Mrs. Doyle's window. He charged the delay was so long that all of those in line left their places, threw their nickels on Mrs. Doyle's window and went on the platform without going through the turnstile. He charged, Mrs. Doyle alleged, that she deliberately forced the delay so that she could profit by the passengers not going through the turnstile. An investigation by the company, Mrs. Doyle said, proved the charges groundless and she brought action for libel.

ALLEGED SWINDLER HELD.

Julius Veronach, 32 years old, a Hungarian, alleged by the police to have been the ringleader of a band of ten men who a few years ago swindled a number of foreigners out of thousands of dollars through the medium of a "fake" money-making machine, was brought to this city from Pittsburgh yesterday by Detectives James McCoy and James J. Gegan of Police Headquarters from Pittsburgh.

Veronach was indicted by a Grand Jury April 3, 1918, on six counts, for which three bench warrants were issued. He was arrested about a year ago and while awaiting trial was at liberty on a bail bond of $10,000. He jumped this bond and, according to the detectives, has spent his time since then in Mexico, Cuba, Texas, California, Indiana, and recently in Pennsylvania. Veronach is the only one of the original band that has not been punished for the offense as yet, according to the detectives.

FREDERIC THOMPSON, SHOW BUILDER, DIES

MADE AND LOST FORTUNE

Frederic W. Thompson, showman and theatrical producer, builder of Luna Park at Coney Island and the Hippodrome, died yesterday morning at 5:30 o'clock at St. Vincent's Hospital, following a series of five operations, extending over a period of several years. Two of the operations were performed in May at St. Vincent's Hospital, the first being of minor nature and preparatory to the major operation about a week ago.

Following a period of ill-health from Bright's disease in 1915, Mr. Thompson underwent an operation for hernia, the appendix also being taken out. In 1917 he was operated on for gallstones, and in April of last year at the Polyclinic Hospital he was operated on again. He never fully recovered from this operation, but continued to grow worse, until the last two operations were decided upon in an effort to restore him to health. During the greater part of Thursday night Mr. Thompson had been unconscious. With him at the hospital were his wife, his sister, Mrs. T. W. Hamlin, and her husband. Mrs. Thompson remained at the hospital throughout the period of his illness.

The funeral will be held in St. Bartholomew's Chapel, Park Avenue, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets, at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The body will lie in state at St. Bartholomew's Chapel throughout today and Sunday until the hour of the funeral.

Frederic Thompson's Career.

Mr. Thompson was born in Nashville, Tenn., in 1872. He studied to be an architect, and this early training helped shape his later career, for architecture played an important part in his larger ventures. His first adventure in the amusement world was the building of "A Trip to the Moon" at the Buffalo Exposition. The success of this enterprise enabled him and Elmer S. Dundy, with whom he formed a partnership shortly after coming North, to purchase some concessions at the Omaha Exposition. This investment was a failure and Mr. Thompson returned to New York after losing all his Buffalo earnings.

Upon his return, with some wealthy Brooklyn business men as his backers, he built Luna Park, which did much to make Coney Island the playground of Manhattan, and when Mr. Thompson returned recently from San Francisco, where he went to recoup his fortunes, in broken health and having failed of the object of his trip, all Coney turned out and gave him a benefit.

Builds the Hippodrome.

Luna cleared $600,000 the first year, and when it had been firmly established Mr. Thompson turned his active brain to the second of his great ventures—the New York Hippodrome. With Dundy, who was his partner in the enterprise, he produced the first spectacles presented there, and for this the partners drew a salary of $50,000 a year in addition to the profits given to them.

After several years as director of the Hippodrome Mr. Thompson turned his attentions to producing plays. In 1907 he married Mabel Taliaferro, the actress, and one of the first productions was Margaret Mayo's "Polly of the Circus," with Miss Taliaferro in the title rôle. Other productions followed in rapid succession—"Brewster's Millions," "Via Wireless," "A Fool There Was," in which Robert Hilliard was the star, "Springtime," and "My Man" among the number. Some of these made vast sums and others were spectacular failures, but all of them reflected the reckless prodigality of the producer. It is related that in the case of the Hippodrome productions there was a stage ship that cost $12,000 to build, but because the lines did not please Mr. Thompson he discarded it.

Once Worth $1,500,000.

He employed only the most efficient men for his personal staff, and it is said he would not employ any man for these positions for less than $100 a week. At the zenith of his career he was worth at least $1,500,000, and when in 1912 he was dispossessed from Luna Park and subsequently went into bankruptcy his liabilities were placed at $664,000. After the Lipton Cup races he bought the Shamrock for his personal use. At one time he carried $100,000 in life insurance policies made out to his mother, to whom he was devoted, and at the premiers of his productions the curtain was never rung up till she had taken her seat in the auditorium.

A Grand Jury returned two indictments yesterday against Arnold Rothstein, well known in certain sporting circles, charging him with assault in the first and second degrees by shooting Detectives John J. Walsh and John McLaughlin of Inspector Dominick Henry's staff on Jan. 19, when they attempted to break into rooms of an apartment at 301 West Fifty-seventh Street. Walsh and McLaughlin, who had been trailing and arresting gamblers, said they suspected that gambling was in progress in the apartment rooms and when denied admission they forced the door, but were driven back by pistol shots.

Rothstein and others in the rooms refused to disclose the identity of the person who fired the shots, and insisted that the detectives were mistaken for hold-up gunmen, and that the firing was in self-defense. All of the men found in the rooms were arrested and arraigned in the West Side Court and fined for gambling.

Assistant District Attorney Smith started an investigation and the February Grand Jury had since been at work trying to fix the identity of the assailants of the detectives, both of whom have recovered. Judge Crain in General Sessions issued a bench warrant for Rothstein. Before the warrant could be served Rothstein surrendered himself to Judge Wadhams in General Sessions. He was released in $5,000 bail for a hearing on Monday.

To End Daylight Law This Fall.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Favorable report on the bill to repeal the Daylight Saving law on the last Sunday in October was voted today by the House Interstate Commerce Committee. The vote of the committee was 10 to 8, and was taken after adoption of an amendment to the bill, which had originally proposed that the clocks be turned back the third Sunday after its approval. Chairman Esch said that, in voting to make the repeal effective on the October date on which the clocks would be turned back under the existing law, members were influenced by arguments that serious hardships would result in Eastern industrial centres by changing the time in midsummer.

PAGEANTS FOR SERVICE MEN

Rehearsals for the first of a series of outdoor pageants in which several thousand men in uniform and ex-service men will appear will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the lawn at the West Sixty-fifth Street entrance of Central Park, under the direction of Marius McGuffey, head of the Volunteer Entertainment Bureau of the New York War Camp Community Service. The great cast will be made up of men recruited from the various service units of the Community Service and of the girls enrolled in its girls' division.

The pageants are a welcome home program for troops returning from overseas during the Summer months. At the same time they will afford outdoor recreation for many city-bound young people whose enjoyment of greensward and sky is all too limited. Broadsword exhibitions will be staged by some of the girls, and there will be volley ball contests with forty on a side and three balls going at one time. The entire series of pageants and entertainments will have a community-wide significance through having every part of the city represented by those taking part.

HALL OF STATES GETS FLAG.

Standard of Connecticut Company Presented to War Camp Service.

J. L. Nicholson of 2,636 Germantown Avenue, Philadelphia, a member of the Rainbow Division, yesterday gave to the New England Committee of the Hall of States of the New York War Camp Community Service the battle standard of Company F of the old 1st Regiment, Connecticut National Guard. He picked it up off the battle field on the northern edge of the village of Trugny, where a battalion of the 26th Division had suffered heavily under an intense barrage.

Mr. Nicholson tried to find some of the 26th to turn the standard over to them, but thinks that all had been killed. He came into the Hall of States a short time ago and received a welcome from the New England Committee. The standard will be sent to the State House of Connecticut when the work of the committee is finished.

JOSEPH A. ALTSHELER DIES.

Joseph Alexander Altsheler, editor of the Thrice-a-Week World and a writer of stories of adventure for boys, died of heart disease Thursday night at his home, 131 Riverside Drive. Accompanied by Mrs. Altsheler, he was in Germany at the outbreak of the war. It is said that the trying experiences through which they went during that period in an effort to get out of Germany and back to America seriously affected his health and hastened his death.

Born at Three Springs, Ky., April 29, 1862, he was a student at Liberty College, Glasgow, Ky., and later at Vanderbilt University. He began his newspaper career on the staff of the Louisville Courier-Journal in 1885, remaining on that paper until 1892, when he came to this city and joined the staff of The New York World.

Mr. Altsheler was the author of a large number of stories for boys, including "The Sun of Saratoga," "A Soldier of Manhattan," "A Herald of the West," "The Last Rebel," "The Circling Camps," "The Wilderness Road," "My Captive," "Before the Dawn," "Guthrie of the Times," "The Candidate," "The Young Trailers," "The Forest Runners," "The Recovery," "The Free Rangers," "The Last of the Chiefs," "The Riflemen of the Ohio," "The Horsemen of the Plains," and many others.

He was a member of the Southern Society of New York, Author and Dunwoodie Country Clubs. The funeral will be held at the home at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon, and the body will be taken to Kentucky for interment.

WINNIPEG QUIETER WITH SOLDIERS' AID

CLASH ON STREET PARADES

WINNIPEG, June 6.—The strengthening of Winnipeg's police force by 3,000 war veterans as special constables caused an increase in minor strike disturbances today. There were personal encounters but no serious demonstrations occurred. Conciliation efforts were practically at a standstill as the general strike today entered its fourth week.

Brig.-Gen. H. D. Ketchen, commander of the military forces in the Manitoba district, in his first public address since the beginning of the strike, told a mass meeting of several thousand returned soldiers that steps were being taken to deal fully with revolutionaries and undesirables in Winnipeg and other places in Canada.

"When the Government does act in connection with the Winnipeg upheaval," he said, "I am sure that you soldiers all will agree that, when I intimated today that action was impending to deal with revolution and Bolshevism, I did not tell you all."

General Ketchen received a tremendous ovation at the meeting, which was brief. Mayor Gray also spoke. No parade followed, but many of the soldiers went to the City Hall to be sworn in as constables.

Threats were openly made that unless certain of the strike leaders are taken into custody "the loyal soldiers will be heard from."

The constable force was increased by one unit of more than 100 mounted men, all veteran Canadian cavalrymen. This unit will be commanded by Captain D. M. Dunwoodie, who won the Distinguished Service Medal while in France.

Acting on reports that the radical element was threatening a campaign of terrorism, the city authorities decided to increase the general force to 3,000 men. Over 1,000 constables had already been sworn in, it was announced, mostly returned soldiers.

Strikers Defy Mayor's Order.

In a formal proclamation published this morning, Mayor Charles F. Gray ordered the stopping of all parades and forbade the congregating of crowds in the streets. The Mayor said he acted in the interest of law and order, and with the hope of preventing bloodshed.

Shortly after the soldiers' mass meeting adjourned, strikers and strike sympathizers began a parade in the business districts, in defiance of the proclamation, which the strike leaders declared was "illegal." The parade started in the direction of the City Hall, where the soldiers were registering as special constables.

Officials at the City Hall and executives of the Winnipeg Citizens' Committee commented upon the action of local strike leaders in sending a national call for men identified with the One Big Union Movement to come to Winnipeg.

"Scores of men have come to my office and hundreds have told various city officials that they are anxious to return to work, but that they fear the wrath of 'the big five,'" said Mayor Gray. "Men with tears in their eyes, at bread and milk plants, told me they wanted to stay on the job but were afraid."

This announcement was authorized by the Citizens' Committee of 1,000:

"The national call for help by the local labor leaders seems to be the beginning of the end. Following the collapse of various general strikes in different provinces and the failure to precipitate strikes in a number of cities, it seems quite plain that the Winnipeg agitators realize the fate of their one big union movement in hanging in the balance. Winnipeg merchants and manufacturers know that thousands of union workers are ready to return to their jobs. Fear of violence has halted them."

For the first time since the strike began on May 15, squads of street cleaners were in action today. Newspapers again were sold in the business district. Deliveries of bread were made with the protection of constables, and milk was sold at municipal stations in the city schools.

Call for American "Gunmen" Denied.

A printed declaration in the strike bulletin that "gunmen imported from the United States" were on their way to Winnipeg, to oppose the striking forces and precipitate trouble, was branded as false at the City Hall. It was said that the purpose of the article probably was "intended to incite union men."

The following dispatch was mailed to Winnipeg from Saskatoon after telegraphers at Saskatoon declined to transmit it:

"We are convinced, after having viewed the Winnipeg strike situation from every angle and from the viewpoint of employer and employe, that there is a sinister motive among some of the labor leaders underlying the negotiations leading up to and during the strike, to establish the principle of the one big union and to overthrow constitutional authority."

Vancouver Shipping Tied Up.

Several more unions have joined the general strike at Vancouver, and coastwise shipping is almost completely tied up. The Canadian Pacific has begun arrangements to fill the places of striking stewards with women workers on their coastwise steamers.

The stand taken by the newspapers at Vancouver in their refusal to permit censorship of strike news by the typographical union won for the newspapers today, when the union receded from its action.

Two days ago the union rejected the call to join the sympathetic strike and the men remained at work, but informed the publishers they would not set up any news on the strike which they deemed unfair.

Any newspaper refusing to abide by the decision was to be left without a staff of compositors. All the papers united in refusing to permit union censorship.

Borden Rebuffs Calgary Postmen.

Special to The New York Times.

CALGARY, Alberta, June 6.—Premier Borden telegraphed to Mayor Marshall here today that the Federal Government long ago recognized the principle of "collective bargaining," and put it into practice in the formation of the Railway War Board. As to any private employers recognizing the principle, that was a matter for individual action or provincial legislation.

In regard to the postal workers, now the centre of strike trouble here, Sir Robert said they could not be reinstated, for such action would be subversive of responsible government.

"The Government," he added, "cannot reinstate men who have thus set their public duty at defiance, unless it is prepared to abandon all effective attempts to maintain public service. The postal employes dismissed themselves when they saw fit to engage in a sympathetic strike after the very distinct notice they had received."

Borden's message concluded that the strikers were trying hard to induce the Civic Federation to strike and thus tie up all public utilities.

FRENCH MINE STRIKE ENDS IN AGREEMENT

PARIS, June 6.—An agreement ending the strike among the coal miners in the Pas de Calais region and the Department of the Nord was reached at a conference today at the Ministry of Labor between mine owners and representatives of the miners.

The eight hour day which the men had demanded will go into force June 16. The day will include a half hour rest for underground workers and also increased wages. The decision as regards the minimum wage is to be left to the arbitration of M. Collard, the Labor Minister.

In a statement published today the more powerful railroad unions declare they have decided that they are not called upon to take any measures in connection with the present disturbance.

Reports that the strike in the Paris region, which now has been in progress four days, had had an origin other than in the legitimate demands of the workers were repudiated at a strikers' meeting this morning. It had been declared, for one thing, that German money was behind the strike, while other insinuations had been that Bolshevism figured in it. The meeting repudiated the idea of any mysterious origin for the strike movement.

The situation was little changed this afternoon. Pickets were placed near the power stations to guard against sabotage, and the number of soldiers at the important subway stations was increased. It was only at these principal stations that the subway trains stopped. Municipal guards rode on the few auto buses that were in operation.

It was officially announced this afternoon that the Metropolitan Subway was running forty-eight trains instead of the normal 180 trains, and that three trains in the north and south subway were running instead of the usual thirty-two.

The Prefect of Police, the principal officials, and the commander of the staff of the Military Governor had a long conference at a meeting which, according to the Journal, lasted from 9:20 o'clock last night until after 1 o'clock this morning. Several police measures were decided upon, and fresh detachments of infantry and cavalry will be called in to co-operate with the city officials. Numerous patrols of cavalry will be formed and military auto trucks will be posted at different points, ready to rapidly concentrate troops wherever they are needed.

ACTORS' STRIKE LIKELY.

Equity Brands as 'Subterfuge' Producers' Reply to Arbitration Offers.

Officials of the Actors' Equity Association, in a statement issued yesterday, branded as "subterfuge" the reply of the Producing Managers' Association to their proposals for arbitration of differences. The construction placed upon the managers' reply by the actors' association leaves the break between the two factions still unhealed, and makes an actors' strike more probable than ever.

"The letter of the Producing Managers' Protective Association," declares the statement of the Actors' Equity, in part, "ignores the offer of arbitration proposed by the Actors' Equity Association and says that the managers composing its membership will sign their own contracts with actors, and further says that any disputes arising over those contracts shall be arbitrated between the actor as an individual and the manager. In other words, the Producing Managers' Protective Association absolutely refuses pointblank the arbitration suggested by the Actors' Equity Association.

"Their offer merely means that the actor would be compelled again to fight his own battles against the managers' powerful organization without the assistance and backing of his organization. This would undo the six years' work of the Actors' Equity Association in endeavoring to get the actor a square deal. The offer of the managers is a subterfuge and shows that the actor needs the support of the Actors' Equity Association more than ever."

New Bedford Mill Strike Ends.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 6.—The strike of mill engineers was settled today and it was announced that the 30,000 operatives of other departments who were forced out on account of the strike would return to work next Monday. Most of the mills in the city have been closed more than two weeks. Representatives of the Textile Council agreed that union operatives would make no objection to working with non-union employes. The manufacturers promised that there would be no discrimination against strike leaders.

M'DONOUGH OUT FOR GOOD OF SERVICE

JOHN J. McGRATH NAMED

ALBANY, June 6.—Thomas H. McDonough of Troy, who was suspended April 21 as Superintendent of Public Buildings, today was removed from office by the Trustees of Public Buildings, and John J. McGrath of Phoenicia was appointed Superintendent.

The action of the Board of Trustees, which is composed of Governor Smith, Lieut. Gov. Harry W. Walker, and Thaddeus C. Sweet, Speaker of the Assembly, followed a hearing several days ago into the conduct of the affairs of the Superintendent's office.

It was alleged that a Troy painter had rendered a bill for $484.95 for work, which had been ordered by the Superintendent, while the State Architect estimated that the cost should have been considerably less. It was also brought out at the hearing that there had existed, and was continued by Supt. McDonough, a revolving fund, derived from the sale of waste paper and discarded furniture, from which loans were made to employes and emergency expenses paid.

"The office of the Superintendent of Buildings for some years past has been conducted in a careless, loose, and inefficient manner," said a statement issued by the Trustees. "Supt. McDonough has been careless and negligent in the conduct of his department. The general spirit of laxity and indifference to the needs or the requirements of the department, as well as the good of the service, demand the removal of the Superintendent."

GIVES LABOR A VOICE IN CO-OPERATIVE PLAN

Standard Oil Company of Indiana Also Announces Annuities for Workers.

CHICAGO, June 6.—The adoption of an industrial relations plan, carrying with it provisions for annuities for employes and giving them a voice in questions pertaining to relations with employers, was announced today by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

The plan, according to the announcement, will provide effective communication between the management and the employes on industrial questions; afford employes a voice in matters pertaining to working and living conditions; maintain the principles of co-operation and confidence by providing regular facilities for access by employes' representatives to the management, and promote the common interests of both employes and employers on matters concerning work, organization, industrial efficiency, and social well-being.

A "primary" will be held June 11 at which the employes will nominate from their number candidates for representative on a board of industrial relations. A joint general committee will hold regular monthly meetings.

The new plan specifically states that it will embody nothing intended to conflict with the right of employes to belong to labor unions or other organizations.

Geo. M. Cohan Again Friars' Abbot.

The Friars held their annual election yesterday afternoon at their clubhouse in West Forty-eighth Street. There was but a single ticket in the field, George M. Cohan being re-elected as Abbot, John J. Gleason as Dean, and Frank Stevens as Secretary. Joseph Klaw was elected Treasurer.

The following were elected to the Board of Governors, to serve two years: Eugene Walter, William A. Brady, John Pollock, Louis B. Eppstein, Joseph Moran, and Ralph Trier.

URGE REPEAL OF WAR TAX.

Managers Begin Campaign with Letter to Representative Fordney.

A campaign for the repeal of the amusement war tax was begun yesterday by the United Managers' Protective Association, representing the various amusement interests of the United States. An appeal was addressed to Representative Joseph W. Fordney, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House, citing the various channels through which the theatre is contributing to the Government, and urging a repeal of the tax on the ground that it is a tax on the public and not on the theatres.

The letter to Representative Fordney was in part as follows:

"The theatre has occupied an unique position under war conditions. Its costs have doubled. Its direct Federal taxes have doubled. Its indirect Federal contributions (in the way of increased railroad fares and railroad tax tickets) have almost doubled. But the theatre, unlike other enterprises, has been unable to increase the price of its product or pass on any of these costs to the public.

"The theatre is not appealing for a repeal of its direct taxes, such as the Federal tax based on seating capacity or indirect taxes, in the way of taxes on the traveling expenses of companies on the road, but asks that the tax on its patrons, on the theatre-going public, be repealed.

"This organization represents the legitimate theatres from Maine to California, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. It asks that the attendance of theatres be not further discouraged and lessened by the tax on the theatre-going public."

Individual appeals will also be made from theatres all over the country, and plans are under way for a vigorous campaign.

PLANS UNION OF TEACHERS.

Women's Trade Union League to Organize Library Workers Also.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—The National Women's Trade Union League, in convention here, today decided to organize library workers and to attempt the unionizing of public school teachers. The convention also decided to elect five delegates to represent this country at the Women's Labor Congress to be held in Washington next Fall.

The convention was thrown into an uproar today when attention was drawn to a published statement that Miss C. P. Fincher, New York, had accused the convention of being pro-German. The statement was the result of the convention considering the question of looking after the children of war-torn countries, regardless of nationalities.

After considerable debate the question of taking the courtesy of attending the convention from Miss Fincher was referred to the typographical union, from which she had obtained her card.

TAKE CHARGE OF SHIPYARD.

Government Officials to Complete Construction of Barges.

Government officials took control yesterday of the shipyard of the Downing Marine Construction Company, on the harbor between Sea Cliff and Glen Cove, L. I. The Government will push to completion the construction of three steel barges which are a portion of a contract for fifty made by the Government. The company did not complete its work, it is said, and Government engineers and accountants are now on the ground and will supervise the carrying out of the contract.

About 70 per cent. of the work on the three barges is still to be done, it is said. The vessels will be 140 feet in length and equipped to be handled by a crew of five men. Sixty Government employes were put to work on the unfinished hulls yesterday, and it was said the barges will be ready for launching early in October.

Lay Cornerstone of Fox Building.

With Borough President Frank L. Dowling officiating, the cornerstone of the new building of the Fox Film Corporation in Tenth Avenue between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets was laid yesterday afternoon before a large crowd of people. Among those who made addresses, in addition to the Borough President, were the Rev. Justin Corcoran of the Church of the Madonna at Fort Lee, N. J., and Rabbi Mayer Kornstein of the Temple Adath Israel. William Fox, the President of the corporation, was absent because of illness, so John C. Eisele, Treasurer of the corporation, represented him and replied to the addresses of the visitors.

In the course of his talk the Borough President said that he was opposed to the censorship of the screen.

The new Fox building will house all of the executive, studio, mechanical, and other activities of the corporation.

SLUR ON BERLIN JEWS.

Recruiting Circular Incites Race Hatred Among Germans.

Occasional cable dispatches from Berlin telling of a recent revival of anti-Semitic agitation in the German capital are reinforced by an item found in a copy of the Berlin Vorwärts of May 6 just received here. This item reports the posting up at the main entrance of the public library in Unter den Linden street of two placards, from one of which it quotes as follows:

"Officers, enlisted men, technicians, volunteers of all kinds of troop units of German-Germanic origin, who place value upon entering a troop where neither Jews, nor half Jews, nor friends of Jews will be accepted, may enroll at our recruiting bureau. * * *

"The units organized by us may elect their officers from the purely Germanic officers who have enrolled with us."

This appeal was signed by Josef Pelzer and Johannes Potthof for the "Committee for Popular Enlightenment," under whose names appeared the following line:

"Our recruiting of troops has been approved by the Ministry of War."

Vorwärts said it could not believe that such persons had really obtained permission from the War Ministry to recruit soldiers, and it called upon the army authorities to take prompt action toward putting an end to such anti-Semitic agitation.

The second placard was also signed by the "Committee for Popular Enlightenment," and it declared that in November, 1918, Oskar Cohn, a Jew, together with Haase, Barth, Dittmann, Scheidemann, and others, had set aside a State of law and order and replaced it by a Jewish régime of usurers, smugglers, and incompetents.

BACH FESTIVAL BEGINS.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Penn., June 6.—Rain such as has not been seen at the Bethlehem Bach festivals since their revival at Lehigh University in 1912 in no wise diminished the attendance at the opening session of the fourteenth festival in Packer Memorial Church on the university campus this afternoon. There were hardly a score of vacant seats. No tickets are left for tomorrow, when Bach's Mass in B minor will be sung complete in two sessions, at 2 and 4:30 P. M. The musicians who assembled for the festival today represented sixteen States and Canada.

The Moravian Trombone Choir from the tower of the church gave the customary summons, as in early Colonial days, to the sessions this afternoon and evening. The Bach Choir of 250 voices, under Dr. J. Fred Wolle, sang eight of Bach's lesser cantatas, opening with "The Lord Is My Shepherd," and "I With My Cross-Staff Gladly Wander." In solo parts there were heard Emma Roberts, contralto, of New York; Mrs. Fass and Mr. Douty of Philadelphia, and Captain Tittmann, bass, of Washington. The Philadelphia Orchestra furnished the accompanying players, as for some years past. Tomorrow's change of soloists for the mass will be Florence Hinkle and Merle Alcock, both New Yorkers.

WIRE STRIKE ORDER IN NATION PENDING

of 12,000 given out Thursday as the number likely to go out, and stated that 3,000 operators of the Western Union in the Southeastern States had joined the strike.

The situation in the strike declared last Monday against the Southern Bell Telephone Company, involving from 150 to 600 operators, according to the figures given respectively by the company and the strike leaders, showed practically no change.

Western Union officials asserted that the strike had made little inroad upon the service, and that the various offices of the Southern district were doing business as usual, with as many operators on hand in Atlanta and at most other points as were needed.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—Ten telegraph operators and two clerks employed in the main office of the Western Union walked out today. The chief operator, who made this announcement, added that the strikers constituted less than 1 per cent. of the force, and that there was no interruption to business.

WIRE OFFICIALS HERE REMAIN UNPERTURBED

All But Western Union Expect to be Immune from National Strike.

Extension of a strike of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union from the Southeastern States to the entire country would affect only 700 Western Union employes who are union men, Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union, reiterated yesterday. He expressed the opinion that not all the members of the union would quit work, and added that all who did would be barred from working again for the Western Union.

Officials of other telegraph and telephone companies said they feared no extension of the strike order on their systems, and Percy Thomas, Vice President of the Telegraphers' Union, asserted that no order had been received here to call out the members. Mr. Thomas said that since S. J. Konenkamp, the union President, had stated that three days would elapse before all the members would be called out, no definite order would be received until Sunday in case a national strike had been decided on.

"The strike, which has been called by S. J. Konenkamp, is meeting with practically no response from our employes," said Mr. Carlton's statement. "It really amounts to nothing and would attract no attention if it were not for the propaganda which the union people are able to get into the newspapers. We have about 55,000 employes on our land and cable lines, of whom about 40,000 are eligible for membership in the union, but of these 40,000 only 710 belong to the union. These 710 joined the union on the assurance of the Postmaster General that there would be no discrimination in regard to employes joining unions.

The Postmaster General has since turned the Western Union over to us to operate as we think best for the interests of the business. It has always been our rule, which we will adhere to, that where an employe quits the service with the hope of destroying or interfering with its continuity such person shall never again return to our employ. Of course, should any of the 710 men already mentioned quit for the above mentioned purpose they leave the service of the company for good.

"Bearing upon the matter of employes once quitting being ineligible for return to the company's service, ours is an industry which absolutely requires continuity of service. It is one of the industries that allows no interruption. Hence, strikes are tabooed.

"There is a well-working plan already in operation for arbitrating and settling any differences through the association of Western Union employes. In fact, this afternoon there is to be a meeting between the company's officers and a committee of the directors of that association for discussing the question of profit sharing.

"I have telegrams this morning from all over the country from local chapters of the Association of Western Union Employes pledging their loyalty to the company. Dispatches which I have received this morning from the territory covered by the S. J. Konenkamp strike reflect the following conditions at the various cities in that region:

"Greenville, one quit; Newport News, one quit; Savannah, all on hand; Richmond, all on hand; Norfolk, eight quit; Columbia, four quit; Charlotte, fourteen quit; Charleston, ten quit; Montgomery, four quit; Augusta, normal; Pensacola, two quit; Memphis, Nashville, Roanoke, Raleigh, all now working; New Orleans, 90 per cent. of force on duty; Atlanta, we have more than a full force this morning; Birmingham, three quit; Tampa, we expect to lose six; Wilmington, we expect to lose four.

"'I have a telegram from H. C. Worthen, General Manager of the Southern Division, reading:

"'Not a messenger boy has gone out and they have just renewed a pledge of loyalty, which is quite significant in view of the fact that we are at the beginning of the swimming and baseball season.'"

After the conference mentioned by Mr. Carlton of the Western Union officials and the officers of their Employes' Association in the afternoon it was announced that the meeting was only preliminary, and that only the return of wire operation to the company was discussed briefly.

Union N. Bethel of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company said his company was not affected by the strike threat because only the telegraph company was concerned, and because no notice had been received that the Government had returned the control of the American company's wires. F. H. Bethel of the New York Telephone Company said that no trouble was feared. At the offices of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company it was said that no strike threat had been made by its employes and no grievances had been presented.

SENATE TO HURRY RETURN OF WIRES

Senator Cummings, Chairman of the committee, read as follows:

"An order issued by me yesterday relative to the operation of the telephone and telegraph systems has been construed by some as actual return of the properties to the owners. No such action has been taken by me nor is any contemplated.

"This order simply dissolves the operating board appointed by me under date of Dec. 13, 1918, and directs that the systems be again operated by the regular operating officials under Government supervision. Responsibility of the Government to the systems in no wise collides. It being evident that these properties are to be returned in the very near future, it was necessary for the Postmaster General to take steps immediately to set up the regular operating organization of the companies so that when the properties are turned back it can be done without confusion to the service, which was the purpose of the order. This order in no wise affects the legislation pending before your committee or before Congress. It will enable the companies to begin steps immediately to prepare the data and collect their information to submit to the State commissions for the rate cases, which will probably be taken up immediately after the period of Government control ends."

Chairman Esch of the House Interstate Commerce Committee announced after a meeting of the committee today, at which the Postmaster General's action was not discussed, that the actual framing of legislation for the return of the lines would be considered on Monday.

POSTAL OFFICERS RESTORED.

Resume Duties Dropped When Burleson Removed Them.

Upon resuming operation of the wires after the period of full Government control, one of the first steps taken by the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company was the restoration to active service of all the officials who were removed by Postmaster General Burleson or who were not included in his plan of operation. The following telegram was sent out to all officials by Clarence H. Mackay, President of the company:

"On and after today the following officials of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, removed by Postmaster General Burleson, are restored to the positions formerly held by them in connection with the operation of the lines of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, namely, Clarence H. Mackay, President; William W. Cook, General Counsel; Edward Reynolds, Vice President and General Manager, and A. B. Richards, General Superintendent."

At the offices of the Postal Company it was said that all these officials were busy in the resumption of the operation of the wires, and that no additional statement on the plans of the company would be made.

Natural Milk Clean

For infant feeding

INFANTS thrive best when the quality of the milk is always the same. A slight change in the percentage of butter fat, or the presence of acidity due to improper feeding of the cows quickly shows itself.

Walker-Gordon Milk is delivered by the same organization that owns the farms and cows that produced the milk. The milk does not vary in quality; it always comes from the same milking herd. Daily tests check the percentage of butter fat. The cows are fed on correct amounts of clean grains and alfalfa hay. Exceptional conditions of cleanliness surround the milking, bottling and double-sealing of Walker-Gordon Milk.

Five Dentifrice Features in One

SOME of us brush our teeth to whiten them; others to prevent decay and still others to refresh the mouth. Many believe they have acid-mouth or wish to remove the "crust of tartar" which is forming.

Regardless of why you brush your teeth, study the chart above and decide whether the dentifrice you are now trying will do or is doing all that you can reasonably expect from a dentifrice.

If it is, continue to use it faithfully. If it is good for only one of the duties of a good dentifrice, you had better try McK & R Calox, which combines in one dentifrice most of the features of all modern dentifrices.

If you haven't heard the story of McK & R Calox—how it forms real lime-water in your mouth to prevent acids—how it creates fresh active peroxide on the teeth every time you brush them—how it releases genuine oxygen gas which penetrates into every crevice and "gasses" the dangerous decay-germs into harmlessness, if you don't know this story of the victory of modern science, send for "The McK & R Calox Story."

Your dentist will recommend McK & R Calox to you and your druggist has it. Try it next time you need a dentifrice.

The taste is a surprise to most people. It is not the least bit "druggy" which proves that it is possible to make a pleasant tasting dentifrice and that a "strong" taste does not prove the efficiency of any paste or powder.

WANT 8-HOUR DAY, BUT NO OVERTIME

SECRETARY EXPLAINS PLAN

Declares Elimination of Extra Work Will Promote Efficiency and Make Jobs for Soldiers.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 6.—Eight hours, with the elimination of all overtime, was demanded as the basic day for organized labor in place of the previous platform of forty-four hours a week by the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor in session here today. The new schedule calls for a four-hour day on Saturday, with eight hours on the other five week days.

Leaders of the organization today asserted that the workers did not want "overtime." Organized labor has always opposed the principle of overtime work, according to A. J. Berres, Secretary of the Metal Trades Organization and the "time and a half" or "double time" pay for such work was devised as a penalty with the idea of reducing overtime work to a minimum. The elimination of overtime work, he said, would help to furnish jobs for soldiers and sailors, and would tend to increase the efficiency of labor collectively.

The Metal Trades Convention also passed a resolution urging the establishment of a national board under whose jurisdiction all workers in navy yards and arsenals should come. There had been some dissatisfaction among the labor leaders in the matter of wages paid to this class of labor, it was said. Under this plan the board would be composed of an equal number of Government and labor representatives.

A plan was proposed to the convention to provide a monument for the soldiers and sailors of organized labor who gave their lives in the war. Under the plan union members would be asked to contribute one hour's pay toward a fund to be expended in building a monument, preferably in Washington.

Delegates are beginning to arrive here for the convention of the American Federation of Labor, which meets next week. Many of the delegates favor the elimination of all trade divisions in organized labor. They advocate combining all international unions into one immense union, thus abolishing the large number of locals. Leaders of the international unions assert that a large number of the eastern delegates have been won over to this idea. The leaders, all of whom are said to oppose the move, however, do not believe the fight will be successful.

Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation, said today that it was doubtful if the organization would take any official action on the prohibition question at the convention. Mr. Morrison said he favored prohibition and did not care who knew it. "I question very seriously," he said, "whether any action will be taken officially in this matter."

Piracy of a Startling Sort.

One of the prominent silk manufacturers had occasion recently to write a sharp letter to a jobber who had put an imitation of one of the concern's designs on the market. The startling feature of this bit of piracy was the fact that the imitation was stolen and put on the market in less than a month's time, before, in fact, the originator was able to complete plans for the sale of the original.

Does Not Pay to Scatter Business.

The small retailers, especially in the men's furnishing goods line, are finding it more unprofitable than ever to scatter their orders among a number of manufacturers instead of confining them to a few. In one case where a trustee was appointed recently, it was found that the dealer had forty-four creditors, although his business was below $50,000 a year. The trustee pointed out to him that, if he kept down the number of lines he carried, he would have obtained much better merchandise, as the wholesalers would then consider his account worth having.

Will Give Shoe Style Show.

A shoe style show will be given under the auspices of the New York Shoe Retailers' Association, of which John Slater of the J. & J. Slater Company is President, at the Bush Terminal Sales Building on the evenings of July 17 and 18. Living models will be used to display the styles of shoes, and there will be programs addressed on the various phases of the industry by men prominent in the shoe trade, moving pictures and music on both nights. The success of the style show held last February led to the decision to hold another get together meeting, and all those connected with the trade are invited to attend.

Gray Goods Sales Limited.

Gray goods sales were again limited in this market yesterday, with first hands still holding aloof. Second hands, however, put through some business—chiefly on printcloths—for delivery during this month and next. Among the sales they made were 39-inch 80 squares at 25 cents; 39-inch 68-72s at 17¾ cents; 38½-inch 64-60s at 14¾ cents, and 38½-inch 60-48s at 13 cents. Sheetings were inactive, but were held on the basis of 16 cents for 36-inch 56-60s, four-yard goods. Reports were received yesterday afternoon of the settlement of the strike at New Bedford, they also stating that the mills would resume operation on Monday. So far as could be learned, the news did not stimulate the demand for fine-yarn goods to any extent.

Have Wrong Idea About "Weeks."

Even better results than have been got by the various co-operative merchandising "weeks" that have taken place in the last few months could be obtained if the retailers who participate in them would look at them from a different angle. This assertion was made here yesterday by a prominent wholesaler. "The trouble is," he said, "that most retailers are not content to display the merchandise at regular prices and let the shopping public get its buying incentive from the displays and from the accompanying advertising. Instead, many of them cut prices more or less sharply, and thus give the wrong impression about the goods. The first thought that comes to the average person's mind when a price is cut is that there is plenty of that merchandise to be had. This is generally not the case, and it gives the whole affair the wrong 'twist' in the mind of the consumer. Consequently, the manufacturers of the goods being 'weeked' do not get full benefit of their efforts."

Care in Selecting a Trade Name.

Considerable thought must be given to the selection of a trade name, said the owner of a successful line of branded goods, in order that the article may not only be suitably designated, but also that the name picked have an equal significance throughout the countries in which the article is to be sold. He mentioned some of the errors that have been made in the application of American trade names to the South American trade. An instance he gave of an unsuitable name was in the case of a beautifier that was put on the market not long ago. The name in this instance was applicable to only a very small territory, outside of which its significance was lost. In fact, in the Southern territory the name was not only unmeaning, but also was regarded as an innuendo.

The Holiday Spoiled It.

The interruption of the holiday was given here yesterday as the main reason for the marked falling off in the amount of business being done in the local market for gray goods, according to one of the best-known men in the market, the Thursday to Monday vacation period gave buyers a chance to "cool off" and to get their thoughts working. Their thinking evidently led to the realization that, in the long run, no good end could be served by letting prices shoot up as they did. The result was, he said, practically a right-about-face on their part. Another factor that he also said had quite a little to do with the break in buying was the evidence of a cold feet on the part of some of the main speculating buyers when prices reached their high point.

Cotton Dress Fabrics Wanted.

One of the features of the hot wave of the last several days was the rush of duplicate orders for cotton dress fabrics, both white and colored, that is reported by local wholesalers. Many retailers were said to be understocked on these goods as a result of their unwillingness to place advance orders for Spring, because of the uncertainty that existed in their minds regarding the stability of prices, and the result was that the sudden increase in consumer demand set them off "hot foot" to replenish broken lines. Mail and telegraph orders have been numerous, and some of the more nearby buyers have come here in person to make sure of getting their goods. Reports vary as to how successful they were in covering their needs.

Positive Credit Reporting.

The members of the Wholesale Men's Furnishing Goods Association were quite interested in the statement made by one manufacturer at the meeting on Wednesday that, through the system of positive credit reporting as it is called, his house had secured fifty new accounts. This system was started by the association a few months ago, and consists not only of reporting the retailers who are slow pay, but also of giving the cases where bills are met promptly or discounts taken. Salesmen, it was pointed out, are often prone to get their business only from a set number of accounts and make little effort to add others. This may be due to the fact that formerly the retailer's rating was not up to the mark, or for any one of a number of similar reasons. With the prompt reporting of dealers who are not only poor credit risks, but good ones, the association is able to give its members information that is not only money saving but business building.

Hard Coal Men Busy.

Saward's Journal will say today that all talk of a dull Summer has disappeared in anthracite circles. Some producers report that they could run right through June and July with orders already in hand, and that would probably be general were it not that most of them stop entering new business when the accumulation on their books reaches a certain point. With such a condition existing, the problem confronting the trade is one of production rather than salesmanship, so far as the domestic sizes are concerned. It will also say that there is no disguising the fact that the tidewater bituminous market is badly demoralized, and this in the face of a steadily improving trade. The trouble has been brought about through the practice of using the pools as a dumping ground for coal that is not wanted elsewhere.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The J. J. Henkel Company of San Francisco, Cal., is now being represented in this market by Baer & Lilienthal, resident buyers, 1,150 Broadway. The new store of this company will be opened early in August, catering to the high-class trade. Its buyers are now here making purchases.

Feltman & Brothers & Hermel, whose factories are located in Yokohama, have taken display space in the Bush Terminal Sales Building. The firm's products consist of Japanese quilts, jackets, and robes, the demand for which in this country is said to be increasing rapidly.

While early trading in stocks yesterday bore many of the familiar signs of an extravagant advance, the movement was prevented from going far by a heavy output of profit-taking sales later on. Realising operations during the third hour were so insistently pressed, in fact, that many issues lost their previous gains and the price front became sufficiently irregular to cause hesitation among speculators who had contemplated fresh purchases for the rise. This attitude appeared to be a factor in slowing down trading toward the close, although the volume of transactions was swelled to a figure in the forepart of the day which ranked the full session as one of the most active of the year. Considered broadly, the stock market was swayed by trading sentiment more evenly divided between confidence and caution than in any preceding day of the week. Presumably, the advice of brokers since the recent flurry in money to consider a reasonable profit enough had some effect in causing their customers to reduce speculative lines of industrial shares. A few issues, several of which had been inactive for some time, advanced 6 points or more, but the average gain among the popular stocks was less than 2 points. Railroad shares moved uncertainly, and much irregularity existed throughout the list at the close. Call money was steady at 6 per cent. for loans secured by mixed collateral, and a reflection of the extent of current supplies was presented in a decline of the quotation to 5¾ per cent. in the afternoon.

The opposition arising among stockholders of the International Mercantile Marine Company to the proposed dissolution of the concern promises to have a more significant bearing upon American trade affairs than is contained in the final status of this shipping unit itself. It appears more and more as though those directly interested in the corporation are sensing a substantial increase of earnings under peace conditions and desire to retain a live investment in their hands instead of receiving equities which will represent the disintegration of a powerful freight carrying organization. The company's April earnings, as recorded in estimates, indicate a substantial growth over the same month last year, and the 13 point advance of shares of a contemporary concern on the Stock Exchange yesterday denoted, apparently, a feeling among traders that the outlook for commerce forecast a profitable period when the interchange of goods between nations is facilitated by the signing of the peace treaty. In view of the effort being made to make the American merchant marine a greater factor on the ocean lanes than in many decades, it would seem that the movement to continue the Mercantile Marine Company as a going concern would receive much moral support in export and manufacturing circles.

The weekly reviews of domestic trade conditions mentioned many favorable developments, shortages of manufactured goods being reported here and there. Building operations, according to Bradstreet's, showed an increase of 128 per cent. in expenditures during May compared with the same month last year, considering eighty cities. The extraordinary size of wheat shipments abroad were emphasized again through the record of 21,628,700 bushels of wheat (or its equivalent in flour) sent out from ports of the United States and Canada in the week ended June 5. The week before a little less than half this amount was exported, and the week of June 5 stood fourth in the list of shipments of this major food material in the history of the country. Statements by authorities on food conditions in Europe show that the nations should have less need to buy abroad when their own harvest comes along, but in the meantime the export figures are pointing toward a continued heavy demand on our market. During the last forty-nine weeks exports of wheat from this country and the Dominion have amounted to 370,977,000 bushels, an increase of more than 67 per cent. over the export shipments from the United States alone in the same weeks of the preceding fiscal year.

EXPRESS CO. MERGER MAY BE PERMANENT

Reported That Wartime Consolidation Forced by Government Will Not Be Dissolved.

RATES LIKELY TO BE RAISED

Labor Costs Said to Have Increased 100 Per Cent. Under Railway Administration.

The temporary consolidation of the domestic interests of the American Express Company, the Wells-Fargo Express Company and the Adams Express Company and their subsidiaries under the name of the American Railway Express Company, which was undertaken at the instance of the Government as a wartime necessity, may become permanent, according to the statement of a representative of one of the companies yesterday. Reports have been current that the companies would liquidate, but if this is undertaken it is understood it will be a liquidation made necessary by the organization of the American Railway Express Company on a secure basis. At present the plans of the express companies and of the merger company are only in a nebulous stage because of the uncertainty that surrounds the railroad situation. It was stated, however, that the present intention was to go ahead with the American Railway Express Company as a working organization.

The formation of the American Railway Express Company was undertaken at the suggestion of the then Director General of Railroads, William G. McAdoo, who as head of the railroad system refused to abide by the individual contracts which the railroads had with the express companies. He suggested that the express companies form one big operating company, and this was eventually done, the operation of the express service by it beginning July 1, 1918, the plan having been approved by the Government on May 28. Originally the three companies, American, Adams, and Wells-Fargo, held all of the capital stock of the American Railway Express Company, pledging their assets, terminals, trucks and working facilities for the stock, which was held on about an equal basis, there being some $33,000,000 outstanding. It develops now that the Government is a large holder of this stock, it being asserted that the block is worth approximately $6,000,000.

This was obtained from the Adams Express Company in a readjustment of contracts during the first six months of Government control of the railroads, during which time the express companies were, so to speak, free agents. The contracts which the express companies had with the carriers, it was asserted, were not being lived up to by the Government, the efficiency of service being about 75 per cent. of normal. It was in the readjustment of these differences that the Government obtained its block of American Railway Express stock.

The permanent organization of the merger company after the railroads are turned back to private control is hedged about with many complex questions. From the point of view of the Government the consolidation of interests is to cease when the railroads are returned and the companies which were units in the consolidation are to begin operating independently and competitively. The interpretation by the express companies of the contract with the Government is just the reverse. It is said that the stipulation that the merger terminate is not binding, as it was inserted in the wrong contract by the Attorney General, who did not believe that anything should be done by a Government department that would nullify the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law when peace was established.

As a matter of fact the Sherman law is one of the stumbling blocks to an announcement that the express company merger is to be permanent. The impression prevails that the law will not be effective after this year, that some legislation will be enacted by the present Congress which will nullify it working as an effective agency in prohibiting the consolidation of organizations such as the express companies. On the other hand there is no effort to deny that there might be an interpretation under the present law that the express company merger was in restraint of trade.

One of the chief difficulties, however, is the possibility that some of the railroads may object to one company handling all of the express business, especially in the case of such roads as the Pennsylvania and the New York Central, which are rivals to both the Chicago and St. Louis terminals. The allocation of a just proportion of the express business to each would be a problem of difficult proportions and might engender bitter feelings.

The impression prevails that the Government is operating the express companies on a basis similar to that which obtains in the case of the railroads. In reality the situation is quite different. The express companies are guaranteed against loss, but they receive no rental from the Government. Except for the guarantee against loss the plan of operation is very similar to that which held away when the express companies were making contracts direct with the railroads. The operating agreement entered into on Nov. 22, 1918, provides that the express companies receive 49¾ per cent. of the express operating revenue and the Railroad Administration 50¼ per cent. The express companies believed that they could make money under the merger plan, and did not desire especially that there should be a governmental rental for the properties. As it turns out this was a mistaken idea, for the express companies have not only failed to make money but have run into deficits. These will have to be made good by the Railroad Administration. It is estimated that the deficit since last July, with January and February of this year estimated, amounts to $14,920,000.

If the express companies are to operate under the name of the American Railway Express Company, or even independently, with any degree of profit it is estimated that rates will have to be increased by at least 25 per cent. The usual basis for computation of rates for express is obtained by doubling the rate on first class freight. If the Interstate Commerce Commission were to do this, which it is believed is only logical, the express rates, it is asserted, would be advanced by an even greater percentage than that named.

The increase in rates, it is said, is made necessary mainly by the higher labor costs. These are nearly 100 per cent. greater than when the express companies were operating on the old basis, the advances in wages having been ordered by the Railroad Administration.

NEW ISSUE OF CERTIFICATES

Federal Revenue Governor Says It Will Come About July 1.

SCRANTON, Penn., June 6.—At the Pennsylvania State Bankers Convention here today, E. Pusey Passmore, Governor of the Third Federal Reserve Bank, said that further Government certificates of indebtedness would be issued about July 1.

"So far as the public is directly concerned," said Mr. Passmore, "their share in financing the Government in the war period is done. With the bankers it is different, and I am in a position to say now that beginning July 1 certificates of indebtedness will be issued by the Treasury Department. You will all be notified in due course."

UPHOLDS INJUNCTION ON TAX JUGGLING

CUTS THE LEVY ABNORMALLY

And Reverses the City's "Pay-as-You-Go" Policy, Even as to Past Transactions.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, in Brooklyn, yesterday affirmed the decision of Justice James C. Cropsey of the Supreme Court restraining Mayor John F. Hylan and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment from issuing $4,500,000 in corporate stock for the purposes of redeeming $1,000,000 of special revenue bonds issued to pay the expenses of the Public Service Commission in 1918, and of paying $3,500,000 in the city's general fund for the reduction of the tax rate for 1919. The vote of the court was divided on the matter. Justices Mills, Putnam, and Kelly sustained Justice Cropsey. Presiding Justice Jenks and Justice Blackmar asserted that he should be reversed.

The resolution to issue the corporate stock was passed at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on Feb. 7. Leonard M. Wallstein, on behalf of the Citizens Union, objected to the issue of the stock. William J. Schieffelin, acting for the Citizens Union applied for an injunction, preventing the issue of stock, to Justice Cropsey.

Justice Cropsey, on Feb. 21, granted the application. In his opinion he said that the artificial tax reduction violated the pay-as-you-go provision of the city charter and that it would reduce the city's borrowing margin and make the interest burden greater. "The illegality of the proposed action seems so clear that it is the duty of the court to grant the injunction sought," said Justice Cropsey.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment asserted that, under the 1912 amendment of the Rapid Transit act, it was bound to meet the expenses of the Public Service Commission by the issue of long-term corporate stock. Previously, the expenses had been met by the issuance of special revenue bonds, redeemable out of the next year's taxation. The Citizens Union held that that policy should be followed. Justice Mills, who wrote the opinion sustaining Justice Cropsey, said:

"If this reasoning of the appellant (the city administration) be sound, then it would be competent for the Board of Estimate to look over the city records for any length of time, even fifty years, and if it could find therein that any sum of money in any year had been included in any tax levy to pay the purported obligations of the city illegally issued, it would be competent for the board to issue the city's obligations to raise the money represented by these payments in order to reimburse the taxpayers of the city, albeit at the expense of the tax payers fifty years hence.

"If it is true that the city, out of its general taxation, has paid a debt which it should have paid in the first instance out of bonds raised by long term securities—that is, corporate stock—I do not think that the taxpayers can be afforded relief in that way.

"The entire scheme of the challenged resolution of the board is to adopt the policy of paying, as far as possible, these obligations of the city by issuing long term corporate stock as against the former 'pay-as-you-go policy' and to reverse that policy even as to past transactions and by so doing to abnormally reduce the present tax levy. If the authority to take that course existed in the board we would have nothing to do with the propriety of the procedure: but it seems to me that the requisite authority is wanting."

Justices Putnam and Kelly also wrote opinions in which they agreed with Justice Mills. Justice Jenks wrote a dissenting opinion in which Justice Jenks concurred. Justice Blackmar stated that, in his opinion, it became mandatory to meet the mooted expenses by corporate stock after the Rapid Transit act had been amended in 1912, and that the Board of Estimate had power to correct the errors of its predecessors in that regard.

MALT LIQUIDATION PLANS.

Court Empowers Sale of American Company Plants to New Concern.

The American Malt and Grain Company has come into official existence through the liquidation of the American Malting Company, Vice Chancellor Lewis in Jersey City having signed a decree empowering the liquidators of the American Malting Company to sell the plants, real estate, and appurtenances of their company to the American Malt and Grain Company. The Chairman of the Liquidating Committee, it was asserted yesterday by a member of the First Preferred Stockholders Protective Committee, would have in excess of $4,200,000 in cash and liquid assets. The first preferred stockholders who did not deposit their stock under the liquidating plan will receive approximately $61 a share. It is asserted that there is no equity in American Malting common, and that the stock is absolutely wiped out.

The first preferred stockholders who deposited their stock with the protective committee will receive between $31 and $32 a share in cash, as well as 70 per cent. in the new company. As the price of American Malt and Grain on a "when issued" basis is about $47 a share on the Curb, the market value of the American Malt preferred certificates is about $64. The new company, with a capital of 50,000 shares of no par value and a bonded indebtedness of $321,000 American Malting 5 per cent. bonds, due in six years and retirable at the rate of $50,000 a year, it is said, will start business with about $1,000,000 in cash in the treasury.

TO GIVE MERGER DETAILS.

New Packing Firm to Announce Capitalization on June 12.

Full details of the merger of eight independent packing companies, announced Thursday, will be given out about June 12, according to John A. Hawkinson, who has resigned as a Vice President of Wilson & Co. in order to head the new corporation. Mr. Hawkinson said in Chicago yesterday that the capitalization of the new concern had not been set definitely and that the figure of $165,000,000, which had been given out, was a mistake. "The capitalization will be large, necessarily, and will be ample to take care of the needs of the company," said Mr. Hawkinson.

Truesdale Asserts the Future of Country's Carriers Is Anything but Reassuring.

The annual pamphlet report of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company for 1918 shows total corporate earnings amounting to $22,367,160, as compared with $25,078,690 in 1917. After deductions there was left $12,831,052, which compared with $15,370,197 in the preceding year. This was equivalent to 30.39 per cent. earned on the $42,227,000 stock outstanding, as compared with 36.29 per cent. in the preceding year.

In arriving at last year's earnings the report has been prepared to show $14,174,529 as 90 per cent. of certified compensation for 1918, and this item is compared with entire similar railroad operating income in 1917, which was $16,971,381. The balance sheet shows that current assets decreased to $11,045,761 from $17,592,893 in 1917. Of this the cash item remained about the same, at $3,167,959. In 1917 cash amounted to $3,922,804. Current liabilities are shown to have decreased to $9,994,970 from $11,680,170 in the preceding year.

90% certified compensation compared with R. R. op. income	14,174,529	16,971,381
Net corporate income	12,834,052	15,370,197
Current liabilities	9,994,970	11,680,170

In his remarks to shareholders President W. H. Truesdale said in part:

"The future status of the railway companies of the country generally, both physical and financial, is anything but reassuring as result of the Government's experiment in managing their properties since Jan. 1, 1918. The public does not as yet fully realize or appreciate, nor will it for some time to come, how seriously and permanently the transportation facilities on which it has relied in the past to carry on the commercial and other activities of the country have been crippled and their future growth stunted and restricted by what has happened to them since they were taken over.

"It is becoming more evident every day that the shipping and traveling public are most insistent upon the railways being turned back to their owners as early as possible

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The wide gains which extended well over the list in the early dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday were in considerable part lost on profit taking in volume during the last hour. Atlantic Gulf & West Indies, however, was an exception to the rule, that stock moving up 7⅛ points and finishing at its best figure. Mexican Petroleum, which in the first hour gained 5 points to 198, later fell back below 193 and closed at 193½. General Motors during the first three hours moved up 8 points, Tobacco Products 8¾, and United States Rubber 4. The steel issues were irregular, United States Steel common being bid up 1⅞ to 112, later falling to 110, and closing at 110½, while Crucible Steel made an early gain of 2¾ to 97 and Bethlehem Steel B 2⅝ to 87. Price movement in the rails also lacked regularity, first gains approximating a point, most of which were subsequently lost.

TELL COURT HANSEN HAD MELANCHOLIA

LORE OF SEA IS RULED OUT

Testimony of unusual human interest in the trial of Adolph C. and Adolph E. Pedersen, Captain and second mate of the barkentine Puako, who are on trial under an indictment charging them with having caused the death of Axel Hansen, a seaman, was stopped yesterday by Federal Judge Hough, who ruled that the testimony must adhere closely to the alleged crime and must not take any wider range. Hansen jumped into the sea on the voyage of the bark from Victoria, B. C., to Cape Town, South Africa, and the defendants are charged with having refused to answer his cries for rescue.

The two defendants, in testimony, sought to show that the crew was mutinous and inefficient, and that they had not been treated with the severity and brutality charged. An effort was made by the two to prove that the melancholia that occasionally attacks men on long voyages when they are subjected to gruelling work and rough rations, had been responsible for the death of Hansen and of the cook, Stewart, who also jumped overboard and was lost. Other members of the Puako crew tried in like manner, it was testified, to destroy themselves, but were prevented by the Captain and his officers.

These stories of the sea were listened to eagerly, and there were signs of discontent when the Court ruled them out. Dudley Field Malone, counsel for the accused seamen, offered in evidence a statement alleged to have been made by Hansen on July 30, seven days before he jumped overboard, telling of a plan to kill the Captain and seize the ship. Others of the crew who made similar statements recanted, then afterward alleging that the statements had been dictated by Captain Pedersen, who forced them to sign them at the point of a pistol.

Young Pedersen on Stand.

Young Pedersen, the third mate of the Puako, testified yesterday that the bruises on Hansen's face, which members of the crew described in testimony, had not been caused by the officers of the vessel, but had been received in a fight Hansen had with L. A. Smithson, the cabin boy, on July 27. He also testified that Hansen feared the Black Hand, and thought members of that order would be waiting for him at Cape Town. So Hansen planned, the witness said, to sink the ship and destroy those on board so that the Black Hand would think that he, too, had been lost, and cease following him. The witness said he did not know how Hansen planned to save himself.

Cross-examined by Prosecutor Miller, the witness admitted that he had slapped the cabin boy, and had put him in irons, but excused it by saying that the boy had been insubordinate. According to the testimony of the mate, Hansen was that thing most hated of all by sea captains, a "sea lawyer." The witness stated that Hansen had a book wherein were printed the rules governing the duty of seamen to their officers and vice versa, and that he was in the habit of consulting it before obeying any order, no matter how serious the situation might be.

"This Dane is now a peaceful member of humanity. He won't preach the doctrines from the little green book inscribed 'Sailor's Rule Book' again."

The witness admitted having made the entry. He related again the incidents of the windy morning when Hansen went overboard, and described how the ship was heading and behaving with the assistance of the toy model of the Puako.

On Thursday Capt. John Duffy, U. S. N., testified that if Capt. Pedersen had cared to have rescued Hansen he could easily have done so in spite of the storm of wind, and yesterday Lieut. Charles Brown, who was in charge of the barkentine Cohala, a sister ship of the Puako, testified that any attempt made to haul the ship if the weather conditions were such as described would have resulted in disaster to all.

Calls Crew Worthless.

Capt. Pedersen, when called to the witness chair, was shy and confused. He spoke in so low a tone that he was scarcely audible. For sixteen years, he said, he had been the master of sailing ships, twelve of them as the commander of the Puako. He told in fragments, and prompted by questions, the story of the voyage of the bark from British Columbia to Cape Town, insisting upon the worthlessness of the crew he had picked up along the wharves of Victoria, and of how hard he and his sons had tried to train them so they would be able to sail the bark.

Did he slap the cabin boy? Yes, but it was because the boy was surly and disobedient. Did the members of the crew make the confessions credited to them of their own will? Yes, and kissed the Bible afterward. Did he ever strike Hansen or see any other person strike him? No, he never did.

Asked to tell of the events in the early morning of Aug. 6, when Hansen went overboard, he followed the tale as it was told by the second mate. When he got on deck the dawn was just breaking, there was a stiff breeze, and the ship was in the wind. A seaman called to him that Hansen was hanging to the log line, and he looked over the side, but couldn't see anything because of the spray. He ordered the ship put back, he said, and then, failing to see Hansen said, "We can't do nothing for that poor fellow; we can't see him."

Suddenly he heard a cry, he said, and then it was too late, for the vessel had drifted too far away, and it was too dangerous to launch a boat. The Captain also testified that the moment he came on deck he shouted out, "Go get him!" and then observing the "dirty weather" knew that great care would have to be exercised in handling the bark. Cross-examined the Captain stuck to his tale. The trial will be continued this morning.

SWANN AND HYLAN IN WALL ST. CRUSADE

WARNING TO PROMOTERS

Intimation That Curb Market Will Be Closed if Association Fails to Act.

Mayor Hylan and District Attorney Swann say they are going to clean up the financial district by driving out the fake stock promoters and the swindlers in every form who have been getting the money of both the big and little investors by misrepresentation or false pretense. After an hour's conference on the subject with the Mayor at the City Hall the District Attorney announced that Mr. Hylan approved the campaign to bring about better conditions in the financial district and had given assurance of support by the city administration and that the work of the County Prosecutor would be backed by the entire Police Department, if necessary.

"Before the city and county authorities exercise their full powers to eliminate the financial crooks and fakers the honest business interests of the district," said District Attorney Swann, "including members and representatives of all the exchanges, and the Curb Association in particular, are to be given opportunity to clean house for themselves and to start a campaign tending toward general reform for the benefit of the legitimate trading business and the protection of the public.

"Mayor Hylan agreed with me," continued the District Attorney, "that the Curb Market Association must cast out the rascals who are swindling the investing public, and if they fail to clean out the swindlers and purge curb lists of worthless stocks, they must abide the consequences."

Judge Otto A. Rosalsky of the General Sessions, and Chief Police Inspector John Daly accompanied the District Attorney to the City Hall. Daly did not participate in the conference with the Mayor concerning the financial swindlers, it was said, but went to see the Mayor on other business.

Exchanges Offer Aid.

All of the exchanges, including the Curb Market Association, have offered co-operation in the campaign started by the District Attorney. Nearly all of the complaints that have reached the District Attorney's Office have to do with alleged swindles or sales of worthless stocks on the curb or in offices of promoters and stock jobbing agents, none of whom was a member of the Curb Market Association or any other exchange, according to information thus far obtained in the investigation.

However, the District Attorney and the Mayor decided that the Curb Association had it within its power to devise and inforce some effective remedy for the financial evils complained of. It was intimated, that in putting the question of reform in trading on the curb up to the association, the members and officers were expected to take action in matters which the city and county authorities could not reach so effectively, and failure on their part to aid would mean ultimately that the privilege or permission for trading on Broad Street would be withdrawn.

"The Mayor suggested to me that the use of a public street by the Curb Market Association was merely tolerated by the city authorities and that this privilege carried with it no right to continue such a market if it at any time conflicted with the public interest," said District Attorney Swann. "The Curb Market Association and its members are there merely at the sufferance of the municipal authorities."

Questions Aldermen's Power.

For some weeks a resolution has been pending in the Board of Aldermen authorizing the city to license and list curb brokers. Concerning this, Mr. Swann said:

"There is no power in the Board of Aldermen to grant permission to any body of men to obstruct any portion of the public streets permanently. The obstructing of this portion of the public streets is tolerated because of convenience to a large number of citizens, but if the Curb Market Association and those associated with it do not clean up the situation and take effective means to protect the investing public from the hundreds of swindlers with their various nefarious swindling oil and mining schemes, the District Attorney will take such legal action as he deems necessary for the purpose of protecting the public.

Mr. Swann said he was very much pleased at the recent action of some of the chief metropolitan newspapers in refusing to take further advertisements of the numerous fake oil companies. A conference between officers and members of the Curb Market Association and with others who are co-operating and the District Attorney will take place on Monday.

The Grand Jury continued yesterday the investigation of the sales and alleged manipulation of certain oil stocks. Several advertising agents were questioned in the Grand Jury room. Mr. Dooling said his investigation had shown that certain advertisements of oil stocks contained misrepresenting and false statements. The inquiry will be resumed on Monday.

RICH WOMAN IS MISSING.

Miss Mary E. Wood, who received a large legacy from her mother, the late Mrs. Virginia Wood of 259 Lenox Avenue, who died at Narragansett Pier last Fall, has been missing since December. This fact was discovered through two court actions yesterday. After her mother's funeral, Miss Wood boarded up the family home and went to live at the Laurel Hotel, Laurel, N. J. She was last seen by friends in that place.

It was when John W. Lyon, the undertaker who had charge of the funerals applied to Surrogate Cohalan to permit the payment of the bill for his services from money accumulating in the offices of agents of the estate, that it became known Miss Wood was missing. Also the Fulton Trust Company, as committee of the property of Clara A. Downey, has published a summons by the consent of the Supreme Court, requiring Miss Wood to appear as co-defendant in an action against the estate. The missing woman is said to be about 40 years old.

WOULD JAIL CHILD HATERS.

Magistrate John Kochendorfer, in the Long Island City Police Court, yesterday declared that he had no sympathy for landlords who refused apartments to applicants because they had children.

Mrs. Helen McNeill of 396 Hopkins Avenue, Long Island City, had Alfred Anderson of the same address, and the janitor of the apartment house, summoned to court, charging that he had threatened her, and in her testimony she said that Anderson had ordered her out of her home on account of her children.

Anderson in his testimony said that he had been greatly annoyed and hampered in his work about the apartment by the children. He said that he had no children of his own and admitted that he had scolded the children.

"If I had my way, every landlord who refuses apartments to applicants because of children would be in jail," said Magistrate Kochendorfer. "You ought to come out to my house some time, and I will show you a regular orphan asylum. Every child in the neighborhood comes to my house to play with my children. You should adopt some children."

COURT SUSPENDS LAWYER.

Luke O'Reilly, a lawyer of 44 Court Street, Brooklyn, was suspended from the practice of law for four months yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. The five Justices were unanimous.

O'Reilly was brought before the Appellate Division by the Grievance Committee of the Brooklyn Bar Association. It was alleged that he accepted a fee from C. Morton Stafford, an undertaker of 126 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, for obtaining deferred classification for Stafford, although O'Reilly was at the time a member of the Legal Advisory Board.

"The services would have justified some charge by an attorney, but the offending was a charge and acceptance of a fee for work that was in the line of the respondent's official duties," said the decision. "We cannot overlook the unethical course which perverted apparent patriotism to personal profit."

SUES SCHWAB FOR $500,000.

Charles M. Schwab has been sued in the Supreme Court for $500,000 damages for slander by Titus de Bobula, an architect of 10 East Forty-third Street. This fact became known yesterday when Mr. Schwab filed a demand that the plaintiff give particulars of the alleged injurious statements made concerning the architect.

The complaint alleges that Mr. Schwab spoke falsely and maliciously concerning the defendant in the presence of E. de Bobula and others, between January and March, 1918, and on Aug. 7 last. Mr. Schwab wants to know where he made the statements and who heard them other than the person mentioned. The plaintiff's attorney refused to discuss the case.

SAY POLISH POGROMS GO ON

Two new pogroms in Poland are reported in a cablegram to the Zionist Organization of America via Copenhagen, one by Polish legionaries on May 22 at Poryck, Volhynia, where eighteen, mostly women and girls, were killed, and another at Czenstochau on May 27, with a death toll of nine. The Jews of the latter city proclaimed a fast day May 29.

The Jewish members of the Polish Diet on May 22 addressed an open letter to Premier Paderewski, detailing the outrages and setting forth that the soldiery of General Haller's army had been particularly conspicuous in the many attacks on Jews. The letter criticised the Government's passive attitude, and charged that the Government's organs were guilty of provoking the anti-Jewish agitations. The issue of the Cracow Novy Dziennik in which this letter was published was confiscated.

Isaac Heilblum, who was charged with being one of two men who attempted to shoot Premier Paderewski, has been liberated after the accusation against him was changed from attempted assassination to making insulting remarks.

At Bialystok the authorities have decreed that all notices, including religious announcements by the rabbis, must be in Polish, which very few of the Jewish population can read.

In Pinsk all the Jewish prisoners have been set free. Six of them have lost their reason as a consequence of their suffering.

TELLS HORRORS OF FAMINE.

Only 70,000 of Riga's 200,000 Population Have Survived.

The Jewish People's Relief Committee of America, a branch of the joint committee for the distribution of American funds for the European war sufferers, has received a cablegram from its Vice Chairman, Sholom Asch, now in Vilna, Poland, that of the 200,000 people who lived in Riga only about 70,000 are now alive.

"The famished survivors have fed themselves on rats and mice," the message continues. "The price of 4 roubles was paid per rat, but the rats and mice are not to be had any more—they were all eaten up. Prominent men and women, who were at one time the wealthiest of the city, are daily seen searching dumping depots for any pieces of meat or bones to feed their families."

Abraham Zucker, manager of the People's Relief Committee, said yesterday that their relief commissioners, Messrs. Asch, Max Pine, Baruch Zuckerman, and Meyer Gillis, who are now in various European countries, are soon to return to the United States. They will all be sent to all States of the Union to raise funds for the Jewish war sufferers. In Poland all relief moneys are being distributed under the auspices of the United States Food Administration. The Jewish relief committees are already preparing to send another ship with food and clothing.

EXPECTS NO DROP IN PRICES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 6.—The Bureau of Labor Statistics has found that retail prices for food reached their peak in December, 1918, with slight declines in January and February, but advances in the two succeeding months. In April, 1919, the average cost of twenty-two articles of food for the United States as a whole was 18 per cent. higher than in April, 1918, and 85 per cent. higher than in April, 1913.

"It is my belief that the range of prices for the necessities of life will average little, if any, lower than at the present time," said Julius Rosenwald, head of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago. "Of course, there will be some exceptions, but I do not look for a sudden or violent reduction in the near future, aside from those which have been artificially stimulated."

Mr. Rosenwald's view is similar to that of John J. Arnold, Vice President of the First National Bank of Chicago, who says it is futile for industry to wait for pre-war commodity prices.

NEW BAFF CASE REPRIEVE.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, June 6.—In Sing Sing's deathhouse today Warden Edward V. Brophy notified Joseph Cohen, convicted of procuring the assassination of Barnet Baff, the poulterer, and Frank Ferrara, driver of the murder car, that their death sentences had again been stayed. A letter notifying the Warden, inclosing the necessary papers, was received from Albany today.

Instead of having to die Thursday, June 26, Governor Smith gave them a four months' reprieve. This defers execution until Oct. 20. It is the third stay for Cohen and the sixth for Ferrara. Both prisoners were reprieved, it is said, until the investigation of the charges of conspiracy against Cohen can be completed.

COURT UPHOLDS VON TILING

Decides Poughkeepsie Physician May Retain His Citizenship.

Federal Judge Manton decided yesterday that Dr. Johannes H. M. A. von Tiling had not been guilty of any act that would justify the Government in depriving him of his citizenship. The action against Dr. Tiling was instituted by the Government on evidence furnished by Federal agents who accused him of having been false to his oath of allegiance and of having made disloyal statements concerning the United States and its officials.

In his opinion Judge Manton stated that the Government had failed to sustain its charges that Dr. Tiling had obtained his citizenship by fraud because he had taken an oath that he did not intend to keep. He said that the case typified the wisdom of President Wilson's request prior to the entrance of this country in the war, urging American citizens to be neutral in speech and conduct. Dr. Tiling lives in Poughkeepsie and is one of the leading physicians in that part of the State.
